Not Guilty: Watergate 3 Still Say

Times News Services
WASHINGTON — The three most powerful men of Richard Nixon's administration, who stand convicted of conspiring to cover up their involvement in Watergate, today steadfastly maintain they will prove their innocence on appeal.

They remain free on personal bond and because of appeals it could be a year before any of them start jail terms.

Haldeman and Ehrlichman, the men who ran the Nixon White House, were convicted of conspiracy, obstruction of justice and lying as was Mitchell, Robert Mardian, 51, a former assistant attorney-general and campaign aide, was convicted of conspiracy. Kenneth Parkinson, 46, hired to do Watergate legal work, was acquitted of conspiracy and obstruction of justice—the first Watergate defendant to go free.

Sentencing was expected to be delayed during the appeals process. Mitchell could get 25 years in prison and a $37,000 fine; Haldeman, 25 years and $21,000, Ehrlichman, 20 years and $35,000, and Mardian, 5 years and $10,000.

Fare Hike In Air Deficit?

MONTREAL (UPI) — Air Canada disclosed today a 1974 deficit of about $9 million and warned that air fares will have to rise again during 1975 to help offset inflation.

The chairman of the government-owned airlines, Yves Pratte, condemned "skyrocketing" fuel prices in the past year and warned: "At stake in this situation is the continued health of the entire air transport industry."

Pratte announced the deficit in a year-end statement and said precise figures would be issued later. The $9 million represented a net approximate figure, he added.

Pratte said doubts in the Canadian and world economies were expected to continue in 1975 and financial results for the year "are at best uncertain."

"The airline expects the year will be one of modest growth on its North American services but with little or no growth on international routes," he said.

"This is certainly a reversal of what the industry has been accustomed to in the past decade."

Pratte said the deficit — only the second for the airline in 11 years — was due to "unprecedented" inflationary pressures, during 1974, chiefly higher fuel costs.

The airline's fuel bill for the year soared by more than $70 million, or 83 per cent, over the figure for 1973.

To maintain "economic equilibrium," the airline stepped up sales efforts and launched a major drive to cut costs and improve productivity.

It also imposed a round of fare hikes, the first domestic increases since 1971.

IBM in U.S. Stalls $2M Canadian Sale

TAX CUT DELAYED BY LATE MAILING

OTTAWA (CP) — Take-home pay for most workers likely will go up next week, at least on paper, but it might take longer for the results of tax changes to show up on paycheques.

The federal budget tabled in November cut income taxes but the revenue department has not mailed out all the new tax tables.

TORONTO (CP) — The sale of more than $2 million worth of typewriter equipment by IBM Canada Ltd., Toronto, to the Cuban government has been stalled by the parent company in the United States, an IBM Canada official said today.

The IBM spokesman said the Cuban government approached the Canadian government about four weeks ago to try to arrange the deal.

But the parent company has discouraged the sale because the U.S. Trading with the Enemy Act makes it illegal for a U.S. company to do business with such countries as Cuba, the spokesman said.

Negotiations between the company and the Canadian government are continuing, he said.

Previously, MLW-Worthington Co. of Montreal was delayed temporarily in a $12-million deal with Cuba for locomotives. Litton Industries Ltd., of California, recently turned down a contract with Cuba for $500,000 worth of office equipment with its Canadian subsidiary, Cole Division Litton Business Equipment Ltd., Toronto.

The parent Litton company has since agreed to apply to the U.S. State Department for approval of the deal.

Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie, who described the U.S. action in the Litton case as "unwarranted interference," was not available for comment on the IBM case.

3 Pubs Run Low On Beer

Three Victoria-area pubs are expected to close in a week unless the work stoppage at Carling O'Keefe Brewery in Vancouver is resolved before then.

The three are Westwind International Motor Inn at Langford, the Colwood Inn at Colwood and King John Inn at 2688 Sooke Road.

In Vancouver, about 35 beer parlors have already been closed as a result of the shutdown, according to Lloyd Manuel, executive vice president of the B.C. Hotels Association.

About 220 employees at Carling O'Keefe stopped work Dec. 27 to protest a layoff of 60 during the Christmas season.

The employees are engaged in a study session at the company's lunch room and no work is being done.

"This will lead to widespread layoffs for hotels unless it is resolved quickly," Manuel said.

About 33 per cent of British Columbia hotels rely upon Carling O'Keefe draft beer.

A senior official at the brewery said the company has arranged a meeting with the Labor Relations Board for 9 a.m. Friday in an effort to resolve the dispute.

"It is just a preliminary meeting but we hope it will lead to a quick solution," he said.

There are 60 hotels on the lower mainland which rely upon Carling O'Keefe for their draft beer. They were closing their beer parlors as soon as their draft was gone. Of the total, 37 hotels are in Vancouver and another 19 are in Burnaby.

In Victoria, Bill Trimble, pub manager of Westwind, said he ordered an extra large supply of draft during the Christmas season as a favor to his supplier so there would not have to be a delivery this week.

As a result, he has enough draft on hand for about seven more days, depending upon demand.

"We didn't know this was coming. It was just a stroke of luck that we ordered an extra supply. Otherwise we would be out of beer now."

The King John Inn also has an extra large order on hand, enough to last five or six days, more, based upon normal demand.

Colwood Inn expects to run out of beer next Thursday unless normal deliveries are restored.

Surprise for Cool-Aid In C'wealth Youth Award

Victoria Cool-Aid has won the first Commonwealth youth award granted by the Commonwealth secretariat.

The London-based secretariat also gave the award, established under a program started in 1973, to a Malaysian group running a farming operation.

Cool-Aid, the non-profit group which operates a youth hostel and other community services at 1900 Fernwood, will receive a plaque and medals to mark the award.

Up to five Cool-Aid workers will get travel fellowships "to study similar projects in other Commonwealth countries, and to demonstrate and discuss the work they have undertaken," the secretariat said.

News of the award came as a surprise to Cool-Aid staff.

"We knew nothing about it," said Dave Brand, one of seven full-time workers at the hostel.

The federal secretary of state's department contacted Cool-Aid about 10 months ago seeking information so they could apply for the award on behalf of the group, said worker Laurie Smith.

"Then we heard nothing for a long period of time, until three weeks ago," he said.

Cool-Aid was asked to send more information about its projects.

Smith said they expect to get details of the award and the travel fellowships in a few days.

Cool-Aid started in 1968 as a hostel for transient youth in a rented house on Balmoral.

Today it owns the former Emmanuel Baptist Church at Fernwood and Gladstone, which contains a men's and women's hostel, a dental clinic that offers reduced rates to low-income people, and a full-time medical clinic.

The former church sanctuary, renamed the Springridge Theatre, is available for community groups that want to hold a meeting or put on a play.

Cool-Aid has been open 24 hours a day, seven days a week for the past five years, Smith said.

Cool-Aid also administers a group home for problem teenagers on Fort St., and runs a day care centre in a house on Balmoral.

GOLD DOWN DRASTICALLY

Times News Services
LONDON — The price of gold tumbled by almost $11 an ounce on the London market today.

The closing price of $173.50 was the first time the price had fallen below the $180 in three weeks.

Dealers attributed the decline to disappointment over the U.S. public's thin response to the lifting of the 41-year ban on their owning gold and to continuous profit taking.

Gold was fixed at $185 at mid-morning in London. In the afternoon the price was fixed at $175.

Whole New Set of People Standing in L.A. Breadline

By CHARLES FOLEY

LOS ANGELES—By noon, the line outside the Hospitality Kitchen on Sixth Street in downtown Los Angeles is a good two blocks long.

It is one of several soup kitchens in this city of seven million which are doing a roaring trade as the economy sinks into an ever-deepening, ever more frightening tailspin.

"There's a whole new set of people coming in," says Katy Morris, a teacher turned social worker. "Not skid-row types at all. I've talked to people today who can discuss everything from Carlos Castaneda to Castro, and they all say: 'We can't find work—there isn't any!'

For six million American breadwinners, jobless and increasingly hopeless, the recession brought a Black Christmas.

California, the barometer state, already has 8.7 per cent of its work force unemployed, compared with a national average of 6.5 per cent—and its second city, San Diego, is above the 10 per cent level. (These figures are being compared here with the 2.7 per cent in gloomy Britain.)

A long cold winter is on, and with it the worst and longest recession since the Second World War.

Across the country a staggering 37.5 per cent of the black teenage population—the young and black are always the hardest hit by any slump—are idle and ineligible for unemployment benefits.

But this time the fear of a depression as bad as that of the thirties is haunting the white middle classes no less than the poor in the Watts ghetto near here. Many still working full or part-time suspect that their employers are holding back the bad news until the New Year.

Among the industrial giants who have already made big lay-offs are General Motors, Xerox, General Electric, Union Pacific, RCA and Sears Roebuck, which has been hit by the heavy slump in Christmas sales. Some people were "released" at a few hours' notice, shortly before deadlines guaranteeing three days' paid holiday over Christmas and New Year.

"This time, lay-offs are in all sections of employment, not just one or two," says a Californian labor official. "Workers are being sent home by the car industry, steel, lumber, computer firms, electronics, textiles, construction. Some plants have been indefinitely closed down." A few states have run out of funds to assist the unemployed; others are borrowing.

Many of those being "let go" are white-collar people. A Los Angeles car dealer has reduced his staff to a single person, himself. A real estate developer has cleared out an entire office floor because of staff cuts. Herbert Hezlep III, president of Acme General, makers of hardware, has closed down three plants for three weeks. "Everyone's gonna take a vacation," he says, "including me."

Some firms are laying off workers, who have been with their companies for 20 or 30 years. Now they must line up outside the Office of Human Resources (the unemployment office) or join the siege of welfare bureaux, which show signs of crumbling under the enormously increased work load.

More than half of those left idle have no unemployment insurance—in California alone each week 4,000 exhaust their short-term benefits. Shame-faced middle class families are lining up for the first time to obtain federal food stamps, which can be exchanged for groceries, to supplement their diets. Often they wait several hours for attention, then return again and

Community News Round-Up

EAST SOOKE RATEPAYERS' ASSOCIATION has sent 200 letters to nearby property owners reminding them of the Jan. 8 meeting to discuss a community plan.

The meeting starts at 8 p.m. at Glenairley. The association has also been talking about establishing a volunteer fire department.

"We think it is within our reach," said president Grace Morgan.

James Bay residents should leave Tuesday night free to attend a monthly NEIGHBORHOOD IMPROVEMENT PROJECT gathering. Alderman-elect Murray Glazier has been asked to come along to the 7:30 meeting at 606 Douglas St.

Glazier was involved in framing N. I. P. legislation when he worked for the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation. It is expected he will head city hall's housing committee.

A bonus for James Bay house owners that is part of their N. I. P. program will be discussed with CMHC officials at a public meeting Jan. 11 at 2 p.m. at the community school.

Under the Residential Rehabilitation Program people netting $11,000 per year or less can receive low-interest loans of up to $5,000 from the federal government.

"If they earn less than that, some of the loan will be forgiven," said N. I. P. chairperson Sharon Hume.

The scheme is aimed at improving neighborhoods such as James Bay where there are a lot of older homes.

Charles Loughridge won't give up.

"We're going to get some money but we just don't know where it's going to come from," he said.

He and other members of the BILSTON CREEK IMPROVEMENT DISTRICT have just been denied L. T. P. funds to clean up the creek and halt flooding.

"We put in for $70,000," he said.

The group will now try to obtain funds from another source.

"We've just had the provincial government spend almost $90,000 putting in new culverts and bridges," he said.

That relieved the flooding somewhat, said Loughridge.

"We need another $80,000 worth of work" to finish the job.

Volunteer training will be the object of a workshop at the BOYS' CLUB OF GREATER VICTORIA Jan. 11.

The club has about 25 volunteers, and program director Toxy Rabinovitz along with director Jack Thornburgh want these workers to know just where they fit in.

Persons donating a few hours each week should know how their responsibilities differ from those of staff people, said Thornburgh.

Next meeting of the FLORENCE LAKE INVOLVEMENT ASSOCIATION will be at the end of January.

Problems to be discussed include possible flooded septic fields, soil erosion near residents' mobile homes and the siting of Florence Lake, said association president Axel Brock-Miller.

The association has about 100 members.

Date of the meeting will be announced later.

Letters are going out to all school principals in Victoria from members of the Victoria branch of the CONSUMERS' ASSOCIATION OF CANADA.

The letters are asking that "more attention be paid to junk foods and getting them out of school," said publicity co-ordinator Gladys Page.

Association members want chocolate bars, soft drinks and other "junk foods" eliminated from school cafeterias and replaced with fruit, sandwiches, milk, apples and raisins.

Nutrition classes should be offered to elementary school children too, said Page.

There's a birthday party every month at the JAMES BAY NEW HORIZONS centre for all members whose birthdays fall within that month.

The club has become so large that 50-75 celebrants attend each session for tea and birthday cake.

Speaking to all club members Friday at 10 a.m. will be Victoria-naturalist Freeman "Skipper" King. "The Living Green World" is the topic, and the place is 511 Michigan St.

U.S. SEIZES BIRTH PILLS

WASHINGTON (WP) — Charging persistent false advertising by Lederle Laboratories, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration has seized 25 million birth control pills worth $1.3 million in what the agency has called the largest prescription drug seizure in its history.

An FDA official said federal marshals put the pills under seal at Lederle warehouses at Pearl River, N.Y., Dec. 20 after the firm made repeated "misleading representations" in medical journals about the safety of a contraceptive it calls Zorane.

One ad was headed, "Because Her Medical Journals Alarm Her About the Pill," topping a picture of a woman reading a popular magazine with the headline, "Pill-Takers Run the Risk of Stroke."

In another ad, the heading "Because Her Medical Society Warns Her About the Pill" — topped a group of women playing cards.

A typical ad the FDA judged unwarranted went on to read, "And because she runs to you for her answer, new from Lederle, low estrogen Zorane oral contraceptive tablets."

All oral contraceptives contain some estrogen or female sex hormone.

Missing Plutonium Puzzle in U.S.

(Times News Services)

NEW YORK — The New York Times reports that the U.S. government is unable to account for thousands of pounds of uranium and plutonium that might be used to manufacture nuclear bombs.

The Times, in a story from Washington, says the nuclear materials are unaccounted for at 15 commercial plants in the United States regulated by the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC).

Frank Ingram, an AEC spokesman in Washington, said commission officials would have no comment on the Times story until they had read it.

Experts in the industry and in universities and unnamed AEC officials are cited by the newspaper as the sources from which the account of the missing elements was constructed.

At one unidentified plant, the Times says, about 9,000 pounds of highly-enriched uranium have been unaccounted for since the plant began operation.

The president of Kerr-McGee, however, has denied large amounts of plutonium are missing from the plant.

A small amount of plutonium was unaccounted for, but is only as much as is normally lost in processing, he said.

The amount is nowhere near the 30 to 60 pounds reported missing, he claimed.

The material described in the news stories includes the material in process in the plant in pipes, pumps, tanks, glove boxes and other process equipment," Kelly said.

Therefore, it cannot be fully measured until the present contract is completed and the plant is shut down and thoroughly cleaned of all in-processing material.

Booking Them On Suspicion

In a conservative country with a rapidly escalating violent crime rate, liberal bail reform measures have about as much chance of winning popular acceptance as would tearing down prison walls. And the federal government, reacting to the public temperament and police lobbying, appears to be readying an amendment to the 1971 bail reform measures that would give judges more freedom in refusing bail to accused persons.

Under the reform measures if an accused says he will reappear for trial he must be released from custody with no cash deposit, unless the person lives more than 100 miles from the court or if the Crown can show cause that he won't show up for trial, or if it is deemed in the public interest to keep him in jail. Prior to 1972 reforms an accused person — guilty or innocent — waited for months behind bars if he could not raise bail money.

Despite the 1972 changes there is evidence that little has changed. Judges often take the advice of prosecutors on whether a person awaiting trial should be released. The executive director of the Canadian Civil Liberties Association says: "...approximately the same number of accused are now being granted bail before trial, more are freer for longer periods of time. To put it plainly, the rich who got into trouble got out quicker than the poor."

Yet frustrated policemen report time and time again how people who have been arrested are released on bail by the courts, only to be picked up again, sometimes by the same officers, on the same charge. In addition, many of those charged and released on bail fail to show up for trial. As a result, those who enforce the laws often feel they are working in a vacuum with negligible results for their considerable efforts.

But there are dangers in shifting the decision for or against incarceration from the law to individual judges. Justice Minister Otto Lang is reported as saying the amendment will clarify and emphasize a judge's ability to keep the accused in custody when the bench suspects an accused person will repeat the offence when released.

Is a judge's suspicion enough reason to keep a person in jail? In a country which has one of the highest per capita prison populations in the western world and where the accused is supposed to have the benefit of the doubt, "suspicion" is an imprecise word on which to base a legislative amendment that can spell the difference between freedom and imprisonment.

The Trudeau administration has tried hard to humanize Canadian justice. At this juncture it appears the government's instincts are correct but the timing is wrong. And rather than standing up for its principles the government appears ready to negate its reforms in the face of criticism that has not yet been borne out by facts. Progress entails risks and is fraught with obstacles. But allowing the courts to jail a person on suspicion while awaiting trial does not solve the problem either. It simply shifts the responsibility from the political realm to the harried shoulders of our judges. Through probation reports and other testimony the proposed amendment will ensure that some criminals are not turned loose on society. But how many accused persons who would respect bail terms will go to jail on suspicion? That's something to think about too.

Nudes and Beer

The recent change in British Columbia liquor regulations, which now permit live entertainment in the beer parlors, has been welcomed by some. The resulting nudity as a form of entertainment is fast becoming a fact of life in many of the province's drinking establishments. The British Columbia Hotels' Association, representing over 400 member hotels, does not condone this extreme interpretation of the regulations, which reflects unfavorably on the calibre of the association, and we would like to take this opportunity to point out some of the problems involved for the hotel industry as this trend continues, and controversy mounts.

The British Columbia Hotels' Association recognizes that standards of good taste can, and do, differ. But an attempt must be made to solve the problems that the hotel industry as a whole is now undergoing, in coming to terms with a controlled definition of "live entertainment," regardless of individual interpretation. The British Columbia Hotels' Association suggests that the government review the situation and decide if this in fact is the interpretation of the regulations they, as elected representatives of the people, want to see in public houses.

The association realizes that there should be clubs for the general public to go to that feature nude entertainment, but that the beer parlors of B.C. are not the places, because the industry must cater to all walks of life.

As one of the objectives of the BCHA is to promote fair and honorable conduct in the practice of business, we feel that the uncontrolled trend towards nude entertainment in beer parlors will ultimately be detrimental to the reputation of the industry and to the general good of all concerned. — Louis Valente, President, British Columbia Hotels' Association.

Learning Capacity

Doubtless few will disagree with your heading in the Times (Dec. 21) that Many Lack Grade Eight, but to classify them illiterate is too broad a generality. There are several grades of illiteracy, as should be well known.

While it is universally conceded that the late Sir Winston Churchill made a very poor showing in school, surely he was never regarded as illiterate. Similarly, many inventors have possessed little formal education but, having evolved an idea often made a fortune through its exploitation.

As one of the so-called illiterate class (forced through poverty to quit school a little before age 14), long ago I decided that mastery of the three fundamentals — reading, writing and arithmetic — probably would suffice to see my modest objectives accomplished, but it has been my constant endeavor to perceive and to profit from example. Learning-by-doing and on-the-job training have been my helpmeets.

Don't you think that capacity to learn and initiative are even more important than a solid education?

Both my wife and I attended only elementary school but, by conforming to the precepts mentioned, we feel able to mingle with the intelligentsia without fear of embarrassment.

Are we illiterate? Well, not so as you would notice.

Please don't imagine that I denigrate education; quite the contrary, it has my highest respect, but I don't give it the standing accorded by the World Literacy of Canada organization. — Rodney J. Howell, Maj. (retired), Victoria.

Unreal Dream

I wish to join the crowd and add my comments on the proposed pay increase for our MPs. The most amazing thing to me was the parade of MPs, some from B.C., who were attesting to the necessity for the 50 per cent increase. Even staid old Robert Stanfield developed a clutching hand. Mark Raines, for whom I previously had a lot of respect, joined Simma Holt and the others in their parrot-like pleading for acceptance of their point of view.

It was like an unreal dream until Tommy Douglas brought us back to reality with his honest to goodness assessment of the whole situation.

On the day that NDP'er Ed Broadbent rocked the boat and sank it, there were only 20 members present in the house. Of the remaining 244, some no doubt were on legitimate government business, but the chances are that the majority were AWOL. I hope the poor dears were not moon-lighting to make ends meet.

All of which raises the question: What to our backbench MPs do in Parliament? I know some of the things they should wrong. World conditions never cease to get worse. It is, frightening. Could it be the cumulative, chain reaction of selfishness, greed? This hike, gentlemen, will not make you one whit happier. Deny yourselves this, in order to help with the inflation problem and to help your fellow Canadians in need, and see how much taller you will walk, the better able to look us all in the face. — G. F. Howard, Sooke.

Unkind Headline?

I realize that one expects, and rightly so, any organization, musical or otherwise to have their performances reported in your, or any newspaper. However, don't you think it was rather unkind, to have as a large headline in your Dec. 16 edition: Messiah Lacks Vital Spirit? Could you not have withheld that headline until after the Monday evening's performance? You can, and so can I, imagine how the choir and artists would feel with that headline facing them just as they were getting ready for the Monday evening's performance.

I do not wish you to publish my name, so for that reason you probably will not use this letter. That doesn't matter, so long as you will take this as a guide in future when you are reporting. — "Concerned."

(Editor's Note: Perhaps the headline might have inspired the singers to put more vitality into their next concert.)

Stand On Guard

Further regarding MPs' salaries — the public voice is starting to be heard. Someone is starting to stand on guard for thee, O Canada. Witness the editorials and newspaper articles on the subject: How Much is Enough, MPs' Nasty Business Unfinished, and Raise Needed by MP's But most significant the letters to the editor. We Canadians may yet prove to be quite the opposite from the apathetic nineties we have been called in the past.

Statistics Canada tells us the poverty level for a single person is $2,000 per year. The old age pension provides $117 per month. C.P.E. provides at the end of this year I am told $109 per month. Can we assume from the above that the existence level for a single Canadian is $2,400 per year? Well let us make it $3,000 in round figures.

If we really want to control inflation let us all agree — no more salary or wage increases except as a cost of living bonus based on $3,000 even though he or she now gets even $26,000 per year, or $100,000 per year. — G. M. Terry, 3237 Service Street.

be doing. They should be raising hell over excessive government spending, LIP grants, and unjustified expenditures on useless projects. If every backbencher would consider himself to be an omnibudsman, and solicit the help of his neighboring seatwarmer it's just possible that they may ensure good government.

Enthusiasm is the operative word, the kind that they exhibited over their own 50 per cent pay hike. — Art Casson, 679 Baxter Avenue.

Incredible Decision

Probably the vast majority of Canadians are shocked at the incredible decision of the prime minister and his cabinet ministers to raise their salaries up to 50 per cent. It is hoped that the shock waves by now have struck home at Ottawa; realization what a savage thing this is, how such a handful of men can so rock the boat. What an example from those at the top! Any child of 12 can see the implications and repercussions in the offering. Small wonder that young people are bewildered. I like to convince these young people that the world is full of wonderful people (and it is, too) and I like to feel that Canadians are second to none in the matter of integrity, compassion, honor.

Mr. Prime Minister and cabinet ministers, here is an opportunity you have obviously overlooked. This to completely forego any pay hike and set an example for others, hopefully to think less of self, more of others.

Something mankind is doing must be

The Bomb As Hardware

A decade ago the superpowers jealously guarded nuclear secrets on the grounds that proliferation would endanger the species, never mentioning the power and prestige which accrued to a nation with nuclear capability. Now all thoughts of non-proliferation have been buried in a welter of politicking and greediness. Former U.S. President Richard Nixon offered Egypt nuclear aid in an almost offhand manner, despite an angry congress. And it is an open secret that Israel is working hard on developing an arsenal of nuclear weapons.

On the homefront nuclear technology is a salable commodity too. Canada is busily trying to sell a nuclear reactor to Argentina only months after India exploded an atomic device with the aid of Canadian technology. When the bomb went off the Canadian government wrung its hands and shook warning fingers at pragmatic India, but the sales talk with other nations went on full speed. Even Quebec Premier Robert Bourassa is trying very hard to sell the French enriched uranium. Making a buck is more important than principles as far as Canada is concerned.

Besides the old established nuclear giants, nations such as India, Pakistan, Israel and Egypt are working on nuclear bombs, if they haven't already achieved nuclear capability. And as the list of nuclear nations grows ever longer we read that between 44 and 66 pounds of plutonium — an atomic bomb requires about 4.4 pounds of the stuff — has disappeared from a plant in Oklahoma.

It only takes a couple of masters degrees in physics and chemistry plus a little plutonium to produce a dangerous equation in the hands of organized crime or mad radical groups.

The bomb has become an ordinary piece of hardware which has the potential of obliterating the human species. Scientists speculate that we have a one in three chance of seeing nuclear weapons used before 1984, and it is a 50-50 proposition in their minds that a bomb will be detonated in anger before the year 2000. It is amazing that a species with the mental capabilities to produce nuclear technology cannot control what it has wrought. At this stage of proliferation the horrendous cat is out of the bag forever. The question remains: is man rational enough to keep it on a leash?

RICHARD GWYN

MPs Will Be Top Half Per Cent

OTTAWA — Scott Fitzgerald's best line was: "The very rich are different from you and me." Even though Ernest Hemingway rather deflated its effect by commenting: "Yes, they have more money."

Fitzgerald had in mind people like The Great Gatsby but his comment applies to anyone to whom money has ceased to be a problem.

A fat income means small things, a taxi rather than the bus or telephoning long distance whenever you feel like it rather than waiting for the low rates in the evening. Money changes more than lifestyle: it affects attitude and outlook. It means self-assurance. It means being able to make choices. It means, ultimately, living differently from everyone else, and therefore thinking differently.

Knows People

Once bill C-44 becomes law, MPs will earn just under $40,000 — a base salary of $27,000 plus an allowance of $12,000 for expenses which, because tax-free, are worth almost twice that in real terms. More than one in three Liberals — 52 of the 141 — to be exact — will draw additional salaries, from an extra $29,000 for the prime minister down to $36,000 for the assistant deputy chairman of committees of the whole house, an official whose duties are, of course, too widely known to need description.

Members of parliament represent people. This is their purpose and their strength. Any minister or MP who tries to argue with a bureaucrat over details can be killed by expertise. But no official can counter a politician's flat statement: "I know what the people want."

Politicians whose salaries are in the top one-half per cent of income-earners no longer can know what people want in the daily bread-and-butter terms of a job, a weekly wage, the price of food or of a house.

It's one thing for MPs to share, more or less, the same experiences as those they represent and quite another for MPs to have to imagine those experiences or to try to remember them from their younger days.

This is the real cost of bill C-44, not the $6 million or so it will add to the parliamentary budget nor even the damage it will do to Finance Minister John Turner's prospects, doubtful enough already, for persuading business and labor to exercise restraint.

ERNEST HEMINGWAY
... they have more money

Until the early 1960s, backbench MPs were treated as — and many thought of themselves as — part-time amateurs. Their salaries were $8,000, almost a nominal sum. Backbenchers were paired in a single office with a single secretary, so one MP and the secretary had to leave, usually to take coffee in the cafeteria. Today, MPs are full-time professionals. The facilities provided to them are extensive, expensive. Parliament has a $51 million budget and 3,000 employees — entirely justified. Members travel free to their ridings, use public funds to operate a constituency office and to publish a constituency newsletter. Basic campaign costs are covered in the new elections act. Each backbencher occupies a two-office suite and employs an assistant and a secretary. The caucus of each party has its own research staff; so does the parliamentary library.

These services enable MPs to keep in touch with their constituents and so to represent them better. More services in fact are needed, particularly research and investigation for parliamentary committees.

No matter how hard an individual MP tries, his or her life is bound in large part to be unreal. Parliament is a large, rather cozy club. Even some of the sting of job insecurity has been removed by generous pensions — payable after just six years' service.

Reverse Reform

More importantly, members other than cabinet ministers must make their mark not by doing things but by talking about doing things. They succeed largely to the extent they can attract the attention of the press, and so are forced to play the sensationalist game of the press on its terms.

Members deserve a pay increase. There's no question about that, despite the self-righteous indignation of most editorial writers and the self-conscious piety of the New Democratic Party — in private most of its members support the government's proposal.

Salaries of virtually $50,000, though, will reverse most of the parliamentary reform of the last decade. MPs will live differently from other people and so increasingly they will act and feel differently. They no longer will know what anyone wants, except themselves.

From the Times of January 2, 1915

Never has a more congenial gathering watched the passing of the old or the coming of the new year than that which assembled at midnight on New Year's Eve at the Empress Hotel. Memorable as events of the kind arranged by the management of the hotel may have been in times gone by, none has been merrier or marked by such a combination of pleasing features as that of Thursday midnight, when about 250 guests, most of whom came in family parties of six or more, raised glasses to the double toast of old and new.

H.L. Hunt: A Bizarre Feud for His Billions

By CHARLES FOLEY

DALLAS — People at the State Fair a few years back were startled to find, seated at a modest booth displaying his products, the lofty figure of Haroldson Lafayette Hunt, smiling benignly at the world of which he owned so large a slice and doling out 3 lb. plastic bags of goodies. Takers found inside a copy of Hunt's book "Alpaca," which explains why the rich should inherit the earth, a packet of his "Lifetime Freedom Talks," which told how the Communists will probably do so instead, and a free sample of GASTRO-MAJIC, an H. L. Hunt product guaranteed to dispel painful gas, of which the oil billionaire was a victim.

In blue bow-tie, with tufts of white hair at his ears, Mr. Hunt looked like the kindly judge in an Andy Hardy movie. "I'm here to save the Republic," he affirmed, in reedy tones. "The Kremlin plans to take us over in three years. Read my books and you'll see!"

It seemed a harmless enough pastime for the master of America's largest private fortune. Perhaps the super-rich were, as the oft-repeated Hemingway-Fitzgerald exchange suggested, no different from us, merely richer, in this instance by about $300,000 a day.

Now Hunt is dead, at 85, and the horrendous tangle of lawsuits, charges and counter-charges, dirty linen and uncollected skeletons which he has left to his heirs indicate that, if the Hunt brood are typical American millionaires, the rich are in grave trouble. The lid has come off a bizarre family feud for the old man's money, involving wire-tapping, purloined papers, charges of bribery, plea-bargaining in high places and an exotic dash of international high politics which pits Al Fatah's guerrillas against the FBI.

A hush-hush year-long probe into the affair by the United States Justice Department is about to end with a string of indictments. Caught up in the web of the inquiry are the ranking senator and the former governor of Texas, "Big John" Conally, a brace of Nixon's attorney-generals and, of course, the former President himself, without whom no scandal these days is complete.

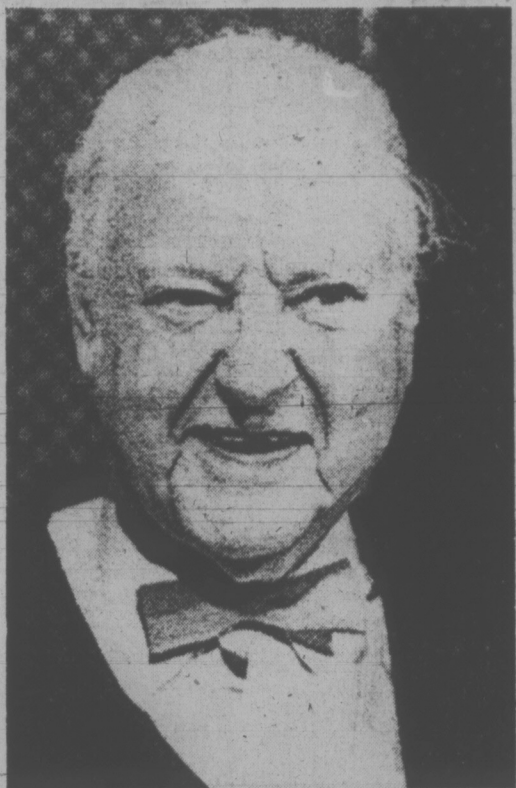

Among the "Big Rich of Big D" — as Dallasites like to call their city — it was long believed that the Hunt problems began some two decades ago when "H.L.'s" first wife, Lydia Bunker, was dying of cancer. Mr. Hunt grew dependent on his personal secretary, Ruth Ray Wright, who was 20 years his junior. The first Mrs. Hunt had been dead two years when, in 1957, H.L.H. married the girl. This move confronted the six children of his first bed, Lamar, Nelson Bunker, W. Herbert, H.L. Jr., Margaret and Carolyn, with a stepmother in their own age bracket and four healthy young rivals in the next-of-kin stakes: her children Ray Lee, June, Helen and Swaniee.

The four were at first attributed to "a former marriage" but some time after Hunt formally adopted them, the second Mrs. Hunt revealed — apparently to strengthen their claims on the inheritance — that her husband was, indeed, their father. Ruth, an enthusiastic member of the local Baptist choir, set her mind to converting H.L.H. — no more gambling or cigars — and eventually led the old man, along with his new family, to Dallas' "First Baptist Church," the largest in the world, where under the aegis of Billy Graham all six were baptized, by immersion together.

In due course Ray Lee left college to go into real estate, a Hunt sideline; June went on tour as a gospel singer; and Helen and Swaniee married. Their husbands were taken into the firm. Both branches of the family presented the patriarch with grandchildren and great-grandchildren until the total of putative beneficiaries rose to 40. Just how much loot was at stake in the dynastic lists was hinted at when (according to a favorite Dallas story) a friend warned Mr. Hunt that young Lamar was losing $1 million a year on an investment in the Kansas City Chiefs football team. "Damn," the old man exclaimed, "at that rate we'll be broke in a couple of thousand years." His native caution returning, he vetoed Lamar's idea of buying Alcatraz as a tourist draw and erecting a second statue of Liberty on San Francisco's convict isle.

Hunt senior, a one-time farm boy, lumberjack, cowhand, struck it rich in the twenties. Old hands swear that he got his start by staking $50,000 in poker winnings on a property which turned out to cover a lake of 45 miles wide by nine miles long. When the money rolled in, he would risk thousands on a horse or the turn of a card. The money still rolls in today on an ever-mounting tide, in line with the HUNT... saving the republic?

"What the Hunts do, they do for themselves" might be the family motto.

HLH did spend some millions on the fervidly anti-Communist "LifeLine" broadcasts he sponsored on 541 radio stations, but since they enjoyed tax-exempt status, this favorite hobby-horse was exercised entirely at Uncle Sam's expense. He drove, until late in life, a battered Ford covered with ads for Hunt products, especially his beloved GASTRO-MAJIC, leaving the car some blocks from his new 56-floor offices to save parking costs. He ate a "natural" lunch from a paper bag, was beyond belief," Mr. Rothermel, 47, recalls. "He'd give me a packet of money and say take this to Mr. Smith. Outside the door I'd find it held a thousand dollars less than he'd told me. I'd take it back to his office, and he'd cackle: 'Make up the difference yourself.'"

Rothermel was also asked to join Hunt on his daily creep. "Creeping on hands and knees is the best tonic in the world. Down we go!" the old man shouted. Hunt, who started creeping as therapy after a car crash, later took up yoga, and would discuss the affairs of Hunt Oil on the 53rd floor while struggling to maintain a "full lotus" position.

Rothermel knew that Hunt, while putting enough in trust funds to make his first six children multi-millionaires in their own right, had given scant thought to Ruth's family. "Mr. Hunt relied on my judgment," he says. "He even gave me a letter approving transactions I might make on his behalf. So I felt a duty to persuade him in 1969 to change his will to benefit the second family. But when the first lot heard of this, some odd things happened."

Rothermel's wife, Joyce, wondered about two men in a red Thunderbird, always outside her home. The driver, questioned by police, turned out to be a private eye, one J. J. Kelly. "When I asked if he was on a divorce case," a policeman said later, "he stepped on the gas and took off. If he hadn't panicked none of this would have come out."

In the car were $40,000 of tapping equipment and some 100 tapes of bugged conversations. But J. J. Kelly stayed defiantly mute, even when the FBI discovered wiretaps on Rothermel and the homes of three other Hunt Oil executives. Kelly and his lieutenants, Patrick McCann, were confident that "dollar power" would see them through. Instead, they received three years apiece. Furious, they turned State evidence, and proudly disdaining hush money, according to their story — at last named their paymasters.

Bunker and Herbert were brought to court, Texas style, in steel bracelets and chains, to be indicted on wiretapping charges. J. J. Kelly confessed that he'd been "beguiled by men of vast fortunes who merely wanted to escalate their wealth and power."

The Hunts recovered the legal initiative with a suit against Rothermel — who had by now left their father's employ — and two executives associated with him. It was alleged that they siphoned off scores of millions of dollars into dummy companies, and it was simply to trace these funds that the detectives had been hired.

The two executives, named Brown and Currington, protested in court that groundless embezzlement charges had been brought "simply to discredit and coerce us as pawns in the struggle for the Hunt fortune." They also raised some eyebrows by claiming that, on behalf of the Hunts, they'd undertaken numerous clandestine deals involving "holders and seekers of office, labour leaders, professional sports figures."

Then J. J. Kelly sued Bunker and Co. for a whopping $100 million, complaining they'd ruined his reputation and career, even threatened him with force. Not to be left out, the Rothermels stepped in with a $1.6 million suit against the Hunts. Mrs. Rothermel, a psychiatrist's aide, complained of eavesdropping on her patients. Mr. Rothermel, who had access to the old man's files for years, is busy on a book about it all — he'd like the world to know more about "the man who played God."

According to Rothermel, HLH allowed his sons to bring their suits "to keep peace in the family" — a somewhat forlorn hope. Now that his influence has gone, Bunker's instincts will take over. A wealthy, more aggressive chip off the old block, Nelson Bunker Hunt, 48, is the family's most dynamic and push-ful business brain. His gambling streak has lately been channelled into the commodities market for "corners" in silver and sugar, as well as into racehorse owning and breeding on an international scale.

Bunker has seldom vented his political views in public since the hapless day when, by chance, he sponsored a full-page "announcement" in the local press on the morning President Kennedy met his death in Dallas. It predicted that the day would come when U.S. citizens would no longer be allowed to own guns, thus preventing them from rising up against future oppressors. The ad also accused JFK of forcing taxpayers to subsidize Communism around the world. In the subsequent uproar the FBI spirited Bunker out of town for his own safety. These days (unspecified) favors. "Our clients performed," they say, "but indictments were handed down anyway." The deal, according to Hunt Oil sources, was a "perfectly proper" trade-off. Wiretap charges would be dropped if the Hunts gave the FBI a list of Al Fatah agents in the U.S.

At that time, in 1972, the Nixonites had evidence that Al Fatah was seeking a foothold in America. They even feared an attempt on Golda Meir, who was soon to visit New York. The FBI had burgled the offices of the Arab Information Centre in Dallas, where the Hunts had contacts with what success is not known. Next the FBI turned to the Hunts, who were in a position to know Al Fatah personnel in the U.S. Bunker had high-level friends in the Arab world, who were trying to help him dissuade Libya's Colonel against him be dropped. Through clouds of barbed wire, Hunt senior could be heard blasting the Administration for "trailing our flag in the dust."

Soon after this encounter, Bunker met the Justice Department's new boss, Richard Kleindienst, and, it is alleged, discussed the trade-off with him over lunch at the ranch of their old friend Senator James Eastland, head of the powerful Senate Judiciary Committee. If the Nixonites got their Al Fatah list — and many here believe it was instrumental in helping the FBI foil a bomb plot against Mrs. Meir in March 1973, when three cars stuffed with explosives were discovered before they could be set off — why did they default on the deal?

The answer is Watergate. Nixon flinched from involvement in another scandal and cover-up, especially for the Hunts, the super-patriots and arch-enemies of the Nixon-Kissinger detente. As for that Libyan oil, it had been expropriated by Qadhafi anyway in May 1973, and the White House had no intention of looking for more trouble.

With the fall of Richard Kleindienst over Watergate in April 1973, the Justice Department under its new broom started a clean-up. An inquiry into the Hunt affair and the alleged trade-off began. A Grand Jury, having secretly heard out the actors in this Texan melodrama, is preparing up to a score of indictments against politicians and others both here and in Washington D.C.

For Bunker, it's been one disaster after another. He has lost Arab friends by trying to win immunity via the Al Fatah list. He has lost oil holdings which he estimates as worth $25 million. He could yet go to jail on those wire-tapping charges. And, as Paul Rothermel predicted, the old man's will leaves the bulk of his estate to his second wife and family, including his home and all his shares in Hunt Oil.

Bunker might contest the will, but then there is the clause that H. L. Hunt, wily to the last, inserted in that document as his own Catch 22: anyone who attempts to challenge it "loses and forfeits all right and title" to what he has been given.

It's GASTRO-MAJIC time up on Turtle Creek.

"obscene profits" throughout the oil industry. Immense reserves await tapping, when prices soar still further. All this is in addition to real estate holdings, timber, canning plant, drug companies, ranchland and cattle.

Hunt refused to bid for anything he couldn't own outright. He must have absolute control: no pesky shareholders, directors, balance sheets for public disclosure. Hunt-Oil was a private company, and so were its affairs. "Rich men are ill-advised to call attention to their wealth in any way," he snapped, when asked why there were no Hunt foundations for health, education, the arts. Urged to save the Dallas Symphony Orchestra from financial collapse last spring, he scratched his chin and asked, "Save it for what?" The symphony fell silent in mid-season, throwing 86 musicians out of work.

Usually it was a mess of primes and nuts, grown at his Dallas home (an outsize version of George Washington's Mount Vernon mansion, bought as a snip in the depression).

Four years ago the old man's grip on his affairs began to slacken. He was confined first to a wheelchair, tended always by Ruth, then to a hospital bed. The old guard at Hunt Oil began getting orders from plump Vice-President Nelson Bunker, the heir apparent, and his closely allied brother, Herbert.

One executive who resented the change was Paul Rothermel, for 15 years HLH's confidant, bodyguard and whipping boy. Rothermel, a former FBI man and an attorney, had known and admired the second Mrs. Hunt throughout that time. He knew, too well, what she endured. "How the old guy operated

Dreams End in Big Tank

The search for the Northwest Passage — a water route from Europe to Cathay, across the frozen wastes of North America — was one of the great adventure stories of all time, the vain quest of Sir Francis Drake and Henry Hudson, finally discovered at the turn of this century by Arctic explorer Roald Amundsen.

With a prosaic thud, the commercial consequence of this adventure was covered on the shipping-news pages recently under the headline: "Waters Off Jersey Will Become Terminus of Northwest Passage." Ice-breaking supertankers will one day be bringing millions of barrels of Alaskan crude oil down through the bays and seaways of Canada to offshore terminals near Cape May.

Once again we see the pragmatizing of a dream, the glory of exploration ending up in a big tank in New Jersey. But the search for the Northwest Passage always had a commercial impetus; what has happened to adventure for adventure's sake, the sweetening of life by risk that rejects the practical application of exploration or the commercial embodiment of Evel Knievel?

Sir Edmund Hillary, who led the expedition that conquered Mt. Everest, spoke of adventure the other day delivering the Frank Nelson Doubleday lecture at the Smithsonian Institute. "I have often resented the way that science has sometimes been introduced to justify an interesting adventure — particularly if a lot of money is required."

"Adventure is worthwhile for its own sake," said the man who had just come back from scaling some peaks in the Antarctic. "How many of us have been stimulated by some glorious effort that had no conceivable economic or scientific reward?

Not many of us. The remnants of America's space program, a great adventure drowned in the sinking of America's national spirit after Vietnam, is today justified merely on military, diplomatic and applied-science grounds.

When John F. Kennedy said "America has tossed its cap over the wall of space" — and what a beautiful figure of speech that was, of a kid presenting himself with a challenge — he did not say that space foods designed for astronauts would be great in school lunch boxes, or that satellite reconnaissance would make possible future arms control agreements.

Essentially, the object was to shoot for the moon, which would not only enhance our national pride at beating the Russians there but lift our spirits at the thought of what puny man could do. But then we became self-conscious about our success, and embarrassed at spending so much money on pure adventure when there were mouths to feed on earth.

Accordingly, our space program today is justified on practical terms. The linkup of Soviet and U.S. space capsules scheduled for July 17 is said to be important for detente, and to show other nations who the real superpowers are. The probe of the solar system by Pioneer II is said to be finding useful data on radiation belts and whatnot mumbo-jumbo.

The reason we have poked a hole in the sky with a rocket is that we are as curious as hell to find out what is out there. Adventure is danger faced for the sake of curiosity, the rise to a challenge because it's there. Such self-seeking ennobles the human spirit.

Why, then, is there not great public fascination with the half-billion mile flight of Pioneer II to Jupiter, wonderment at its grazing the Jovian clouds and then using Jupiter's gravity to "crack the whip" and head for Saturn, a half-million miles beyond?

The answer, of course, is that there are no human beings aboard and there can be no adventure without danger. But one day there will be men aboard (and women, and blacks, and young people, and ethnics) and this whole world will hold its breath as the human spirit reaches up and touches another whole world.

Viewed from centuries hence, these explorations will be the big news of our time, and our descendants will be amused at our self-consciousness at heavy costs of adventure without practical payoffs. Why couldn't we see that such contests and heroics provided the necessary moral equivalent of war?

That is why we can hope that NASA's publicists do not equip this year's astronauts with link-up messages like "this is a giant step for detente" or "the march of scientific progress is irreversible."

Let our adventurer crawl through the passageway, stick out his hand and say something more appropriate to the gloriously impractical spirit of the occasion. Like: "Dr. Livingstone, I presume?"

Waiters Won't Strip

VANCOUVER (CP) — The refusal of his waiters to serve beer in the buff has prevented the proprietor of a local hotel from making his own public statement on male-female equality.

Ed Klingbeil said Wednesday that he asked his staff a few days ago if they still wanted to carry out the beer parlor experiment but "they said they didn't want to lower themselves that much."

"They also figured that if they ran around with nothing on, somebody would sooner or later start grabbing," said Klingbeil in an interview.

The hotel proprietor said he wasn't interested in attracting more business with the nude waiters, but that he only wanted to see if his equality test would stand up. Previously he said two of his four waiters had agreed to serve in the nude for a couple of days beginning Jan. 1.

Klingbeil said he did not contact the liquor administration board of his plan, and he did not receive communication from the board after his plan became public several weeks ago.

Chutists Take Icy Plunge in English Bay

VANCOUVER (CP) — Plunging into the 44-degree waters of English Bay was almost a welcome relief to a few of those participating in the 56th annual Polar Bear Club swim Wednesday.

Dave Matheson, 20, of North Vancouver, was one of six members of the Abbotsford, B.C., sports parachute centre who decided to take the plunge into the sea from 3,600 feet under sunny skies.

Matheson and his friends had to wrap themselves in sleeping bags to keep warm during the 20-minute flight from Abbotsford in their light aircraft. They also had to circle the target area for half an hour before bailing out.

"The air temperature was 30 degrees (16 degrees colder than on the ground), but the chill factor with the doors off must have made it below zero," Matheson said following the jump. "It was bloody cold — we only had on cut-offs and our chutes. We couldn't wait to get out of the plane."

The hardy parachutists made their splash-down among pleasure craft anchored about 150 yards off shore.

Meanwhile, on the ground, about 5,000 less adventurous merry-makers lined the sidewalks and beach before the central bath house and watched about 650 bathers emerge from the water shivering and running for their blankets. The dippers ranged in age from Tiffany Jarva, 3, to Bill Powell, 78.

Among those who entered the water was the queen of the Polar Bears, Ivy Grantstrom, 62, who has participated in the event since 1928. She is partially blind and was led to the water by her grandson, Richard Martin, 18, who decided to remain on the shore.

Eight lifeguards were on duty to advise swimmers to leave the water when their lips turned blue. To reduce the risk of chills or exposure, bathers were limited to 30 minutes or less in the water.

But there was at least one case of hypothermia, the medical term for dangerously low body temperatures.

Report Lists Hazards

SEATTLE (AP) — Residents who feel secure living in Washington State may be a bit shaken by a report from the ad hoc committee on geologic hazards.

The report lists average years damages of $2 million from earthquakes, $10 million from landslides and $25 million from flooding. It also suggests legislation aimed at reducing the damage from natural disasters.

The committee is asking the state legislature to form a state-wide advisory council on geologic hazards to propose specific safeguards like flood control work.

Another proposal calls for publication of up-to-date information on soil stability for developers and prospective home-buyers.

Other suggestions include a list of possible geologic hazards in environmental impact statements, laws to provide inspection of dams not currently subject to federal inspection and all-risk insurance against damage from geologic hazards.

Employers Forecast Mid-Year Recovery

VANCOUVER (CP) — If the world economy does not slacken beyond present expectations, a Canadian recovery should become evident in the last quarter of 1975, the Employers' Council of British Columbia says.

"The outlook for British Columbia is more negative than that for the rest of Canada," the council says in a study released today.

The study, which covers the international, Canadian and B.C. situations, was prepared after discussions with Vancouver economists, senior financial officers and industrial relations officers. A study by the council's board followed these sessions.

"This outlook is a combined effort of some of the most knowledgeable minds in the province," council president William Hamilton says in the report.

"We have acknowledged and accepted the fact that most Western industrial nations are in a recession," says Hamilton. "The greatest challenge now before us is to ensure that a psychology of gloom does not pervade individuals, businesses and governments."

"If this happens, the road back will be steeper and more difficult than it need be. The watchword for 1975 should be 'think positive'."

On the international scene, the study says most Western industrial nations are in a recession, worldwide inflation should recede from the mid-1974 level of 13.5 per cent, worldwide growth is likely to be zero or below in 1975, and the United States gross national product should be zero to minus-one per cent.

In Canada, GNP in real terms should grow by about two per cent in 1975, short-term interest rates should decline modestly, but long-term rates should remain high, the general supply situation should return to normal because of a slackened demand rather than increased production, inflation should be at annual consumer price index rate of nine per cent by late 1975 and recovery shouldn't happen until at least the second half of the year.

The report says British Columbia's outlook is more negative than that for the rest of Canada.

Unemployment will be at the seasonally adjusted rate of eight per cent in 1975 and labor negotiations will be difficult.

Capital spending will not increase substantially except by utility and government sectors and inflation will stay with the national figure to eight to nine per cent.

The lumber outlook will be bleak until the second half when shipments may improve slightly but newsprint may decline.

PACIFIC CENTRE PLANS SHELVED

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — Plans for a $21 million Pacific environment centre here have been shelved indefinitely by the federal government, Guy Spencer, project coordinator, said Tuesday.

The proposed development on a 55-acre site near the Lions Gate Bridge, was deferred because of budget priorities, Spencer said.

He said he and his planning staff will be phased out early in 1975.

Theft Charges For Escaper

WINNIPEG (CP) — A man who escaped from a prison in Matsqui, Aug. 21, while serving a 15-year prison term for armed robbery has been arrested and charged with five recent armed robberies of downtown banks.

Robert Ernest Vacher, 31, was also charged with possession of a restricted weapon, after appearing in provincial court Tuesday.

He was remanded to Jan. 7.

Youth Found Dead

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP)

A North Vancouver youth was found dead — apparently by hanging — in his cell at West Vancouver police headquarters Wednesday after being picked up the night before for being drunk in a public place.

Police Chief Joe Hornell said Gary Low, 17, was arrested Tuesday night at a shopping centre in an intoxicated condition after he refused to leave the area and go home.

Police went to the shopping centre in answer to a complaint of a disturbance at a bowling alley.

Hornell said Low was checked in his cell at 10:30 p.m. and again at midnight when he was asleep on a bunk. Further checks of the jail area during the night showed everything in order. Then, at 11 a.m., when officers went to release him, they found him hanging from his own shirt from the cell bars. Efforts to revive him were unsuccessful.

Coroner Fred Adames said later that inquests are mandatory in jail deaths, but no date had been set.

Garage Kickbacks 'Hiking Repair Costs'

TORONTO (CP) — Kickbacks in the automotive service business are inflating motorists' repair costs, eroding independence of garagemen and have the potential to protect inefficient suppliers, according to the Globe and Mail.

The newspaper says that some parts-and-accessories dealers pay some of companies a percentage of the value of everything they bill to the companies' service station operators.

William Burkimer, a regional representative of the dealers' Ontario Retail Gasoline Association said: "It's so common—kickbacks up to 10 per cent—that people don't even talk about it any more."

Denny Scriven, an owner of Spooner Auto Supplies Ltd., Mail said it is not company policy to force lessees to deal with selected suppliers and local representatives are wrong if they are using such pressures.

said his Toronto company lost about $500,000 in business annually when it stopped paying a six-per-cent fee to an oil company in 1969 and only one of seven or eight of that company's stations continued doing business with Spooner.

of Baker and Segal, Ottawa parts wholesalers, said his company paid a five-per-cent fee to an oil company for about 10 years and just recently stopped. "We haven't lost any accounts yet, but maybe it's too early," Baker said.

Chaplin, Wodehouse Among 32 Knighted

LONDON (AP) — Knight-hoods for two old expatriate masters of humor, film comedian Charlie Chaplin and novelist P. G. Wodehouse, headed Queen Elizabeth's New Year's honors list.

The Queen knighted 30 others on Wednesday, including Roger Bannister, the first man to run a four-minute mile.

Chaplin, 85-year-old creator of the Little Tramp, was at his home outside Geneva when the honors list was published. His wife told reporters he was very tired and would not see anyone before next week.

Wodehouse, still turning out a book a year at 93 about Bertie Wooster and his valet Jeeves, received reporters at his home on Long Island, N.Y. He said the award, after widespread condemnation of him in Britain because the Nazis used some humorous broadcasts he made for CBS while interned in Berlin during the Second World War, "is a graceful act on her part; it closes up the whole thing."

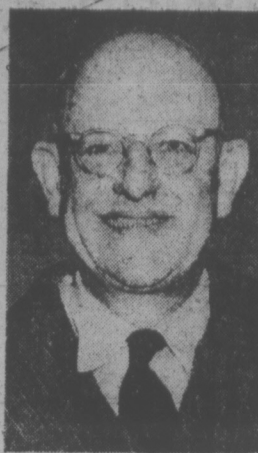

Chaplin has not lived in England since 1914 but has remained a British subject and now will be Sir Charles Chaplin. Wodehouse has not been in England for 35 years and has been a U.S. citizen since 1953. His citizenship will prevent him using his new title.

Chaplin was discovered by a movie producer in 1914 while touring the U.S. in a vaudeville show. His mastery of comic pantomime in such films as The Gold Rush and The Kid made him one of the most celebrated figures in movie history.

He left the United States in 1952 at the height of the cold war and swore never to return after his visa was revoked because of accusations of immorality and links with the Communists. Despite his vow, he came back for a visit in 1972 to receive a special Oscar and ovals at ceremonies in Hollywood and New York.

Wodehouse's specialty has been the spoofing of aristocratic English country life between the wars. His prodigious output includes 96 novels, 300 short stories, 500 essays and articles, 18 plays and the books for 35 musical comedies.

"It's extraordinary," he said of the knighthood to Chaplin. "Wasn't he married to too many people? They're always very touchy about that."

C.A.B. REVISES FARES

WASHINGTON (AP) — Airlines in the United States are being forced by the Civil Aeronautics Board to raise fares on short-distance flights while cutting the price of long-distance travel.

The decision also will require airlines to increase the difference in price between first-class and coach travel and to lower fares passengers pay when their trip requires flights on more than one airline.

The fare changes stem from a board ruling last March that a system of pricing domestic air fares was unjust and discriminatory because the price did not accurately reflect the actual cost-per-mile incurred by the airlines.

An appeal by airlines of the March decision was rejected by the CAB on Monday and it ordered the changes to begin taking effect after 120 days.

The board set out a complicated fare formula which it said would cover the actual cost of flight. Under the formula, airlines will charge a terminal fee of $13.85 plus 7.79 cents a mile for the first 500 miles, 5.94 cents a mile for each mile travelled from 501 to 1,500 miles; and 5.71 cents a mile for each mile travelled over 1,501 miles.

The change in first-class fares will be phased in over a two-year period, the board said. Those fares, now about 130 per cent of coach fares, will jump to 141 per cent of coach fares in four months. They will be increased by the end of the two years to cover the complete cost of first-class service, which runs as much as 165 per cent of coach service on some flights.

U.S.-Wide Oil Strike Looming

DENVER (AP) — An industry-wide strike of oil workers in the United States is likely unless oil companies offer cost-of-living raises to offset the inflation the companies helped create, union officials say.

Most contracts affecting the 60,000 members of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers International Union expire at midnight Jan. 7, and union President A. F. Groszpiorn says contract talks now are under way at most of the union's approximately 400 locals.

The Denver-based union prepared for a strike earlier this month by placing full-page advertisements in many major newspapers explaining the union's stand.

The ads, noting increased oil company profits in recent years, said the union's money demands can be met by the industry without raising the price of oil products.

"It would take a 143-per-cent wage increase to raise the cost of a gallon of gasoline just one cent," the ad said.

Groszpiorn said the union is seeking a 25-per-cent raise during each year of a three-year contract.

He said the companies are offering a 10.3-per-cent increase the first year and seven per cent the second year of a two-year contract.

"The cost of living has risen 12.1 per cent in the past year and they offer 10 1/4 per cent when their own prices have contributed substantially in this cost-of-living increase," Groszpiorn said. "So we have a very ludicrous offer."

The average wage in the industry is about $5.95 an hour. The union is seeking an increase of about $1.50 an hour each year. The union also wants a one-time 50-cent-an-hour boost in the contract's first year to help catch up with inflation in the past year.

But Groszpiorn said a proposed cost-of-living escalation clause is likely to be the hang-up that could lead to a strike, but a strike would be directed only at companies refusing to grant the clause.

"The position taken by management indicates they are unequivocally opposed to a cost-of-living clause," he said.

FERRY PLUNGE FATAL

NANAIMO (CP) — Antonas Baravkas, 49, of Nanaimo, was killed after falling from the CPR ferry Princess of Vancouver at a wharf here Wednesday.

RCMP said the man, a crew member aboard the ferry, apparently drowned after he fell into the water from the ferry's passenger entrance while helping New Year's Eve celebrants leave the boat following a cruise.

Minority Of Men?

REGINA (CP) — There are more than three million cattle in Saskatchewan, an average of 3.3 head for every resident. Saskatchewan ranks third among Canadian provinces in the cattle count, behind Alberta and Ontario.

MACKENZIE KING

PM 'Chatted' With Dead King...

Times News Services
OTTAWA — The personal diaries of William Lyon Mackenzie King, spanning 13 years of his political career from 1932 to 1944, were opened to the public for the first time Wednesday.

His diaries from 1932 to the end of 1931 were open to the public previously.

A preliminary glimpse into some of the thousands of handwritten and typed pages disclose much about Mackenzie King's curious private life.

"They are a fascinating juxtaposition of high matters of state with details of King's mystical visions, encounters with spiritualism and the love he lavished on his pet terrier named Pat.

For example, in September of 1938, when war threatened Europe and King was suffering from arthritic pains, pencilled diary notes about a seance has King asking his deceased mother: "Will I be able to sleep tonight?"

His mother replies from the spirit world that he will and adds: "Canada needs you. Long ago God had a plan for you. God will help and guide you."

According to the diaries Mackenzie King believed he communicated through spiritualist experiences with man-arches and commoners, family and famous.

"I was amazed when the King came," the late prime minister says of one seance in 1938. He was referring to King George V of England, who had died the year before.

He also saw symbolism in numbers — "while seven is a mystical number, tens are evidence of completeness" — and looked for messages in dreams and daytime visions.

His closest companions in spiritualism were banker God-froy Patteson and his wife

Joan, neighbors who were close confidantes and almost daily companions.

In the diaries, the companionship of Joan Patteson and their shared spiritual experiences figure in curious counterpoint to public affairs, political matters and mundane personal events.

"After dinner Joan played the piano, beautifully," King writes of a visit with his pet dog Pat to the Patteson home on Elgin Street in Ottawa Nov. 13, 1938.

"When we came to hymns and I asked for Lead Kindly Light, mother's hymn, Pat got up off the floor, came onto the sofa and rubbed his little head on my trouser legs... I feel more and more he is a little spirit dog revealing dear mother's continued presence to me.

Earlier in the same entry, he refers to earlier visions — one of a dragon across the ceiling, another of his late mother in a lighted upper window.

At one point in a section of diaries entered in black loose-leaf binders are records of seances, set up in King's handwriting in the style of script for a play.

American Airlines Takes Off At N.Y.

The New York stock market gained sharply and steadily in a rally evidently spurred by the lukewarm initial response from Americans to the legal right to own gold. Trading was moderate.

The advance marked a continuation of the market's upturn Tuesday when the Dow rose 12.99 on the first day of legal sales of gold bullion to Americans since 1933.

Reports that no rush to buy gold had materialized either Tuesday or Thursday carried with them the suggestion that the public was less bearish about the economic outlook than some observers had feared, analysts said.

Market analysts also pointed out that the pressure of year-end tax selling had been removed from the market with the start of the new year, while some reinvestment demand might well have spilled over into Thursday's session.

American Airlines was the most active issue, up 1/2 to 53 1/2. An 85,200-share block traded at 53 1/2.

Point-plus gainers on the active list included Texaco, up 1 1/2 to 22 1/2, Chesapeake, up 1 1/2 to 33 1/2, and Procter and Gamble 1 1/2 to 33 1/2.

The Financial Times index was off 11.9 to 149.5 in mid-session trading.

Burmah, one of Britain's largest multinational firms, has announced that it has had to revise its full-year performance for 1974 sharply downward.

The government said Tuesday it will give financial aid to the company.

Canadian issues on the London market were slightly higher in light trading.

Stumbling U.S. Auto Industry Like Fighter Getting Pounded

By WILLIAM GREIDER
DETROIT (WP) — The stumbling giant of motor city is like an aging prize fighter getting clobbered, dimly conscious that nothing in his future will be quite so glorious as the past.

Right now, it hurts so much, it's hard to think that far ahead. The new cars are stacking up, unsold, all over town, at the city airport and the state fairgrounds. In the morning fog workers form dreary lines in the company parking lots to pick up their last pay cheques.

Right now, according to industry officials, about 225,000 men and women are out of work across the industry, and another 100,000 will join them by March. Some of those people won't be called back for a long time some perhaps never.

At Chrysler, the weakest of the Big Three, a 12-2 day supply of new cars is backed up and, unless sales pick up dramatically and soon, Chrysler could keep most of its plants shut for the rest of the model year. Executive gossip inside the other companies wonders whether Chrysler might join Studebaker and Packard and LaSalle in automotive heaven.

The governor of Michigan launched his own "buy-a-car" campaign. General Motors, the behemoth, ran a series of "buyer confidence" ads which inadvertently revealed how scared GM is.

Do something, Detroit tells Washington almost every day, or our illness will become a national disease.

For the rest of the U.S., where the love-hate for Detroit is so strong, this melancholy spectacle might seem mildly compelling, even satisfying to some. Except like it or not, what happens to the automobile happens eventually to all of us. The long-term change that confronts Detroit really means hard choices for the nation.

Sooner or later, the businessmen here assume their industry will recover from its pneumonia. It always has. Even now there are false signals around town that cleverly suggest that the "good old days" will be back, just like before.

The new cars that aren't selling are the small ones, the Vegas and Pintos, which are unloved stepchildren in a town that made its fortune selling heavy horsepower in box boats.

On Clark Street the Cadillac assembly line is running at full schedule, nine-hour shifts and no layoffs, an elegant reassurance to the past as the big cars roll off the line like mammoth tinkertoes, 54 new ones an hour, two-and-a-half tons each, Cottillion White and Roxana Red and Jennifer Blue.

"I got a Chevy myself," said Leon Kozemchak, 20 years at work on the Cadillac line. "If I had the money, I'd buy one of these. Ten thousand dollars is a lot to put in the automobile for a working man. I guess we're a luxury, but people keep buying them."

The future got turned around last fall, an aberration that has ready reasons. The people who generally buy the smaller cars are the same folks hurt first and scared most by the nation's economic trauma.

The faithful Cadillac customers, the doctors and bankers and undertakers, are still buying. Further, when the auto industry prepared for a further surge toward small cars, it jacked up the small-car prices proportionately higher, a move that made the intermediates seem like a better buy this season.

In any case, the gossip along the Cadillac assembly line is about the new "small" Cadillac that is coming out in early spring. "It is supposed to be two feet shorter," Kozemchak said.

"They say it's going to have good gas mileage," Vincent Rainish, another worker, added.

"We like to think of it as competing with the Mercedes," the Cadillac public relations man said.

Competing with the Mercedes? A "small" Cadillac? It sounds like advertising flummery, a ludicrous contradiction in terms. Still, the evolving Cadillac will be much smaller and lighter and, if GM can sell that to people who want Cadillacs, it can sell it to anyone.

What does the future look like? Listen to these voices from the town where the giant lives:

"What we'd like to do," said Pete Estes, the hearty, voiced engineer who is president of GM, "is get more weight out than the other

Additional Lay-Offs Seen For Chrysler

DETROIT (AP) — Chrysler Corp. spokesman would neither confirm nor deny today a report that the company planned a new round of layoffs that will keep 10,000 workers off their jobs temporarily.

"I can't say whether it is right or wrong," said the spokesman. "There will be some sort of new production schedule released by Friday."

He said the country's No. 3

Trade Loss To Result

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's planned reduction of oil exports next year will result in a $700-million trade loss for the country, Jerry McAfee, president of Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. of Toronto, has predicted.

McAfee said the cut in oil exports would mean a $400-million reduction in cash flow for the Canadian oil industry "at a time when every available dollar is needed for energy investments."

He said the country's average oil export rate for all of 1975 could be 725,000 barrels a day, down from 890,000 this year, if exports are reduced to 650,000 barrels daily by the middle of 1975. Energy Minister Donald MacDonald has mentioned the possibility of such a reduction.

Imports of crude oil were expected to increase from

DEAF WORKERS SOUND POLICY

SEATTLE (AP) — A Boeing company employee has come up with a new but honest twist to the old alarm clock story. He was late to work one morning and explained that his stroke light hadn't gone off.

He was one of the company's growing number of deaf workers.

Their assignment to high noise level jobs has worked out well both for them and for Boeing. The deaf workers have no problem working in high noise conditions — such as riveting — but more important perhaps is the fact that they can easily communicate with each other in spite of the noise.

Last July Boeing hired six deaf men as trainees as part of the firm's Affirmative Ac-

MB ACQUIRES INTEREST IN FLA. FIRM

VANCOUVER (CP) — MacMillan Bloedel Ltd. has confirmed its acquisition of 28 per cent of Industrial American Corp. of Jacksonville, Fla., to which it has sold its interest in Energen Ltd. of San Diego, Calif.

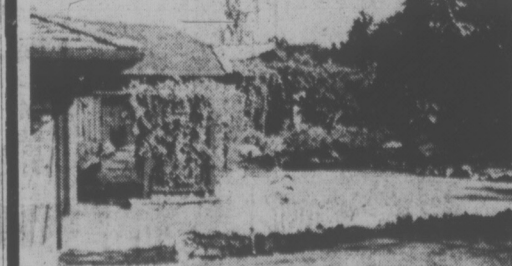

Conclusion of the deal was announced after tentative agreement was reached in September.

Energen is a manufacturer of forced vortex burners which use wood waste to generate power. Industrial American, with annual sales of about $30 million, is a manufacturer and installer of custom-designed systems treating and handling forest products and is also a land developer.

Four Steps to Marketing Plan

By R. J. CURRIE

P. S. Ross and Partners
In most companies with full-fledged marketing departments the preparation of a formalized annual marketing plan has become an accepted way of life. There is no reason, however, why the same process cannot be adopted by almost all marketing-oriented organizations.

The procedure for planning involves the following four basic steps:
—a review and analysis of the current marketing situation —defining problems and opportunities —developing planning assumptions

—setting objectives and developing strategies.

The degree of detail involved in the review and analysis of a company's marketing position will vary from firm to firm. Most companies will want to include a statistical review of market trends, an appraisal of their present position in the industry, an examination of product line successes and failures, and an appraisal of previous promotional efforts.

An obviously important source of information for analysis is the ultimate decision-maker: the customer. Whether the company can gather customer reaction on an annual basis depends on the product, the market, and the distribution system. Certainly, customer response reflected in the views of salesmen, distributors or brokers should be within reasonable reach.

In an industry where trade or consumer publications play a part, feedback on both the company's own products and the products of competitors can be gained from that source. Certainly almost every firm receives information through informal channels as to how it is perceived in the market place.

A key ingredient in making use of this and other information is management's willingness or ability to listen perceptively to both positive and negative information concerning the firm. There is a requirement for the capability of rationally analyzing adverse criticism, getting additional information if needed, and accepting both positive and negative data as inputs to the planning process.

When it comes to defining problems and opportunities, experience has shown that a thorough job of information gathering and analysis can reveal numerous basic problems which a company must face in its marketing concepts. Some examples of these include: a lack of knowledge of what consumers really want and what influences them in their purchases; wrong use of sales promotion techniques; costly but ineffective marketing research operations; a too highly priced product in relation to competition; disagreement as to future product development; disagreement among management as to advertising copy and media strategies; sales management ineffectiveness; low product quality and incomplete distribution.

In reviewing the marketing situation during the planning period and in preparing the following year's plan, it is very useful to review a number of assumptions that need to be considered concerning the economy as a whole and the industrial competitive climate.

Whether the firm is dealing with an industrial or consumer market, with the public sector, or with a combination of these, the current and prospective economic environment almost certainly will have a significant impact on the market. The key requirement is to be able to establish assumptions relevant economic and competitive intelligence, and to respond appropriately.

There are two main goals in the marketing structure between producer and consumer. These are (1) specific quantitative goals such as the sales forecast, predicted market share or specified price increase and (2) descriptive market objectives such as the intent to enter a new market, a desire to introduce a new product or a plan to change the method of distribution of a product.

Typically, the annual marketing plan might call for the following goals to be achieved during the planning period: —total sales forecast, by products, dollars and market share

—product line requirements
—new products needed, improvements in present products, phasing out obsolete ones —development of particular markets — increased penetration of weak markets, entrance into new ones or segments of existing markets —pricing objectives — increases or reductions to meet particular market situations or enter competitors' strongest markets.

Finally, there are miscellaneous goals such as improving service, opening new sales outlets or conducting special market studies and employing additional salesmen.

Managers who have done a thorough job of reviewing their marketing situation and setting specific objectives usually find that they are much more innovative in developing new strategies than they would have been without such an analysis.

There are many reasons why some marketing plans fail. Among the most common are a lack of a real plan, lack of factuality in situation analyses and lack of top management support. There are many "ersatz" plans such as "bold" sales forecasts, "blue sky" goals, inappropriate programmes, and the like. But all of these have one thing in common: they fail to produce results. Additional reasons include the preparation of a plan without sufficient participation by the people who will have to execute it, unrealistic goals, lack of customer orientation and unanticipated competitive moves.

Good marketing planning may not ensure one hundred per cent success but it can greatly increase the chances and certainly minimize the risk of failure.

MANAGEMENT MEMO

TRADING VALUE SLIPS BY 30% DURING 1974

TORONTO (CP) — The value of trading on Canadian stock markets dropped nearly 30 per cent during 1974 from a record level in 1973.

In addition, total volume slipped about 13 per cent from the previous year.

Figures from Canada's five exchanges, compiled by the Toronto Stock Exchange, show that about 1.4 billion listed shares changed hands for a total value of $6.6 billion compared with 1.6 billion shares traded in 1973 worth about $9.4 billion.

The total dollar value traded on the Toronto Stock Exchange during 1974 declined 32.3 per cent to $4.5 billion from $6.7 billion in 1973. It represented about 68.6 per cent of the total value of trading on all Canadian exchanges.

Volume of shares traded at Toronto dropped 14.3 per cent to 567.2 million, contributing 41.8 per cent of the total Canadian volume.

As evidenced by the statistics, a steady flow of gloomy economic news took a heavy toll on stock markets in 1974 as prices slumped amid dwindling trading activity.

Analysts said Canadian markets generally followed the lead of American markets which reacted gloomily to the effects of inflation and the eventual onslaught of the recession.

Closer to home, a dispute between the federal and provincial governments over resource taxation caused significant losses for mining and oil issues.

A total of 226.9 million shares were traded at Montreal for a total value of $1,599.5 million, representing about 16.7 per cent of the total volume traded and 24.3 per cent of the total value on Canadian markets.

total value of $461.0 million was about seven per cent of the over-all value and 556.4 million shares traded captured about 41 per cent of the market.

On the Alberta exchange, 6.3 million shares exchanged hands for a total value of $5.7 million. That represented about 1 per cent of the total value and 0.4 per cent of the total volume throughout the country last year.

At the smallest exchange in Winnipeg, 1.2 million shares were worth $600,000 and accounted for less than 0.1 per cent of the total value.

Volkswagen Lays Off 86,000

WOLFSBURG, Germany (AP) — Volkswagen, the largest West German automaker, today laid off 86,000 of its 111,000 domestic workers until Jan. 10.

The layoffs were attributed by a company spokesman to a general slump in the automobile industry.

A spokesman said foreign prices of VW products will not change but domestic prices will be increased 3.5 per cent. Volkswagen went into the red last year for the first time since the Second World War. After chalking up an $80 million profit in 1973, analysts say the firm may report a 1974 loss as high as $200 million.

During 1974, the work force was reduced by 15,000 — from 126,000 on Jan. 1 to the present 111,000 — through attrition and voluntary retirement, a spokesman said.

$ EXCHANGE

In Victoria today purchase of U.S. funds in terms of Canadian dollars was 95.0 U.S. by the Royal Bank with 95.5 for cheques and 97.0 for coins. Selling rates were 95.5 for cheques and 99.0 for cash.

GOLD

LONDON (AP) — Closing gold prices in U.S. dollars an ounce: London, 175.50; Paris, 186.00; Frankfurt, 186.20; Zurich, 186.00; Hong Kong, 177.00; Beirut, 5.720 a kilo.

Texaco Finds Oil In North Sea

LONDON (AP) — Texaco Inc. says it has made a significant discovery of North Sea oil in a test drilling rig about 116 miles northeast of Aberdeen Scotland.

Texaco North Sea U.K., a subsidiary of Texaco, said the test well flowed at the rate of 7,246 barrels a day, but that it was still too early to estimate the over-all size of the find.

Oil industry sources say the flow rate compares favorably with the capacities of some major wells in the Middle East.

Meanwhile, the well-informed Financial Times says that several oil companies have halted spending on North Sea exploration until the British government clarifies how it intends to carry out plans to increase its take from the oil revenues. There have been reports that the government may introduce partial state ownership.

The newspaper says some U.S. companies are considering a complete pullout unless the government's terms are satisfactory.

Britain, which consumes about 2.2 million barrels of oil a day, hopes to become self-sufficient in oil by the early 1980s through development of the North Sea fields. Economic planners think that should ease the country's economic difficulties because imports of expensive Middle East oil would no longer be necessary.

Any slowdown in exploration and development might delay the time when the country reaches self-sufficiency.

CALGARY LIVESTOCK

CALGARY (CP) — Receipts to 11 a.m. from the Calgary Public Stockyards totalled about 500 head, mostly steers, heifers and cows.

Steers met a narrow demand on dull trading from local and eastern buyers. Trade on slaughter heifers and cows was good with a moderate demand. All classes of steers met a dull demand with sales to 46.10. Slaughter heifers traded steady with sales to 36.30. All classes of cows sold 50 cents higher with sales to 21.25.

Steers A1, 2, 44.50-46, A3-42-44.50, A4-40-42, Heifers A1, A2, 34-36.25, A3, 32-34; Cows D1, 2-18.50-21, D3-16.50-18.50, D4-12-6.50.

There were too few feeder cattle and stock calves sold to establish a market. There were no hogs sold to 11 a.m.

Fame: A Rose Upon A Dead Man's Chest

A new year, a fresh look, so out with the old... and boy, what manner of stuff and nonsense gets put away for another look another day!

And so, from a seemingly bottomless drawer, some leftovers, such as a clipping from the Winnipeg Free Press that accompanied a note from a subscriber who penned: "I happen to like my hockey a little on the tough side, but not dirty, and I thought this rule from the Winnipeg Minor Hockey Association book might be an answer to some of the problems with the youngsters if it isn't already in existence here."

FIGHTING AND FISTICUFFS: Any player engaging in fighting or fisticuffs shall be assessed a major penalty, a game misconduct penalty and an automatic suspension for the next two scheduled games. For the second occurrence of this infraction by a player during the season the automatic suspension will be for five games. A third incident in the season will result in an indefinite suspension for special ruling.

Then there was the query regarding betting and gambling, and what is the difference? Whoa there, boy, there's no definite opinion here as sometimes even the courts can't agree. But there is one general rule that may suffice. It was printed in a New York law journal some time ago and in effect, said: Betting on oneself in a game of skill is not gambling. Betting on others is gambling.

And a fish story. Ready? Well, it seems that in Brixham, England, some members of a yacht club claim they saw a fish kill a seagull. It happened this way. When the seagull dived to grab a fish in the harbour, it was the other way about. The fish grabbed the seagull, pulled it beneath the surface and drowned it. Next?

And in regard to some queries regarding nominees for the Victoria Sports Celebrity Dinner awards, honoring the top people in sport in 1974 and which will be made on the second Monday in March at the Empress, please don't hesitate if you feel there is someone who is worthy of the honor who might otherwise be overlooked. A note here, or to any member of the committee, complete with the necessary details, of course, will suffice. But please don't tarry as the committee in charge of the final selections will be commencing its considerations shortly. Tickets for the dinner will soon be available.

A note, too, from a cricket fan, Australian variety, obviously, who besides deploring the coverage given his favorite sport here, tells the story of how the Aussie papers played up the fact that England, in an effort to bolster its test side, had sent an urgent note for veteran Colin Cowdrey to fly out from London and help prop up the sagging fortunes of the English. Cowdrey is 41 years of age and that prompted a cartoonist to depict two Aussie players watching the entrance of an English batsman with the comment: "Stone the crows, sport, the Boms have flown in another oldtimer." The figure approaching the wicket was the legendary black-bearded W. G. Grace, who died in 1915.

There is the acknowledgment here too of the fitting Christmas message from Jimmy Ball, who will be recalled as a member of Canada's Sports Hall of Fame and one of the country's superior runners of more than a few years ago.

Jim, who is prominently mentioned in one of the fine new sports publications on the market, Canada's Sporting Heroes, sent along the message after reading the book with the apology:

"A little poem I read some 40 years ago — I think it was written by a Mr. Turnbull. The composition may be different, but the thought is there."

And it certainly is. Thanks Jim. It's swell to be a champion, high on the peaks to stand; And all the world comes charging up to greet you by the hand.

But once you have stood upon the top, then all the roads lead down; The very fans who came to cheer, may turn aside and frown.

So while you are the champion, enjoy the thing with zest, Remember, fame is nothing but a rose upon a dead man's chest.

Canada One Win From Title

WINNIPEG (CP) — Ed Stanowski of Regina Pats recorded the first shutout of the world junior hockey tournament Wednesday and moved Canada to within one victory of the world junior hockey title.

Canada scored two goals in the first period and went on to beat Czechoslovakia 3-0 for its fourth straight triumph. In the other game Wednesday, Sweden defeated Finland 5-3 to grab a solid hold on third place in the six-team, round-robin competition.

All teams are idle today with the United States meeting Czechoslovakia Friday in Minneapolis and Sweden going against the Soviet Union in Winnipeg.

"The reason there was a shut-out is that everyone gave 110 per cent. Everyone was keyed up and all the guys were coming back," said Stanowski, who kicked out 49 shots to backstop the Western Canada Hockey League representatives to the victory. The only time he was severely tested was early in the first and second periods and in the final minute of the third when the Canadians were playing two men short.

Mel Bridgman of Victoria Cougars and Bryan Trottier of Lethbridge Broncos, the two leading scorers in the WCHL, each picked up their fourth goals of the tournament. Mark Davidson opened the scoring with his third.

Canada needs only a victory against the defending champion Soviet Union in their final game Sunday to win the championship.

Sweden picked up its second win in three games by scoring a pair of goals less than a minute apart late in the third period.

The goals came after Finland had tied the score in the first minute of the period. Sweden then had a goal disallowed midway through it.

The shot by Joergen Patterson seemed to pass through a hole in the net but the goal was not counted. With both teams on edge, tempers flared soon afterwards with Anders Steen of Sweden and Finland's Tapio Levo squaring off and receiving major penalties.

Rolf Eriksson scored twice for Sweden with Torbjorn Nilsson, Bjorn Johansson and Kent Nilsson getting the others. Matt Hagman, Jari Laiho and Marki Makkonen scored for Finland.

The bigger and more powerful Finns, who held Canada on even terms through almost 60 full minutes on Monday, were continually beaten to the puck by Sweden.

Miroslav Kubera, coach of the Czechoslovakian team, said he was "pleased with the output of the players, but not with the outcome."

"Shooting is a problem of hockey in Czechoslovakia and Europe, not just with this team," he said when asked about his team's production of just two goals in three games.

"We haven't got the punch in front of the net. In the first period we shot at the net 14 times and in the second period eight times, but bore no fruit. It seems Europeans need about 10 shots on goal to put one in."

However, Canadian players only need about five shots to score."

Kubera said the problem is that Europeans often need time to get set for their shots while Canadians and Americans shoot the puck almost instantly.

The Irish Were Up So Oklahoma's In

By The Associated Press

Notre Dame upset Alabama 13-11 in the Orange Bowl on Wednesday night, spoiling Crimson Tide coach Bear Bryant's shot at college football's national championship for the second straight year and virtually assuring that Oklahoma will be No. 1 when the ballots are counted in The Associated Press' final rankings.

Oklahoma, the nation's top-ranked team at the end of the regular season, could not go to a bowl game. The Sooners were ineligible for post-season competition because of a National Collegiate Athletic Association probation for recruiting violations.

But the Sooners aren't ineligible for the No. 1 ranking and the mythical national title that goes with the final poll. Oklahoma, with an 11-0 record, became the only undefeated and untied team when No. 2 Alabama bowed to Notre Dame in a rematch of the game a year ago which gave the Fighting Irish the national title after they beat the Tide in the Sugar Bowl.

No. 3-ranked Ohio State also lost Wednesday, bowing 18-17 to fifth-ranked Southern California in the Rose Bowl. No. 4 Michigan didn't play in a bowl.

The AP's final poll will be announced on Friday. A nationwide panel of sports writers and sports casters does the balloting.

Earlier Wednesday, Penn State crushed Baylor 41-20 in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas. And on New Year's Eve, in the first of the four oldest post-season games, Nebraska beat Florida 13-10 in the Sugar Bowl.

Notre Dame, No. 9 in the last poll, had the nation's best-rated defense despite two losses — one a 55-23 shellacking by Southern California late in the season. And it was that defence that throttled Alabama, recovering a fumbled punt that led to the first Notre Dame touchdown. It came on a four-yard run by Wayne Bullock.

And in the second quarter, the Irish got another one on a nine-yard run by Mark McLane. They missed the extra point, but it turned out they didn't need it.

Alabama got a field goal late in the second quarter but the Crimson Tide touchdown, on a 48-yard pass by Richard Todd, didn't come until there were a little more than three minutes left in the game.

For Notre Dame coach Ara Parseghian, it was a farewell present from his players. He had announced his resignation last month and said he would take a six-month sabbatical from the sport.

Pat Haden, the brainy Southern California quarterback who won a Rhodes scholarship to study at Oxford, made two key passes — one for a touchdown and the other for a two-point conversion — to lead the underdog Trojans to victory over Ohio State in the Rose Bowl.

Haden passed 38 yards for a touchdown to John McKay Jr., son of the Trojan coach, with 2:03 left in the game. He followed with a two-point conversion pass to Shelton Diggs.

Penn State, ranked seventh, was ahead only 10-7 in the Cotton Bowl when it had a 64-yard touchdown pass in the second half nullified by a penalty. Then No. 12 Baylor went in front 14-10 on a 37-yard touchdown pass by Bear quarterback Rick Thompson.

That was too much for the Tittany Lions, who took umbrage and exploded for 24 points in the fourth quarter.

Won't Change, Says Rozelle

Commissioner Pete Rozelle says the National Football League believes the Joe Kapp ruling in which the NFL's reserve system was declared illegal "expresses the personal philosophy of the league rather than being a ruling after a careful evaluation of the record."

In interviews in Minneapolis, Rozelle and John Thompson, the league's chief labor negotiator said the decision would make it nearly impossible for them to negotiate a new contract with players.

Rozelle said the NFL was confident the Kapp ruling by Judge William Schweigert of the United States district court would be overturned on appeal.

"We have no plans to change any of our practices, including the draft, under the present circumstances," Rozelle said.

A key portion of the NFL draft, the rule which allows Rozelle to decide the compensation due a team when one of its players jumps to another club and portions of the standard player contract were ruled illegal by Judge Schweigert.

Meanwhile, in other NFL developments, Jack Pardee has been named head coach of Chicago Bears. Pardee, who was a linebacker with Los Angeles Rams and Washington Redskins before joining the World Football League as coach of Florida Blazers, succeeds Abe Giron, fired after the squad compiled 1-10 record this season.

And Joe Thomas has confirmed he has decided to step aside as coach of Baltimore Colts.

In the Canadian football League, a report that veteran quarterback Ron Lancaster will leave Saskatchewan Roughriders has been denied by Ken Preston, the team's general manager.

John Donohue says he will quit as coach of the Canadian women's basketball team in the near future.

In Havana with the team for winter training, Donohue said he will be head of the men's and women's basketball programs but will not coach.

Provincial Teams Face Stiff Tests

Both the men's and women's B.C. Canada Winter Games' volleyball teams, which wrapped up four-day training camps in Victoria over the holidays, will face some stiff competition in Vancouver at the weekend.

The men's team is entered in a round-robin tournament at the University of British Columbia against UBC, Richmond, Vancouver College, Snyder Sun and the UBC Grads while the women's squad will play a series of games against eight-time Canadian champion Vancouver Chinos at Killarney High School.

Eight Victorians are included on the two teams. Dianne Pendray of UVic, Linda Chiu and Shelly Godfrey of Victoria High and Karen Eggar, formerly of Esquimalt High, are on the women's team. UVic students Warren Hamm, Wayne Ward, Tom Graham and Gary Maitland are on the men's squad.

Al Scott, the Esquimalt and UVic coach, is coaching the men's team and Kent Andrews, who coaches at UVic and S.J. Willis Jr. High, is guiding the B.C. women's team.

Game Effort by Gary But Parent Prevails

By The Canadian Press

Philadelphia Flyers, defending Stanley Cup champions, are the new point leaders in the National Hockey League, and goalie Bernie Parent has his seventh shutout of the season.

The Flyers emerged 2-0 victors over the Canucks at Vancouver Wednesday night after Parent won a goaltending battle with Vancouver's Gary Smith, who gave up Bill Barber's winning goal late in the third period.

The win put the Flyers at the top with 53 points in 37 games, and gave them a 13-point lead over second-place New York Rangers in the Patrick Division. Buffalo Sabres, the overall points leader the last few weeks, are now second with 53 but still has a seven-point lead over second-place Boston Bruins in the Adams Division.

In other games Wednesday, the Rangers beat Chicago Black Hawks 6-2 and Toronto Maple Leafs tied California Seals 3-3.

Tuesday night, Los Angeles Kings beat Chicago 3-1 and Detroit Red Wings ended an eight-game winless streak by beating California 4-3.

Barber's 16th goal of the season broke the scoreless battle at 16:16 of the third period.

Philadelphia captain Bobby Clarke set up Barber's goal when he out-muscled a Canucks forward along the boards and kicked the puck to Barber who let go a 20-foot shot to catch Smith on the short side.

Clarke also set up Ross Lonsberry's empty-net goal in the final minute.

At Toronto, the Leafs, who a few weeks ago were criticized by owner Harold Ballard for lack of hustle, were further berated by a member of the Seals, who are only four points behind the third-place Leafs in the Adams Division.

Seals forward Dave Hrechkosky, who scored once in the game, said afterward that he and his team-mates still believe they can overtake Toronto for the division's third playoff spot.

"Don't be surprised if Toronto finishes out of the playoffs," said Hrechkosky. "They got a lot of great talent on that team but they just don't seem to hustle like the Leaf clubs I used to know and admire."

"A tie on the road was great for us tonight. If we stay close to them this month, we can catch them later because of all the home games we finish with."

Hrechkosky's goal midway in the first period gave the Leafs a 2-0 lead but Toronto tied it before the period ended. Rookie Charlie Simmer put the Seals back in front in the second period but Errol Thompson's goal gave Leafs the tie and California goalie Gilles Meloche withstood an 18-shot Toronto rally in the third period.

At New York, goals by rookies Rick Middleton and Ron Greshner started a four-goal Rangers outburst in the second period that prompted the Black Hawks to lift goalie Tony Esposito in favor of Mike Veisor.

Also scoring for New York was Rod Gilbert with his 20th of the season, the 10th time in his career he has scored 20 or more in a year.

Columbians, Oak Bay To Clash

Olympic Columbians, currently only one point behind leading Pegasus in the B.C. Soccer League, will play Oak Bay of the Vancouver Island League's premier division in an exhibition match Sunday at Royal Athletic Park.

Columbians, who won the League Cup playoff title last season, will be led by playing-coach Bobby Cram, a veteran of 17 seasons with West Bromwich Albion.

Game time is 2:15 p.m.

Tiger on a Tear

Times News Service
Don Murdoch of Medicine Hat Tigers started out the New Year in much the same fashion he finished off the old one — by showing a hot scoring hand.

The Cranbrook native added to his leading goal scoring total in the Western Canada Hockey League Wednesday by scoring three to spark the Tigers to an 11-2 romp over Lethbridge Broncos.

Murdoch, who scored 17 goals in nine December games, became the WCHL's first 40-goal scorer and took over the goal-scoring lead from Victoria Cougar centre Mel Bridgman.

Bridgman has 37, four fewer than Murdoch. Murdoch gets a chance to increase his lead when Tigers play in Kamloops on Friday and in Victoria on Saturday.

Bridgman will miss Saturday's game because of a commitment to perform with the WCHL All-Stars in the world junior tournament at Winnipeg.

Czechs Like the Canadian 'Schooling'

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

While the Russians rate as the world's amateur champions, other European nations still look to Canada for "good schooling" in hockey.

That desire for exposure, Czechoslovakian coach Stanislav Nevesely explained Wednesday, is the reason exchange visits with Canadian teams are "always appreciated and perhaps still necessary."

Tonight's exchange matches Czechoslovakia's best 20-to-23-year-olds against Victoria Cougars of the Western Canada League. The Memorial Arena game, expected to be a sellout if a last-minute rush for standing room tickets materializes, starts at 8.

"Every contact with Canadian hockey is good schooling for us," Nevesely said. "The Canadians still shoot better."

(H)an Europeans, are very good at skating and very strong with body contact."

Bodychecking fundamentals seem to be of special interest to Nevesely.

The Czechs and some of the other European nations, he feels, aren't prone to using body contact to the same extent as Canadians because of their rink.

Larger European ice surfaces deter hitters. If they miss, the rival skater might turn the mistake into a goal.

To help emphasize his point, the Czech coach noted that his players, being groomed for the 1976 Olympics, were far more effective playing short-handed than at full strength in Kamloops on Monday. The WCHL's Chiefs upset the Czechs, 5-4, on the small-sized Kamloops ice.

It was the first loss in five games for the Czechs on their eight-game Canadian visit.

Nevesely said he was "looking forward" to playing "your Patty Ginnell again." Nevesely coached a Czech team to a 5-3 victory over Flin Flon in an international junior tournament game at Colorado Springs last year. Ginnell, now the Cougar coach, was with Flin Flon then.

Ginnell, helping coach Canada's representatives in the world junior tournament under way at Winnipeg, was to return home today to handle the Cougars.

New Boss Wants His Sport To Be Classified No. 1

THE RUGBY SCENE

By Max Low

Big plans are in the wind for Canadian rugby, but officials believe the biggest boost of all would be for the sport to be reclassified.

Supported by funds from Sport Canada, the Canadian Rugby Union has been able to step up its number of executive meetings a year to two plus an annual general meeting.

The union has asked for extra funds to bring the national squad together and move across Canada, playing four or five of the strongest provinces and culminating the tour with a match against a visiting national team.

As well, the union has applied for an O'Keefe Sports Foundation grant of $18,000 to hold a national referees' and coaches' clinic and bring some well-known coaches from overseas to instruct coaches across the country.

Other things lined up by the national body include a long-range planning seminar to be held at Toronto's York University Feb. 20-22, the possibility of starting a national newsletter or magazine, and the formation within the next five years of a Canadian junior rugby side to go on tour.

But what is needed, says new CRU president Peter Clarke of Victoria, is for rugby to be reclassified as Category I.

Two a few years ago and it's still there," Clarke pointed out. "It's not justified now, not with the numbers playing rugby today."

Clarke doesn't believe in the category system at all, saying it makes "first and second-class sportsmen" out of Canadians. But he feels that if the system is to stay, rugby should be put in Category 1.

The attraction is that sports classified as Category 1 are not only better funded but also get a full-time paid director with an office in Ottawa. There are many sports with far fewer participants than rugby — Clarke mentioned rowing as an example — that are in Category 1 because they are Olympic sports.

"We are directed by amateurs and for us to have a full-time director would be a tremendous advantage in the administration of the sport."

At the annual meeting in Vancouver in November, continued B.C. dominance of the national office. Bob Spray of Vancouver was the first president and headed the CRU for six years. He was succeeded by the late Dick Ellis of Victoria, who died in a scuba diving accident during his second year in office. When Ellis died, Bob Elder of Winnipeg took over as acting president until Clarke's appointment.

Clarke, 45, came from Morpeth in Northumberland. He played rugby for Northumberland and for England Universities as a No. 8 forward.

After joining Oak Bay Wanderers in 1956, Clarke moved to Duncan in 1961, spearheaded the re-forming of the Cowichan club and was president for the first two years after it got back in operation.

Now in business in Victoria, Clarke at that time was assistant to headmaster Dave Mackenzie at Brentwood College. He captained Cowichan to the Victoria Rugby Union's league title in his first year.

Clarke earned his share of representative honors, playing for the Victoria Crimson Tide several times and for B.C. In his first match at No. 8 for the provincial side, B.C. surprised the Australian national team 11-8 in 1958.

PETER CLARKE
... heads national body

But Clarke says his proudest moment was capturing Oak Bay to the Rounsfell Cup for the provincial club championship in 1960.

Now Clarke is concerned with the national rugby scene. Despite the size of the country, he feels the sport can boom in Canada, particularly if it is reclassified.

"Size can be overcome, if you've got the money to get the people together."

Chicago's Outlook Improving

Times News Service

Chicago Cougars have been having trouble on the ice and at the box office, but the World Hockey Association team still has hopes of better success in the Eastern Division standings.

Cougars moved to within one point of second-place Cleveland by defeating the Crusaders 4-3 Tuesday. Chicago also got a helping hand Wednesday from Minnesota Fighting Saints when they stopped Cleveland 6-2.

Elsewhere Wednesday, Quebec Nordiques and Edmonton Oilers made notable gains in the Canadian Division. Quebec beat Indianapolis Racers 6-3 to edge to within one-point of first-place Toronto while the Oilers took over third place by defeating San Diego 3-2 in overtime.

Rusty Patenaude's goal at 5:26 of overtime gave Edmonton its victory.

Next games: Today — Phoenix at Vancouver; Indianapolis at Cleveland; Michigan at Houston.

Yanks Meet Demands But Can Catfish?

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankees pleased pitcher Jim (Catfish) Hunter with the richest contract in baseball history.

That was relatively easy compared to the task which now faces Hunter—satisfying the toughest sell in the major leagues, the New York fans and the New York media.

If Hunter is successful, New York can be very friendly to a country boy—from Hartford, N.C. But if he fails—and failure is judged by steeper standards here than anywhere else, particularly when you're paid as much as Hunter will be—New York can be a tough place to live. Even if you have a contract worth $3.75 million over five years.

If Hunter thought he had it rough dealing with his former boss, Oakland A's owner Charles Finley, he might think again after enduring the ever-present media and thousands of victory-hungry fans in New York who won't be kind if he doesn't win fast and often.

There is a hidden cost in Hunter's contract, believed to be one of the three or four largest ever negotiated in the kingdom of sport.

If Hunter, acknowledged the winningest pitcher in baseball the past five seasons and the American League Cy Young Award winner with a 25-12 record in 1974, is worth $3.75 million, then how far below financially should the rest of the team be?

It's a good bet that the Yankees salary structure might be in for an inflationary push because of their newest player.

Gabe Paul, president of the Yankees, who personally entered the chase for Hunter with two personal visits to Asheville, N.C., doesn't appear worried.

He thinks Hunter can perform and will perform.

Bowlers Back in Action In Times Event Saturday

It's a new year and bowlers on the southern portion of Vancouver Island will resume their quest for honors Saturday after a two-week Christmas break in the Times Bowler-of-the-Week competition.

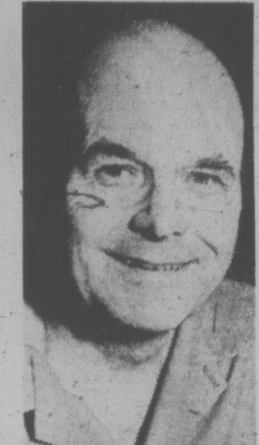

Twelve weeks of the 26-week, 12th annual contest elapsed before the Christmas break.

Open to all bowlers competing in leagues on southern Island lanes, the contest offers awards in four divisions — men's and women's fivepins, and men's and women's tenpins.

During each week, contestants rolling the highest three-game totals in their divisions receive Bowler-of-the-Week crests and qualify for Bowler-of-the-Year rollofs, which will be held shortly after completion of the regular competition.

Each rolloff champion will again receive a Times Trophy and any rolloff winner who is a daily subscriber to the Victoria Times will also receive a $100 bonus award.

Coleen Bell of Chemainus

KEN JONES
... 12th week leader captured women's fivepin honors in the 12th week, becoming only the second staff fivepin winner this season to break the 900 barrier as she fired games of 280, 332 and 292 for a 904 series at Chemainus Bowlsarena.

Leading the women is Vera Lysne, who notched a 924 total in the fifth week.

Jake Jacob paced the men on the fivepin lanes with a 982 series rolled in the third week. Next in line at 973 is Kim Buckley, one of seven men who topped the 900 plateau.

Coming close to 900 and earning laurels in the 12th week was Ken Jones, manager of Town and Country Lanes who racked up a 890 total on games of 287, 363 and 240.

Following are the winners of fivepin awards during the first 12 weeks.

Newcombe Win Settles Verbal Tennis Battle

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Veteran Australian John Newcombe, three-time Wimbledon champion, saying he was "well psyched up" for his grudge match against Jimmy Connors, beat the American star, 7-5, 3-6, 6-4, 7-6, Wednesday and won the men's singles crown at the Australian Open tennis championships.

Newcombe, seeded second, won the fourth set tie-breaker,

9-7, to end the three-hour battle, billed as a clash of champions culminating six months of verbal warfare as to who was the better player. A capacity crowd of 12,500 at Kooyong Stadium watched the struggle, played in 90-degree heat.

Earlier, defending champion Evonne Goolagong of Australia needed just 46 minutes to whip Martina Navratilova of Czechoslovakia, 6-3, 6-2, in the women's singles final.

Connors won the Australian, U.S. Open and Wimbledon titles last year and was generally rated the No. 1 player in the world. Newcombe, meanwhile, was widely recognized as the top player of 1973. He had beaten Connors in their only two meetings of 1974 and his bristled at the suggestion that Connors had surpassed him.

INDIA TAKES THIRD TEST

CALCUTTA (Reuter) — India, crushed by overwhelming margins in the first two tests, hit back with a vengeance to defeat West Indies by 85 runs in the third test Wednesday.

The last seven West Indian wickets went down for only 78 runs and the game was all over just before lunch on the fifth day when West Indies was all out for 224.

Spin bowlers Bishen Bedi and Chandrasekhar recaptured their old form as the tourists fell in rapid succession. Chandrasekhar struck the first blow when he bowled captain Clive Lloyd and when he dismissed Alvin Kallicharman, it was only a matter of how long it would take India to win.

Chandrasekhar finished with three for 66 and Bedi took four for 52.

Bowler's Warning Ignored

MELBOURNE (AP) — Australian all-rounder Greg Chappell and England's opening batsman, Brian Luckhurst, were involved in a sensational run-out in a one-day international cricket match Wednesday.

Luckhurst backed up too far at the bowling end and was run out by Greg Chappell.

Luckhurst had been warned by Chappell earlier in the over for leaving the crease before the ball left the bowling hand.

Luckhurst did not heed the warning and moved out again when Chappell was about to bowl the sixth ball.

Chappell swung his arm over, kept the ball, then backed handed it to knock the bats to the ground.

The appeal by Chappell bewildered umpire Brooks. He went across to consult his colleague, Ballhache. They spoke to captain Ian Chappell before Brooks ruled Luckhurst run out.

After the incident Keith

Fletcher and Chris Old hit 18 off the next over by Chappell.

England lost seven wickets in scoring 191 to win the 40-over game against Australia.

England and Australia played out a nerve-racking draw in the third cricket test Tuesday with Australia needing eight runs and England two wickets at the finish.

The match see-sawed throughout the day and the last half-hour brought the excitement to fever pitch among the 40,000 fans as first England and then Australia gained the upper hand.

A draw became certain on the second last ball when Max Walker hit a single, leaving Australia to score eight runs off the last delivery and England needing two wickets.

Ashley Mallett swung and missed at the last ball to a roar from the crowd.

Scores: England 242 and 244; Australia 241 and 238 for eight.

Honored Canadian Endangered Species?

My editor friend, the one who gives me ideas for column subjects, sometimes even usable ones, thinks I should write a few nasty words about what he considers the elevation of a class elite within our shores.

To be precise, the newest naming of companions of the Order of Canada, which happens to include several people I admire, including Grace MacInnis, Theresa Casgrain, Kate Reid and Pierre Berton, has aroused his ire. "We should leave that sort of nonsense to the British," he opines in a note to me. "In Canada it is simply undemocratic to single out men or women who have made achievements to be honored by the Queen." Oh, he's beautiful when he's angry.

It interests me (and I wonder if Grace recalls this) that one of the strongest objections to even a token order of privilege came from the late Angus MacInnis, MP. That, as I recall it, was fully 20 years ago when George Nowland, MP first proposed a sort of watered-down Canadian knighthood and was rewarded with abuse from coast to coast.

Angus, himself, gave the example of the then prime minister, Louis St. Laurent. He said he'd rather continue thinking of him as Uncle Louis rather than Sir Louis, though, in fact, we now know that St. Laurent was more sir than uncle. Whether Angus would approve of this latest list, giving well-deserved honor to his wife and several others of his political persuasion, we'll never know.

It does, however, reflect a Canadian way of thinking, a determination to be self-effacing and modest to the point where we've made ourselves a mass of mediocre nonentities, that I think is just about ready to be discarded. We're a breed intent on existing without heroes. Our symbol is the beaver and his anonymous toll. That's surely one measure of immaturity.

We're a long way from having any real, deserving heroes, maybe, but I'm in favor of giving this little bit of recognition to Canadians who have made any lasting contribution to our culture.

Too often, it seems to me, we never really respect men or women until they've made good beyond our own borders. Lorne Green touched on the subject the other night when he was interviewed on Canadian television. For many years Green had been one of the outstanding actors in our country. Then he won himself a supporting role in a Broadway production. "A strange thing happened," he reminisced. "When the play closed and I returned to Toronto people came up to me for the first time in my life and asked for my autograph."

It isn't merely that Canadians are unwilling to find merit in their own back yard. It's more insidious than that. There is a suspicion that if it is Canadian it must be second rate without a certified seal of approval from outside. The creative artist in this country never "arrives." He is perpetually on trial before a jury that sometimes seems almost eager to confirm its ready assumption that his talent can't be much.

The writer, the artist, the musician, the actor confronts critics from coast-to-coast. If he can get even passing recognition through this Order of Canada then I'm all for it. He'll certainly get it no other way.

There are dangers, of course, in any system of civilian awards. Even in Great Britain the conferring of knighthood often seems a bit of a miss procedure and too often a vehicle for rewarding good behaviour in the name of achievement. It's been widely reported, for example, that Richard Burton, who was in line for knighthood, can forget all about it since his magazine article suggesting that Sir Winston Churchill was a rather nasty man. Barons and earls are seldom waverers.

But a Canadian "honors list," however abused, would at least have the merit of reminding us that we are more than a nation of beaver-people.

The fact is that we hunger for it. No country in the world, I daresay, has so many intra-mural honor rolls as a substitute for the real McCoy. The papers are full of pictures of insurance men wistfully handing over to insurance men scrolls of merit and hog-breeders honoring other hog-breeders and newspapermen conferring certificates on other newspapermen and universities handing out en bloc their doctorates.

All of this is to provide plasma for the ego, which, in this painfully modest land, might otherwise dry up and blow away. So, all honors to the new companions of the order and jolly good luck to them.

No Illusions Of Temperance

Sidney RCMP hold no illusions that the new year will be one of temperance, despite the lack of drunk driving charges and accidents over the holiday season.

It was the same last year. "We didn't charge a single person with impaired driving over the Christmas-New Year period... and then came the first weekend in January. We had six... a record number for us," an RCMP spokesman said.

So, they'll be watching closely this weekend.

Other Greater Victoria police had similar reports, describing New Year's Eve as "one of the quietest ever."

Even by today, 30 hours into the new year, police have yet to investigate a serious accident or lay a drinking charge.

In Vancouver, city police reported Wednesday that about 1,000 cars were stopped by roadblocks New Year's Eve compared with 1,320 cars in 1973. A spokesman said five arrests were made and 11 24-hour suspensions handed out compared with 19 arrests and 28 suspensions the previous year.

Duncan Police Hold Man on Jail Pass

A man on temporary pass from William Head prison was one of three men Duncan police arrested this morning following a report of a safe-cracking at the Royal Canadian Legion.

Ronald Glen Westad, 31, is to appear in Duncan provincial court later today along with James Normad McPherson, 40, of no fixed address, and Larry Lewis Matthews, 31, of Duncan.

They were arrested outside the Legion at 3 a.m. after RCMP received a tip from a Cowichan Security employee.

Westad was serving nine years for a number of breaking and entering charges and was due for release in September. He had been granted a three-day pass to attend the Seven Step program in Vancouver, a group dedicated to helping criminals change their ways.

Ask The Times

Q. Where can an authority on men missing in action and casualties from the Second World War Royal Air Force units be contacted? G.B.

A. If you can provide full particulars, RAF authorities in England may be able to provide information. Write to: Ministry of Defence (Royal Air Force), Main building, White Hall, London, Eng., SW12HB.

FINAL FAREWELL to the Pacific Coast's only submarine HMCS Rainbow came Tuesday when remnants of her ship's company paraded for her decommissioning and the final lowering of her ensign, naval jack and commissioning pennant. Most of her crew has already been assigned to other duties and her commanding officer, Lt.-Cmdr. Lloyd Barnes, will fly to Halifax Tuesday to take over command of HMCS Ojibwa, one of the east coast's three submarines. The defence department has no plans for Rainbow's final disposal — or her replacement. (Bill Halkett photo.)

Hood Seeks Region Chair

Regional board chairman Jim Campbell will be challenged Wednesday by Victoria Ald. Alf Hood for the 1975 chairmanship.

Hood said today he has been approached to see if he would run and "I am delighted and honored" to accept.

Asked if he is dissatisfied with the board, he said "very definitely not. The present chairman has worked very diligently."

Hood said "a change at times is a good thing" and "I feel that a little competition now and then stimulates everyone."

Campbell, chairman for the last two years, said today he will seek re-election.

"I'd like to have another chance at it. There are a great many things I have been involved in I'd like to carry through," he said.

Much of the possibility of the regional board developing depends on an understanding between electoral area and municipal directors, he said, "and my geographic position allows me to move things along."

HOOD
... "competition" needed

Campbell is the director from the outer Gulf Islands.

The election will be decided by the 18 members of the regional board, 11 from the municipalities and seven from the non-municipal areas.

Man Found Hanged In Victoria Cells

A 19-year-old youth hanged himself in Victoria city police jail late Wednesday night.

Chief Jack Gregory said today Robert Allan Ellis, of 2433 Eastdowne was found at 10:50 p.m. hanging by a T-shirt attached to the top bar of his cell in the third floor lockup at 625 Fisgard.

Ellis was taken to Victoria General Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival at 11:30 p.m.

Coroner Edmund St. Jorre has ordered an inquest and said he hopes to open it by 7 p.m. Friday.

Gregory said Ellis had been a patient in Victoria General Hospital for three months, during which time the youth had undergone brain surgery.

He had been released from hospital by his doctor at 6 p.m. Wednesday and had apparently called for a ride to take him home.

However, said Gregory, staff found Ellis a short time later to have broken into the hospital pharmacy.

Police arrived at 7 p.m. and, after questioning him, placed him in a cell at 9:45 p.m.

He was scheduled to appear in provincial court this morning, charged with breaking and entering, theft, and possession of drugs, Gregory said.

The chief said the jailer checked Ellis at 10:15 p.m. and "everything appeared normal". On the second check at 10:50 p.m. the jailer found Ellis hanging by a shirt twisted into a rope. His feet were touching the ground.

Sidney Baby Tops New Year's Race

Greater Victoria had to wait almost an hour for the first baby of the New Year to arrive early Wednesday.

The first baby in Canada arrived at the other end of the country on the stroke of midnight.

Locally, Resthaven Hospital in Sidney won the New Year's baby race at 12:59 a.m. with the arrival of a baby girl there, third child of Eleanor and John Freethy, RR 1, Sidney.

It was ladies first at Victoria's two general hospitals as well, in a close finish.

At Royal Jubilee Hospital, a baby girl for Wayne and Linda Plante of Langford arrived at 1:25 a.m. Three minutes later another girl, daughter for Judy and David Bickert of 587 Cedarcrest Dr., arrived at Victoria General Hospital.

Canada's first recorded birth for 1975 was in Newfoundland, a daughter for Mr. and Mrs. Gerbaise Robias of Degras.

Flip-Top Can Ban Official

Flip-top cans are now officially prohibited in British Columbia.

As of Wednesday, sale or use of beer, ale, cider or pop cans with removable flip tops is illegal and carries a fine of up to $500.

Recreation Minister Jack Radford originally announced the ban in 1973 but the date of implementation was put ahead until this year to allow retailers to switch to other cans.

Radford said at that time the pop cans were to be banned because the detachable rings were dangerously sharp and posed a hazard to children and bathers.

Besides the litter problem, said Radford, the flip tops are dangerous to wildlife, especially birds who get them caught in their beaks and slowly starve to death.

Fees: Dentists Firm, Levi Silent

treatment of welfare patients.

The welfare program at present pays dentists 75 per cent of the 1971 fee schedule, Hicks said. The government offer amounts to 83 per cent, he added.

"I've written letters to him (Levi) which have not been answered. I've phoned him but he won't speak to me. What do you do with a minister who'll not talk?" he asked.

"I'm disappointed when a minister of the Crown enters into negotiations, makes a proposal and refuses to move from there," Hicks said.

Dentists agree to continue subsidizing welfare patients, but they want a broader basis from which to work.

Through the college of surgeons, dentists want a welfare dental program "on a par with other government programs."

This would entail an increased range of dental services, such as preventative dentistry, Hicks said.

In early talks, Levi agreed to this principle, but only as far as fluoride applications for children's teeth.

He seemed more interested in his departmental budget, which I believe was over-extended," Hicks said.

Levi also agreed to administrative streamlining, but not to the principle that remuneration should be equal to that for other programs.

Dentists claim recompense from the government for treating welfare patients is not enough to cover expenses, and that they are out of pocket each time they accept a welfare case.

Some dentists — as at Courtenay — have refused treatment to welfare patients unless it is an emergency.

"Yet we're not all that far apart," said Hicks. "Mr. Levi has said he'll only speak if I sign the government offer."

What the government offered was 80 per cent of the 1974 fee schedule for work done between Dec. 1, 1974 and March 31, 1975, and 90 per cent of the 1974 fee schedule by Oct. 1, 1975. Hicks said this averaged out to 83 per cent of the current schedule.

Levi, who is not expected back in his office this week, said earlier the increase would cost the government $1.8 million over the 15 months, which he considered "more than generous."

City Hall Unions Disagree

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

A sharp split between the city's inside and outside workers unions developed today in their contract negotiations.

"While the inside union is taking a membership vote Monday on a revised pay offer, the outside workers posted 72 hours strike notice."

Jim Walker, president of Local 50 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, representing 260 outside workers, said his local wanted the inside staff to "know it would be better for them to hold off for a while if they can."

But Doug Casey, president of Local 388 of CUPE, representing 240 inside workers, said the membership vote will go ahead as planned.

Asked if he felt the inside workers were cutting the throats of the outside workers, Walker said "I get that definite impression. It's not helping our cause at all."

Walker said the outside workers will picket City Hall if there is a strike, even if the inside workers agree on a new contract, "so they're cutting their own throats really."

He said the 15.75 per cent wage offer made by the employers coordinating committee to CUPE locals in Greater Victoria is unacceptable but "we could talk" in the area of 19.7 per cent settlements on the Lower Mainland.

Casey replied that he is "not in agreement with their rationale at all."

He said the 15.75 per cent applies to higher-paid positions but lower-paid positions would get as much as 34 per cent. In addition, the time taken for a person in a lower-paid classification to reach top pay has been cut to 24 months from 48 months.

"Why not take our highest figure, or average it, and apply it to their bargaining," he said. "The total payroll cost to the city is much higher than 15.75 per cent."

Casey said if the outside workers picket City Hall "it's up to our members to observe the pickets. But we are a totally autonomous local."

Casey said the city offer is better than ones received by other CUPE locals because the others didn't get 34 per cent for lower-paid positions or reduction in time taken to reach top pay in these positions.

He said the starting rate for a clerk-typist in Victoria would be $598 a month while the offer to Saanich employees was $562 a month.

"The offer in my opinion is a reasonable one," he said. Outside workers earlier received the 15.75 per cent wage offer for 1975 and turned it down.

Their strike notice was received at City Hall this morning but no action can be taken until both sides have been informed by Labor Minister Bill Clark. Gilmour has filed his report.

$30,000 Mobile Home Burns

Fire in a Malahat mobile home park New Year's Eve destroyed a $30,000 home while the owners holidayed in Oliver.

Firefighting efforts by Spectacle Lake Mobile Home Park owner Charles Boas and other residents were partially successful until it was found blazing furnace oil required chemical extinguishers which were not available.

Boas called Mill Bay volunteer fire department for help, but was told equipment could not be sent outside the Mill Bay Fire Protection District, whose southern boundary ends at Sunburst Drive about four miles beyond Spectacle Lake.

Flames in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Al White were spotted about 4:30 p.m. by a neighbor as a window was blown out with heat and fumes which had been generating for a considerable time.

"We had the fire held off for an hour and a half," Boas said. "But we needed chemicals. I think we could have put it out if we'd had some."

Boas said it appeared there had been a malfunction in the furnace, causing the unit to burst into flame and spread to the mobile home structure. The Whites had been away since just before Christmas and are still not back from the mainland.

The mobile home park has hydrants and hoses to fight fire with water, and the units are spaced widely enough to prevent flames from jumping from one to another, Boas said.

"But it was frustrating to call the fire department, and be told the trucks could not go outside their district," he said. It was understandable, he added.

"Now what I want to know is how to get help for acquiring chemical equipment," the park owner said.

He thought there was available through fire equipment manufacturers and possibly through government grants, and he said he would make inquiries.

The other alternative, of forming a fire protection district supported by taxes, could be turned down by residents of the immediate area, or take too long to get approval through government red tape, he said.

"I think the people (in the park) would rather pay out of their own pockets and have it right here," Boas said, referring to private firefighting equipment for the park only.

Quiz on Fat Reveals Good, Bad in Diet

By DR. JEAN MAYER

Fats are one of the three nutrients in food that provide calories (The others are protein and carbohydrates). If you're on a diet, fats are even less well thought of than potatoes. Yet in spite of the calories, fats have something to offer us — some of it good and some of it bad. Here's a short quiz to test your fat facts. Jot down your answers and check them with the correct ones at the end of today's column.

1. Is there a difference between solid fats and oils?
2. Solid fats are also termed "saturated" fats. This means that they are saturated with (a) water, (b) calories, (c) hydrogen, (d) minerals.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

Suppose you are on a cholesterol-lowering diet and you have a choice of margarines. One label lists "Partially hydrogenated corn oil and soybean oil . . ." The second says, "Hydrogenated corn oil and soybean oil . . ." and the third lists "Liquid corn oil and soybean oil . . ." Which labeled margarine is best for your diet?

4. Every vegetable oil except one is either predominantly unsaturated or polyunsaturated. Which oil is the saturated exception?

5. Which of the following oils are "unsaturated" and which are "polyunsaturated"? olive, corn, safflower, cottonseed, peanut, soybean, sesame seed.

6. Rearrange this list of fats (all one-ounce portions) in descending order of calories. Butter, lard, vegetable shortening, liquid corn oil margarine, olive oil, safflower oil.

7. True or false: When nutritionists speak of "visible" and "invisible" fats, they mean that solid fats, like butter or shortening, are solidly "visible," whereas liquid fats, like soybean oil, are almost transparent and, therefore, "invisible."

8. Which statement is true? Cholesterol is (a) a fatty acid, (b) a waxy substance found in some foods, (c) a part of the artery wall.

9. If you were on a low-cholesterol diet, which one in each of these pairs of foods would you choose? (a) roast chicken or broiled liver, (b) broiled halibut or boiled shrimp, (c) cheese souffle or tuna salad.

10. If you are on a low-fat diet, which of the foods in question no. 9 would you choose to keep your fat intake lowest?

ANSWERS:

1. Oils are simply those fats that stay liquid at room temperature.

2. C is the correct answer. Fats are called "saturated" when they have as many hydrogen atoms as their molecules will hold.

3. The last labeled margarine is best. "Hydrogenated" means that hydrogen atoms have been added to harden the margarine so it holds its shape at room temperature. But unfortunately, hydrogenating also turns the oils into saturated fats. Since you cannot be sure from the first label how much of the oil ("partially hydrogenated") is now saturated, stick with the third label, which lists liquid oil first.

4. Coconut oil is saturated. While you are unlikely to find it in bottles of salad oil, it is in many processed foods — non-dairy creamers, for example. If a label lists nothing but "vegetable oil," and you are on a cholesterol-lowering diet, be wary.

5. Olive and peanut oils are "unsaturated," which means that they have fewer hydrogen atoms than coconut oil, but not as few as the rest — corn, safflower, cottonseed, soybean and sesame seed — which are polyunsaturated. These polyunsaturated oils have the unique ability to lower your cholesterol. Unsaturated oils, on the other hand, have no effect. They don't push it up, but they don't bring it down, either, so they offer no benefit to your heart.

6. All fats, regardless of whether they are liquid or solid, have exactly the same number of calories — 9 per gram, or 270 per ounce — so don't be fooled into thinking that there's a difference. The only exception is so-called "diet" spreads that have half the calories because they are half water.

7. False. "Invisible fats" are those that are hidden in food, like the fat marbled in roast beef and, indeed, in all cells of the meat, or the butterfat in homogenized milk, or the oil in avocados. Visible fats, on the other hand, are those that come in packages or containers, whether solid or liquid and transparent (such as safflower oil).

8. Fatty acids with glycerol are the basic components of all ordinary fat, saturated or polyunsaturated, animal or vegetable. Cholesterol is not a fatty acid, but a more complex member of the fat family. It's a relative of the steroid hormones found only in animal fats.

Statements B and C are both true. As well as being found in animal foods, cholesterol is manufactured in the body. There is a little in almost every tissue, with the highest concentration in the brain, liver, the adrenal glands and the nerves. It's good preventive medicine to keep the level of cholesterol in blood vessels down.

9. The chicken, the halibut, and the tuna salad. Organ meats, such as liver, shell eggs in the souffle are all high in cholesterol.

10. Pick the liver — which has slightly less total fat than the chicken; the shrimp, which has considerably less fat than the halibut; and stick with the tuna salad, as long as the dressing is low calorie. Eggs and cheese have a lot of fat as well as cholesterol. In fact, the only way you could equal the souffle's fat content would be to use oil-packed tuna topped with regular mayonnaise.

More Support for Breakfasts

Sparkling or grouchy — how do you feel when you wake up in the morning? No matter in what mood you get out of bed, plan to take time for a good breakfast.

In the morning, the body's supply of blood sugar, which is the basic fuel for the brain and central nervous system, is at its lowest point. At least seven hours, and more likely ten to twelve hours, have gone by since your last meal and the body no longer has any food to produce blood sugar. This is why it is so important to have a good breakfast. Skip it and you become sluggish, slow-thinking and inefficient by mid-morning. Studies have shown over and over again that people perform poorly and do less work when breakfast is omitted. Similarly students lack concentration and learn more slowly. Of all meals, breakfast is the easiest to skip. We are usually in a rush and too often, the menu is the same old thing day after day. But who said breakfast had to be dull? Try foods that brighten the table and contain protein. This will maintain your energy till lunchtime. Here are a few ideas to stimulate bored appetites. Go old English with grilled kidneys and sausages, buttered toast and marmalade; French with cheese, flaky croissants and cafe au lait; Norwegian with smoked meat, kipper and cheese. There's also nothing wrong with spanish omelet; chicken livers on toast or with potato pancakes; french-toasted tuna fish sandwich; scrambled eggs on rye with shredded cheese and crumbled bacon; fried egg, cheese and luncheon meat sandwich or even cottage cheese and fruit salad.

Sound strange? They might appeal to those chronic breakfast skippers. It is obvious that you cannot go gourmet for breakfast every day. Some dishes take too long to prepare, so save them for leisurely weekends. On hectic mornings, serve fruit juice with cereal and milk, or a scrambled egg sandwich, or muffins with jam and cheese. Even buttered toast with peanut butter or cheese spread is nutritious. Being in a hurry is no excuse for missing breakfast. The best time to plan your breakfast is before you get up — like the night before. Prepare your omelet mix, pancakes or waffle batter, meat or vegetables and refrigerate them in covered containers. You can even set the table before you go to bed. With the start of the New Year, why not make the resolution to spend a little extra effort on the morning meal. See how a super breakfast can bring out the best in you. For those mornings when the call is for a quick breakfast, try these "Wheat Germ Muffins"; from Food Advisory Services, Agriculture Canada. You can make them ahead and freeze them. They will keep 4 months at 0 degrees F. Take them out when you get up in the morning and thaw them in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) 15 to 20 minutes. Serve them hot with butter or margarine and jam along with some cheese. Then, on your way to an active day.

WHEAT GERM MUFFINS
1 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons sugar
½ cup unsweetened wheat germ
1 beaten egg
1 cup milk
¼ cup melted shortening
Sift dry ingredients and stir in wheat germ. Combine egg, milk and shortening. Stir quickly into flour mixture until mixed but still lumpy. Fill greased muffin tins two-thirds full and bake at 400 degrees F. until browned (about 15 minutes). Makes 12 medium muffins.

Cereal Refining Warning Struck

OTTAWA (CP) — White bread and other refined foods stripped of much of their cereal fibre or roughage may contribute to the epidemic of non-infective diseases of the heart and intestine, say Canadian nutritionists.

But they caution that more research is needed to substantiate recent British and U.S. research indicating the lack of cereal fibre is related to heart disease caused by narrowing of the arteries.

The research also links cancer of the colon and rectum, second only to lung cancer as a cause of death in the West, to deficiency of cereal fibres.

Dr. J. E. Monagle, a senior clinical nutritionist in the federal health department, said recent scientific research makes it apparent that cereal fibres may be connected with serious intestinal diseases.

His view was supported by Dr. Zak Sabry, a Toronto nutrition consultant and co-ordinator of the large Nutrition Canada survey, and by Roy Harwood of Toronto, a food chemist and chairman of the Bakery Council of Canada's technical and nutrition committee.

Dr. Sabry says it is beginning to look as if deficiencies of cereal fibre are associated with development of diseases peculiar to western society.

Harwood said white bread still contains some fibre, although much of it is removed during the milling process. In any case, "this whole area requires a great deal more attention."

It has also been found that such common North American diseases as heart disease caused by narrowing of the arteries, cancer of the colon and rectum, inflammation of the colon, appendicitis and gallstones are rare or non-existent in under-developed countries, with high-fibre diets.

Moreover, people who move from high-fibre areas to affluent countries are soon at risk from these conditions, indicating the cause is environmental rather than genetic, their report says.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR

Forecast for Friday, Jan. 3

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Health, work, relations with employees, others to perform services for you—these are spotlighted. You finish project. You discover more efficient ways of advertising, distribution. Another Aries—and a Libra—could be involved.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Good lunar aspect coincides now with creative endeavors, ability to relate to children, willingness to accept necessity for change. Leo, Aquarius could figure prominently. Avoid excess. Control temper. You win more with charm than force. Act accordingly.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Home, security, solid building materials—these are featured areas. Teach and learn—means you can gain if you share knowledge. Question concerning money, costs, credit will be answered—probably to your satisfaction. Be persistent without being fanatical.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Versatility is your ally. Refuse to be pinned down or painted into corner. Experiment. Ask questions. Socialize. Encourage new contacts. Your emotional horizons are ready to expand. Know it and don't fight progress!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Emphasis is on collections, money, valuables. Be aware of details fine points—and fine print. Demand specific answers, not slick evasions. Aquarius, another Leo, Taurus and Scorpio figure in picture. You'll find where you stand—and for "how much!"

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Cycle is high—you find life more meaningful, challenging. There are changes and member of opposite sex figures prominently. Take initiative. Highlight independence of thought, action. Wear bright colors.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You may find that you are sought after by special group, club, organization. Key is to balance, to be diplomatic, to understand without becoming inextricably involved. Another Libra—and a Taurus—are likely to be in picture.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Accent is on knowing difference between reality and fantasy. Wishes and flattery mingle. One who understands your whims could use that knowledge as a weapon. Know it and protect yourself in clinches. Moderation is advisable—especially where artificial stimulants are considered.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Power, organization, promotion—these are featured. One who is in position of authority wants to know if you can handle more responsibility. You can—if conditions are right. Insist on some qualifications. Means you have right to name some conditions. Do so!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You reach beyond apparent limitations. You gain glimpse of potential. Language, travel, publications—these are apt to be featured. Aries, Libra individuals are in picture. Say what you mean and mean what you say. A bit of aggressiveness now would probably be desirable!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Dig beneath surface indications. Come up with answers, responses based on what is real, not what glitters. Basic values are featured. Don't sell yourself short. You are on right track and could strike pay dirt.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Accent is on "double harness." Means going it alone now may not be wisest course. Key is to co-operate, to strike bargain to emphasize co-operative efforts.

Mate, partner figures prominently. Aquarian may play important role.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY much of what you have worked for, hoped for is coming into focus and can become a reality. August should be your key month in 1975. You are versatile, artistic, creative and have a tendency to scatter your efforts. Sagittarius, Gemini—persons play important roles in your life. Your greatest asset is ability to laugh at your own foibles.

Some Notes On Change To Metric

If the weatherman forecasts a temperature of 30 degrees C will you pack a picnic basket or haul out your winter coat? A picnic would be the better idea since 30 degrees C is what we now know as 86 degrees F. This new scale of temperature measurement is called Celsius and is based on the following: 0 degrees C is THE SAME AS 32 degrees F or the freezing point of water while 100 degrees C is THE SAME AS 212 degrees F or the boiling point of water.

Comfortable room temperature formerly 72 degrees is now 22 degrees C. Therefore if the temperature is 15 degrees C you will probably want to take a sweater with you since this is just on the cool side. Your fall coat however likely won't be needed until it's 8 degrees C.

That prime rib roast that you pop in the oven at 325 degrees F will now cook in the same way at 160 degrees C. Or for those of us who are likely to be heating a frozen chicken pie at 425 degrees F, the Celsius equivalent would be 220 degrees C.

Reflections on Youth Parliament

Today, nearly everyone is looking forward to the months ahead and wondering what they hold in the way of successes or failures.

In my case, however, I'm looking back to last weekend with a warm feeling of satisfaction at having participated in an historic event that can never be repeated in quite the same way.

As you know, I was appointed Lieutenant-Governor for the 44th session of the British Columbia Youth Parliament.

Also that for the first time in its 51-year history, young women (some 30 of them) sat with the young men on both government and opposition sides of the House.

During the five days of the session, my official duties included reading a Speech from the Throne at the opening ceremony, attending a luncheon given by the parliamentarians by the Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia, Hon. Walter C. Owen, and finally giving assent to Bills passed and reading the prorogation speech at the closing session.

While fulfilling those duties I heard His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor tell of his active participation in the work of the parliament, as the first Premier back in 1923 when it was organized under the name of the Older Boys' Parliament of British Columbia and again in 1924; then as The Lieutenant-Governor in 1938-39, in 1956 and for a third time in 1969.

In recognition of that work, Charles M. MacLeod, a member of the Senate and a past Lieutenant-Governor (1971) presented His Honor with a commemorative scroll to mark his 51 years of continuing interest in the Parliament.

At the opening ceremony last Friday evening, I also heard The Hon. Mr. Justice McKenzie speak briefly of his days in the older Boys' Parliament.

Both men gave credit to that early training and its influence on their later years. I also talked to Cyril Chalk, present Speaker of the House, and to Jim Mann, executive secretary of parliament's Alumni Society and a member of its Senate.

Both are former Older Boys' Parliament members. Both are some years past the 16 to 21 age when they could still be active members. Yet, both continue a personal interest in the work.

Why, I wanted to know. The replies were much the same. The Parliament had been good for them, they said. They believed it was also good for young people today.

The challenge now is to see it continue as an educational experience for young people, and they are willing to give time and energy to accomplish that fact.

elizabeth forbes

Chalk was a member of the Parliament in 1966 and later was named to the alumni. He teaches Grades 11 and 12 in the Kelowna Secondary School and it is interesting to note that of the nine young people in the present parliament from that area, four are from his classes.

Jim Mann is in the reservations office of Canadian Pacific Airlines at Vancouver. He too, was a Boys' Parliament member in 1966, was named Minister of Finance in 1967, and Speaker of the House in 1968 and 1969.

In the past five years as executive secretary, he also acted as returning officer. And in 1974, with the change in name of the Parliament, the appearance of young women and a decision to include representation from schools, universities and some other youth groups for a first time, he brought in young men and women (85 in all) from as far away as Dawson Creek and the Queen's Charlottes and as near as our own Victoria.

It cost each one a basic $60 "without extras" to attend. Mann told me, "In some cases they were not financed by groups they represent but were so eager to come they made the money themselves."

Certain organizations here helped by sponsoring luncheons and dinners," he said, "and the Alumni Society does try to take up some of the slack."

This year, with the increase in members, "it looks as if we might be in 'the red,'" he added.

Then he suggested that if the Youth Parliament was known to more organizations "we might get increased help."

Here he spoke (very gently) of the "seeming" lack of interest by the media in publicizing "other than by small bits over the air and on back pages" the parliament's work during the year and even "in really covering its sessions."

It's inferred, he said, that the Yuletide is a bad time of year to expect coverage.

"Yet, youth parliamentarians meet at this time in practically every other province of Canada, and they get good publicity... especially in Alberta, where the parliament is not nearly as active as ours."

He ended with "I don't understand it!"

Frankly speaking, neither do I. Here is a group of young people discussing youth problems, offering suggested remedies and passing resolutions, and doing it in an intelligent and responsible way, uninfluenced by direct political bias and tendencies.

Listening to them as I did last weekend, I'm certain the experience they are gaining now, will pay dividends in the future... not only for them but for this province of British Columbia.

Pros, Cons of Beef Sides

Can I save money by buying a side of beef? More and more people are asking that question. There is no simple "yes" or "no" answer. One has to make a careful comparison of costs among the three alternatives available: buying a side or a quarter; buying wholesale cuts (loin, round, chuck); or buying retail cuts.

When you buy a hind or a front quarter, you get a variety of cuts, some tender and some less tender. You should have an idea of the amount of steaks, roasts, pot roasts and minced meat you'll get. In a hind quarter of approximately 150 pounds, you can expect about 55 pounds of steaks such as round, sirloin, porterhouse, T-bone and wing; 24 pounds of rump and sirloin tip roasts and 28 pounds of stewing or ground meat. Fat, bones and cutting shrinkage account for the remaining 43 pounds. In a front quarter of approximately 150 pounds, you get about 20 pounds of tender rib roasts, 58 pounds of less tender roasts such as plate brisket, brisket point, blade, short rib and chuck roasts, and 32 pounds of stewing or ground meat. The remaining 40 pounds covers fat, bones and cutting shrinkage. A steer is obviously not all steaks and rib roasts. If your family does not care for pot roasts, ground beef or stew, there's no point in buying a front quarter.

Most freezer beef sales are made on the basis of the "hanging weight" of the carcass. This is the weight before any excess fat or bone is trimmed away. There is about 25 per cent waste that has to be taken into account when calculating the price of your purchase.

dear abby

Still Disgusting

DEAR ABBY: I'm sure you won't print this, but I want to get it off my chest so I'll send it in anyway.

Recently I was watching Hollywood Squares, and one of the questions was: "According to Dear Abby, is it proper for a mother to nurse her baby in mixed company?" And they said that you said, "No, it's disgusting!"

I couldn't believe my ears. I always thought you were broad-minded. How could you have given an answer like that, Abby? — Disappointed.

DEAR DIS: I didn't. I was asked what I thought of a young mother who used nursing her baby as an excuse to show off her bosom in mixed company. And to THAT I replied, "I think she's disgusting!"

DEAR ABBY: Texas Mother wrote to ask, "How do you tell a 36-year-old daughter to please sit up straight?"

You replied, "Apparently, your daughter turned you out years ago. But if you ever succeed in getting a 36-year-old daughter to listen to her mother please tell me your secret. A few million readers would appreciate it."

Abby, I have a lovely, mature, intelligent 35-year-old daughter who listens to me, and I can tell your readers what the secret is. I listen to HER!

We are good friends who enjoy each other, respect each other, and listen to each other. And now I am listening to my granddaughter, too. — Mrs. M.H.

DEAR MRS. H.: What you are saying is that the secret of getting your children to listen to you is to listen to THEM. True, but this works only if you start listening to your children when they are very young. The advice is splendid for parents of infants, but it's about 32 years too late for Texas Mother.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I and our 13-year-old son, Rob, live in a little dinky apartment. For some strange reason Rob's friends always congregated here. Sometimes as many as ten kids crowd into his bedroom, and even with the door closed there's so much laughing and shouting I can't hear myself think.

I try to keep the cookie jar filled, but those kids clean me out in no time. I can't afford bottled drinks, so I make lemonade by the gallon, and in winter it's hot chocolate.

Some of those kids live in palaces compared to this dump, but they never have the gang at their place. I don't think that's fair. Why don't they take turns and let the other mothers have the noise and free snack bar once in awhile?

Print this: They might see it and take the hint—Rob's Ma.

DEAR MA: You don't know how lucky you are. If you could see some of the letters I get from mothers who sob, "My kids don't have any friends," you'd get down on your knees and thank the good Lord for the empty cookie jar.

Kids like to gather where they feel comfortable, which is a compliment to you, and Rob. Isn't it a good feeling to know where your son is all the time? You should be grateful, not grumbling.

New U.S. Estimate Of $22.8B Deficit

By PETER MILIUS
WASHINGTON (WP)—The combined effects of recession and inflation will drive the United States budget deficit to $22.8 billion in the year ending June 30 and a post-Second World War record $36.4 billion the next fiscal year if the government simply maintains existing services, and without any tax cut, according to a study made public here.

The deficit estimates by the staff of Congress' Joint Economic Committee are far higher than any officially made by the administration, whose last projection was that spending would run only $9.2 billion ahead of revenues this fiscal year.

The committee staff said that even deficits as large as those it projected would not be enough to have a stimulative effect on the sagging economy.

The administration is likely to contest that conclusion. It says the economy will start recovering next year on its own, and that too large a deficit will simply add more fuel to inflation.

The estimates assume that no changes will be made in current law. Under some programs, outlays will increase automatically—Social Security, for example, and, because of the recession, unemployment insurance. Other than for those, the committee staff adjusted spending upward in the hypothetical budget only to allow for inflation.

The staff noted that the deficits therefore could be greater if there is a tax cut of the sort that has been urged on President Ford, a move he reportedly is considering to revive the economy.

Without such a tax cut or a further spending increase, the staff maintained, the deficit next fiscal year will be "rather neutral" as regards the economy.

Inflation is one reason for the looming deficits; it drives up government costs like any others.

Inflation also can have the effect—and to some extent has over the last year—of increasing government revenues, as dollar profits and nominal incomes rise, and people are lifted into higher tax brackets.

Recession, however, has the opposite effect of reducing incomes, profits and taxes. The committee staff said the government is now losing more to recession than it is picking up from inflation.

The argument over the proper size of next year's deficit—likely to start in earnest when the president presents his fiscal 1976 budget to Congress sometime next month—is partly an argument over what standard to use in judging.

For one thing, as the total economy and federal budget grow, a deficit of any given size diminishes in importance. The current record post-Second World War deficit is the $25.2 billion rung up in fiscal 1968, when the Vietnam war was still going on.

The Gross National Product (GNP) and the size of the government's budget, however, have both increased about 50 per cent since then.

Second, a deficit of any given size may be stimulative and inflationary when the economy is running flat-out, but not when it is sagging.

The staff of the joint committee used a so-called "full-employment" standard in judging next year's likely red ink. That means it took current law as given, then figured out what government revenues and expenditures would be next fiscal year if the economy were running at full employment defined as a four per cent unemployment rate, rather than in a recession.

On that basis if found, the budget would be nearly balanced rather than far off in deficit and stimulative. According to this theory, the likely deficit next fiscal year thus reflects, not genuine stimulation of the economy, but merely the declining revenues and rising costs associated with recession.

A hypothetical budget of the sort the committee staff discussed, projecting the cost of "current services" a year or more into the future, will be published by the White House every year when Congress' new budget-making procedures take effect in 1976.

The joint committee published this week's projections as a trial run.

The staff estimated that spending will total $307.8 billion this fiscal year; it assumed Congress will not make the $4.6 billion in spending cuts President Ford proposed several weeks ago. Revenues this year, it said, will be about $285 billion—well below the Treasury Department's last official estimate of $293 billion. The staff said Treasury made too little allowance for the recession.

Next fiscal year, the staff said, allowing only for provisions of current law plus inflation, spending will rise to $346.4 billion. About two-thirds of the increase will come in just three categories: Social Security, unemployment insurance and defence. Revenues next fiscal year will be about $310 billion, the staff said.

The staff's estimates assume the economy will continue declining until the second half of calendar year 1975, and that prices next year will be more than 9 per cent over this year's levels.

Teamster Suspensions 'Form of Provocation'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ed Zimmerman, secretary-treasurer of Local 31 of the Teamsters Union, said Wednesday's suspension of two drivers on Vancouver Island was a form of provocation by trucking firms trying to end the teamsters' work-to-rule campaign.

Johnston Terminals was reported to have suspended the two men, resulting in about 50 drivers in Nanaimo and another 15 in Port Alberni walking off the job Tuesday.

The drivers said they would not return to work until the two men are reinstated.

Teamsters' instituted the work-to-rule campaign in an effort to force Transport Labor Relations, which represents about 100 trucking firms under the current contract, provide mid-contract wage increases.

Zimmerman said Transport Labor Relations is provoking the situation to provide a basis for applications to the British Columbia Labor Relations Board to halt the work-to-rule campaign.

"Right now they have no case," Zimmerman said, "because all we are doing is enforcing the collective agreement. The employers just want to get something they can take before the board."

He said the Nanaimo and Port Alberni drivers had rejected union requests to return to work.

Eight interprovincial trucking firms won a B.C. Supreme Court injunction last month prohibiting the work-to-rule campaign.

Zimmerman said the campaign is being maintained against 89 firms covered under the provincial labor code.

Carl Anshelm, president of Transport Labor Relations, said the suspensions were only isolated cases. He said the work-to-rule campaign is lagging because of lack of driver support.

A DOUBLE JACKPOT

RENO (UPI) — James and Brenda Harrington were married New Year's Eve, and on New Year's Day she helped celebrate the occasion by collecting a slot machine jackpot of $26,565.90.

The San Pablo, Calif., couple put a dollar in a machine at the El Dorado Hotel in which the jackpot builds up. The payoff came when four sevens lined up.

"It's wonderful," Mrs. Harrington said. "What a honeymoon!"

Locked Doors at the Lock-Up

Mounting frustration over people wandering through non-public parts of the Victoria police station at 625 Fisgard has triggered a move to tighten security in the building and immediate area.

Chief Jack Gregory said today a door opening on to Centennial Square has been closed to the public and a hallway linking the court building at 633 Fisgard with the police station at ground street level will also be restricted to police personnel only.

The door leading on to the square bears a sign reading: "Police Exit Only. For security reasons this door will remain locked as of January 1, 1975. Pass key is in possession of desk sergeant, Chief Constable."

Gregory said he was disturbed by the number of people wandering about the station, particularly in the corridor connecting with the court.

He felt it constituted a possible danger to his men who "were vulnerable" as they went about their jobs within the building.

Unconfirmed reports, however, indicated the chief's security actions may have been the result of an unusual incident that occurred shortly before Christmas.

One source said a young woman climbed to a ledge outside the windows of the jail on the second and third floor and threw in some candies to a young woman friend inside.

The woman was apprehended but no charges have been laid.

Girls Shine in Debates Of First Co-Ed Session

Youth Parliament's first co-ed session ended New Year's Eve, establishing female members as competent debaters in the junior house.

Twenty-year-old premier Alan Wing, of Vancouver, said at the conclusion of the Christmas holiday session—formerly the Older Boys' Parliament—"the quality of debate was brought up by the women."

Elizabeth Forbes, first female lieutenant-governor and a long advocate of equality for women, said she was proud of the girls and agreed the debate was "very mature, almost sophisticated."

"They had good points, studied them; I was amazed. They're getting a good education—not that they'll all go into politics, but it's preparing them for public life," she said.

The Premier, who was re-elected to next year's Youth Parliament—his seventh year as a member of the house—said besides discussing many of the issues of the day the members this year had reaffirmed their commitment to projects such as a camp for underprivileged children at Shawnigan Lake, a minor lacrosse team in Vancouver and the House of Concord at Langley, a half-way home for young offenders.

In other business the assembly supported Haida land claims in the Queen Charlotte Islands, had a long discussion of bilingualism, the food crisis and foreign ownership of Canadian corporations, among other subjects, which Wing said went "very well."

He and six others were elected to represent B.C. Youth Parliament at the National Youth Parliament.

It will be the first assembly of its kind and meets in Winnipeg Labor Day weekend, Aug. 30 - Sept. 1, 1975.

Little Hope For Housing

VANCOUVER (CP)—The president of the British Columbia Amalgamated Construction Association said Tuesday commercial construction in the lower mainland will increase in 1975.

But Bill Cochran said in an interview that he is pessimistic about the prospects for residential construction.

Cochran said he doesn't foresee any increase in housing starts because the federal government's recently announced incentives will not have any effect until late 1975.

He said he doubts next year's housing starts will equal those of 1974.

Huge U.K. Oil Firm Gets Gov't Rescue

Times News Service

LONDON — One of Britain's biggest multi-national firms, the large Burmah Oil Company, has joined a growing queue of businesses facing financial crises and has been forced to appeal to the government for urgent assistance.

Burmah, the government and the Bank of England now have worked out an emergency package under which the bank will guarantee the firm's large outstanding loans, most of them raised overseas, in return for a claim against Burmah's stakes in Britain's two biggest oil groups.

The bank will hold Burmah's stakes in British Petroleum and Shell Transport and Trading Co. — stocks worth about $437 million — with discretionary power to sell them and hold any resulting profit if necessary.

In addition, Burmah has announced it is negotiating with Canadian Industrial Gas and Oil to sell the British firm's Canadian subsidiary, Great Plains Development Co. of Canada. The sale is expected to provide Burmah with about $100 million in cash.

Burmah will also give the government a 51-per-cent stake in its shareholdings in two important North Sea oil fields, the Ninian and the Thistle. The government aims to take a 51-per-cent holding in North Sea operations when the necessary legislation can be enacted but Burmah becomes the first company to agree in principle to this action and to accept an accelerated takeover.

Purse Snatching Charged to Pair

Two men have been charged with robbery with violence in connection with nine and Oak Bay over the last two weeks.

Ronald James Kellington, 20, of 2908 Harrier, and Daniel Bruce Lockhart, 18, of 823 Esquimalt, appeared in Victoria provincial court today and were remanded to Jan. 8 for plea and election of trial method.

Lockhart is also facing two counts of obtaining transportation by fraud.

The pair are charged with three purse snatchings in Oak Bay, two of them on New Year's Eve, and six in Victoria dating back to Dec. 14.

In the New Year's Eve incident, Mrs. Elsie Chisholm, of 1230 Basil, who is 80, was injured after being knocked to the ground in the Beach-Margate area Tuesday evening. She is reported in satisfactory condition in hospital today.

A friend Mrs. Chisholm was walking with Myrtle Smith, 73, of 1508 Shorncliffe, also had her purse stolen at the same time.

Meeting with MPs On Pay Delayed

Problems with finding a meeting place will delay a public meeting to discuss federal MPs' salaries that was scheduled for Friday.

Peter Hartnell, who heads a group of citizens working to set up a public discussion of the proposed 50 per cent raise in MPs' salaries, said the group has not been able to get the Newcombe Auditorium for the meeting.

Tentative arrangements have been made to rent Oak Bay junior high school auditorium on Jan. 10, he said, but these arrangements have not been completed.

No Line-Ups For 1975 Licences

Business was slow this morning as 1975 automobile licences and insurance went on sale at the Motor-Vehicle Branch and Autoplan agencies around Victoria.

The long line-ups that traditionally accompanied the first day of licence plate sales have disappeared with the advent of Autoplan and only four motorists were waiting outside the MVB office to buy their new licences at opening time today.

Previously, motorists stood in long queues, hoping to receive low numbers on their licence plates but now drivers keep the same licence plate each year and simply receive a new decal to stick on the plate when they purchase their 1975 auto insurance.

Drivers have until Feb. 28 to acquire a new licence decal and to renew their Autoplan insurance at any MVB office or Autoplan agency.

Seer's Outlook Gloomy ...

BEIRUT — Mao Tse-tung will be shot dead, President Gerald Ford will die, Australia will disappear in a massive earthquake and the bombing by Israel of Mecca will touch off the Third World War in 1975.

These and other dire predictions, published in the Beirut Daily Star Wednesday, were by Abdul Hafiz Attar, a soothsayer who claims 95-percent accuracy for previous predictions.

The Chinese and American leaders will be among half a dozen statesman to die this year, he said. The others include British Prime Minister Harold Wilson, Gen. Francisco Franco and Ian Smith, Rhodesia's prime minister.

WASHINGTON — Supreme Court Justice William Douglas, who has served on the U.S. top court longer than any other man, is in hospital in serious condition here following a stroke suffered while vacationing in Nassau. The 76-year-old justice, perhaps the most controversial and individualistic justice ever to serve on the court, was reported alert and resting comfortably in the Walter Reed Army Medical Centre's intensive care unit here following a flight here from the Bahamas on a military plane supplied at the direction of President Ford.

CAPE TOWN — Dr. Christiaan Barnard's surgical team's second double-heart transplant patient, a 47-year-old white man, is doing extremely well. The operation was carried out Wednesday and the patient now has a second heart operating alongside his own heart. Dr. Barnard performed the first human heart transplant seven years ago and the first double transplant a month ago. Thursday's patient had already undergone two heart operations, the last one in 1969 when Dr. Barnard inserted an aortic valve.

VAIL, Colo. — White House press secretary Ron Nease told reporters his New Year's resolution was to quit smoking and bragged that he had been successful for 10 1/2 hours. He chatted briefly, then walked toward his office — lighting a cigarette.

LONDON, Ont. — Lawyers for Peter Demeter filed an appeal Tuesday against his Dec. 5 conviction of murder punishable by life imprisonment. Demeter, 41, a Mississauga, Ont., builder was convicted of hiring someone to kill his 33-year-old wife, Christine, in July, 1973. His lawyers listed 34 grounds for appeal in their application and more grounds are expected to be filed before the appeal is heard.

LOS ANGELES — Nine-year-old John Lanley wasn't injured but the rescuing fireman helped the boy avoid a narrow brush with disillusionment. John became stuck in a neighbor's chimney during an effort to recreate Santa's journey of a few nights earlier. Firemen pulled John out

Benny's Estate To Kin

LOS ANGELES, Calif. — Jack Benny left the bulk of his multi-million dollar estate to his close family in a will that also instructed how his violins should be disposed of, probate documents showed.

Benny left a $100,000 monthly trust income to his wife, Mary Livingstone, as well as a $100,000 bequest and his Beverly Hills mansion.

He asked that his Stradivarius and Presenda violins, which he had donated earlier to the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra but retained for his own use during his lifetime, should be handed over to the orchestra.

A Los Angeles Philharmonic spokesman said the Benny Stradivarius might be worth between $50,000 and $100,000.

Benny left $2,000 monthly and a $50,000 bequest to his adopted daughter, Joan. He left $600 monthly and $20,000 to his sister Mrs. Florence Feenach of Chicago.

Tourists Get Help

ESTEVAN, Sask. (CP) — This southeastern Saskatchewan city has been selected by the provincial highways department to start a pilot program to provide highway turnouts at city entrances. The city will erect informational map-type signs. The signs will show tourists available facilities, major streets and highway routes and general information of use to highway travellers.

with only a few scraps and lots of soot to show for his journey.

But John was curious. If a little boy can get stuck in a chimney, how does a rotund Santa make it up and down the chimney? It's magic, explained the firemen. And it only works on Christmas.

WASHINGTON — The White House tapes played at the Watergate cover-up trial can be duplicated and sold for as little as $88, according to papers filed in U.S. district court. The major broadcasting networks in the U.S. told judge Gerhard Gesell there were no technical problems with duplications and asked him to make final his Dec. 5 order permitting the tapes to be played publicly.

VANDERHOOF — More than $1,300 found by four Vanderhoof boys at a fill project in September, 1973, will be handed over to them on Jan. 20. The money was distributed equally between John Theissen, and Danny Wieb, both 11; Malcolm Evans, 12, and Todd Millard, 8, came Tuesday from the Attorney-General's department.

NOT A LAUGHING MATTER

VANCOUVER — The annual report of the British Columbia Humor Society shows it to be the largest organization of its type in the world—but financially as flat as some of its president's jokes.

Seven years ago, humor society president John Post, made everybody in B.C. a society member and reports now, with a hint of triumph, that few B.C. residents are aware of the society.

The society's chief activity for 1974 consists of Post, in a clown costume cheering up children in Vancouver General and St. Paul's hospitals each Sunday from May to November.

But, he reported Wednesday, he has run out of money for the balloons, chocolate bars and party favors used to shore up his jokes. He is asking for support from his 2.2 million members and has applied for a Local Initiatives Program grant.

Here's Proof Prices Are Down

United Press International
Your favorite drink may taste the same, but there's a difference, and unless you are a liquor connoisseur, chances are you won't be able to tell.
Major distillers in the United States, hit by soaring costs of raw materials and production, have been lowering the proof or alcoholic strength — instead of raising prices.
"Many tests have been done which show the change is extremely minor," said a spokesman for American Distilling Co. in New York. "If you drink it mixed with anything else you won't know at all, and in any case — unless you were an expert — most people wouldn't be able to tell."

The federal tax on liquor is determined by its proof, which is measured as twice a product's alcoholic content.

Lowering the proof by four or six points can add up to substantial tax savings.
For example, a gallon of 86 proof whisky is taxed $9.03 by the government. When it is lowered to 80 proof, that same gallon would be taxed $8.40, a saving of 63 cents.
A spokesman for Seagram in New York said the changes are the result of sharp increases in the cost of corn, rye and barley malt for alcohol-producing mash. He said the price of a bushel of corn has nearly doubled since August 1973.

The shift started last summer when several major gin distillers began trimming the potency of their products from 90 to 86 proof.
"In the area of gin, the consumer is not that upset with that kind of move," said Jerome Levy, vice president for Fleischmann Distilling in New York, "and it represents a tremendous saving in tax."

Population Studied

LONDON (CP) — A centre for overseas population studies will be set up in Britain during the next three years. It will be funded by the ministry of overseas development which is providing some £180,000 ($414,000). The centre, to be organized by the London School of Hygiene and Tropical Medicine, will provide a focal point for training and research into vital statistics of human population.

Communist Threat To Saigon Approach

By PHILIP McCOMB
SAIGON (WP) — For the first time since the spring of 1972 a provincial capital seems in danger of falling to Communist troops, and military analysts here are watching for signs of the government's will and capacity to resist.

The fighting in Phuoc Long province has now concentrated around the province capital of Song Be, 30 miles north-east of here in the rolling hills country that lies just below the central highlands, and that provides an important approach to Saigon itself.

A year ago there was heavy fighting in Quang Duc province just to the north of Phuoc Long province as the communists consolidated their grip on long stretches of national highway 14 that runs from north to south.

This year the fighting in Phuoc Long may leave the Communist in control of additional lengthy stretches of Highway 14 south of the areas they gained last year and much closer to Saigon.

The last province capitals to be seriously threatened were An Loc, located 25 miles west of Song Be, and Quang Tri, in the extreme northern part of the country, in the Communist Easter offensive in 1972.

With support from American B-52 bombers and tactical fighter-bombers, the government soldiers managed to hold both capitals, and the heroic defence of An Loc by South Vietnamese troops became a proud chapter in the history of the government forces.

But today An Loc is a tiny island in a vast area in which Communist forces move freely, and Song Be is surrounded by Communist forces, who since Dec. 12 have overrun three of the province's four district capitals: equivalent to county seats in the U.S.

The fourth district capital, Phuoc Binh, is located about 3 miles from Song Be, and the frightened soldiers and civilians who could escape from the rest of the province have gathered in these two places to make a last stand.

These consist of about five territorial battalions and one regular infantry battalion, plus some 25,000 civilians. They face the 5,000-man seventh North Vietnamese Army Division, backed by tank and artillery units.

At noon Tuesday Phuoc Binh came under a massive Communist ground attack that included assaulting tanks and followed 400 rounds of artillery fire. The attack was repulsed.

Song Be was shelled at the same time, according to military sources here.

Radio contact with the two towns has been maintained, but fixed-wing aircraft are no longer able to land there because of intense anti-aircraft fire, and helicopters are able to make it in only with difficulty.

The food and ammunition supply is said to be running short, although in the past 24 hours government sources said 1,000 troops were landed in Song Be and Phuoc Binh to reinforce the garrisons there.

In the capture of the three district capitals in fighting since Dec. 12, the Communists are said by sources here to have gained direct control of about 20,000 civilians.

A total of about 2,000 government soldiers were defending those three capitals, and most of them are dead or missing, according to government sources here.

The government is limited in its capacity to reinforce Phuoc Long at a time when 17 faces Communist military pressure in other nearby provinces, in the rice-rich Mekong Delta and in the far northern parts of the country, where the best troops including the airborne division and the marines are stationed.

Foreign and Vietnamese journalists have not been allowed to fly into Phuoc Long during the current fighting.

Industry Commissar Gets Boot

MOSCOW (UPI) — The head of the Russian Federation's light industry ministry, under fire for failing to produce enough consumer goods, has been relieved of his duties.

The Russian Federation, with a population of 323 million, is the largest and economically most important of the nation's 15 republics. With Moscow as its capital, it extends from the Baltic to the Pacific.

At last week's session of the Supreme Soviet (Parliament) of the Russian Federation, Solov'yev's ministry came under criticism for inadequate production of consumer items.

A deputy from Novosibirsk said the ministry did not pay enough attention to production of consumer goods.

LITTLE PEOPLE'S PUZZLE

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN
While the Summer National Championships were taking place in Denver in July of 1972, the world's chess championship between Bobby Fischer of the U.S.A. and Boris Spassky of the Soviet Union was also going on in Reykjavik, Iceland. And, at that time, the chess influence was making itself felt everywhere, including Denver. An example can be observed in today's deal, which arose in the National Mixed Team-of-Four Championship. Both sides vulnerable. North deals.

Opening lead: King of ♠.

After cashing his three top spades, West shifted to the three of diamonds, East's queen being taken by South's ace. South next led the five of clubs to mummy's ace. He then laid down the queen of trumps, East following suit with the five-spot. Declarer now pushed his chair back and reflected.

What motivated him to come to the conclusion he finally came to, I do not know. But he played the ace of trumps out of his hand, instead of finessing. West then put a card face down on the table, and sadly intoned: "I resign." As is evident, that card was the king of trumps.

From a mathematical point of view, declarer's putting up of his ace to catch West's hoped-for singleton king, was incorrect. The proper play was to finesse against East's hoped-for king.

The finesse would be the winning play whenever East had been dealt either the K-3, the K-5, or the K-3-3. It would be a losing play only when East had been dealt the singleton king. But, on this day, the underdog play of the ace to catch the king was the winning play.

An additional thing also happened on this deal which would tend to demonstrate that South's winning play was incorrect: on the lead of the trump queen, East had followed suit with the five-spot. If the five-spot were an honest play (that is, East's lowest trump), then West couldn't possess the singleton king. Luckily for South, he paid no attention to mathematics of "facts."

Early Warning Of Hazards

LONDON (CP)—A dash-board-mounted message display unit to warn motorists of hazards ahead has been developed in Britain for use on high-speed roads. Operated by roadside transmitters, a working prototype unit has been developed by the transport and road research laboratory. A buzzer warns the driver of the message. The unit prints out the hazard, where it is and what the driver is to do.

BRITISH STRONGMAN EATS GRASS TO SAVE

PETERBOROUGH, England (Reuter) — A performing strongman has started the new year on a diet of grass and clover — because rising food bills are eating too big a hole in his wages.

Walter Cornelius, 54, a swimming pool attendant who performs strongarm and stunt acts for charity in his spare time, said: "People think I'm mad when they see me chewing grass, but I tell them that cows and horses do well on it so why shouldn't I."

Cornelius, who earns $55 a week, says he eats about four pounds of grass a day, and prefers it with just a drop of dew. This adds moisture to the palate, he says.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Twenty-three people appeared before Judge William Ostler in Victoria provincial court Tuesday, the last day of 1974.

The list was not a particularly heavy one—only two cases went to completion, one was withdrawn at the request of the crown counsel, and the rest remanded for a variety of reasons.

The charges reflect the times and provide mute testimony to the kind of year it's been, a year of rising violence and soaring crime in Victoria.

Drug cases dominated court proceedings. However, of the five people who faced drug charges only four will go to court. One was set free after crown counsel said the alleged restricted drug seized in the case had failed to analyse as the illicit drug lab in Vancouver.

Four people appeared on impaired driving charges, two for armed robbery, two for shoplifting, one for non-capital murder, one for breaking and entering and theft, one for theft of mail, one escapee from an interior B.C. jail, two for fraud offences, one for mischief, one breach of probation and one possession of stolen property under $200.

Only two guilty pleas were entered. Michael Bender, 18, of 229 Cadillac and Lawrence Foss, 46, of 2376 Bellamy, each pleaded guilty to impaired driving and were fined $400.

The remainder, having pleaded not guilty, are now awaiting trial, one set as late as May 2, the earliest available date.

It wasn't all gloomy, there were moments that produced if not a laugh at least a smile. Like the accused impaired driver who gave his occupation: "I'm a plasterer, your honor."

And like the case of the 81-year-old man charged with uttering bad cheques who Ostler wished to recall to confirm the remand date previously set.

The sheriff opened the door to the lockup behind and to the right of the judge's bench. He called out the elderly man's name. There was a long wait. He called the name again. Another long wait.

Finally Ostler, growing restless, peered over and remarked dryly: "He seemed to be swifter in making his first appearance."

At that point the man arrived and shuffled into the prisoner's box.

Drake Hotel Inquiry In 2 Weeks

An inquiry into the $30,000 fire at the Drake Hotel Sunday which killed 56-year-old Melba Lucille Michaels is expected to be held in two weeks.

Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre said today he expects an inquest into the hotel fire will not be needed and an inquiry will be sufficient.

Final decision on the matter will have to be delayed until completion of toxicological tests in about two weeks.

Sub Bumping Report Draws 'No Comment'

WASHINGTON (Reuter)—The defence department refused to comment Wednesday on a report that a U.S. nuclear submarine had been involved in a collision with a Soviet submarine under the North Sea last November.

Columnist Jack Anderson, quoting "on-the-spot sources," said the American Polaris submarine Madison was patrolling in the North Sea on Nov. 3 when it and a Soviet vessel scraped hulls.

Both submarines surfaced, Anderson said, where they inspected each other warily from a short distance. No communications were exchanged.

Asked about the report Wednesday, a department spokesman replied, "no comment."

Anderson said the Madison returned to base at Holy Loch, Scotland, with a nine-foot scrape along its hull.

He quoted sources as saying there would have been no nuclear hazard if the submarines had been ruptured and sunk.

Anderson did not name the Soviet vessel or say how much damage it had sustained, if any.

January 2, 1975.

Dear Eaton's Shopper:

It is with regret that we announce the closure of our Fine Foods and Meat Departments as of January 18, 1975.

We have been forced into this position due to the limited demand for groceries in our downtown location. The cost of operating a good supermarket with a declining demand has made it necessary for us to make this decision.

We are most appreciative to those of you who have supported our grocery operation through the years, and are sorry for any inconvenience this decision may cause. We are grateful for your confidence and patronage in the past, and hope you will continue to let us serve you through our other departments throughout our Store.

The space gained through this closure will allow Eaton's to expand other departments, enabling us to provide our customers with greater selection and service.

Sincerely,
R. W. Hind,
Store Manager

COMMUNITY EDUCATION SERVICES EVENING COURSES

Enquiries Invited

Our telephone number is 592-1281 — Ask for Community Education Services. Our address is: EWING BUILDING, 1950 LANSDOWNE ROAD, VICTORIA, B.C. V8P 1B2.

How to Register

Registrations may be made in two ways:

1. Students may register early for all courses. This reserves a position in the class for the first who apply, the remainder being accepted if vacancies exist. To register, fill in the Application Form or send a letter giving the same information: Name, address, telephone number, course, fee and evening. Registration may be made in person in the Community Education Services Office (Ewing Building), Lansdowne and Richmond.
2. If not previously registered, a student may register at the school on the evening the class opens if space is available.
3. Fee for the full course must be paid at the time of registration.

Request for Refunds . . .

Requests for refunds will be considered only if received in the Community Education Services Office, 1950 Lansdowne Road, prior to commencement of the 3rd session of any course. A $3.00 registration fee will be deducted. An official receipt must be submitted with any application for refund. Fees are refundable in full when a class is cancelled. Students who wish to transfer to another class must pay a $3.00 transfer fee.

Continuing Courses

Courses that started in the Fall and continue after the New Year will re-commence the week of January 6, 1975. There are a few vacancies in some of the continuing courses, open to students who have had some experience in the selected subject. Registration fees for enrolment in mid-term of a course are half the regular fee. Interested applicants are invited to enquire by telephone (592-1281, Local 221) or call in person at our office (Lansdowne Campus).

Over-Subscribed Courses

If sufficient applications are received for courses already full, additional courses may be started at a later date.

General Counselling

If you wish assistance in selecting a course, please telephone or call in person at the office. It is a privilege to assist you.

Class Cancellation

The Director of Community Education Services reserves the right to discontinue any class in which enrolment is less than 12 persons, or in which the attendance or progress is unsatisfactory, or postpone classes when inclement weather conditions exist.

Equipment and Supplies

Common tools and equipment normally supplied by the school may be used by the evening students. However, specialized tools, materials, books, etc. must be supplied by the student unless otherwise noted.

Japan International Cultural Exchange

For the past two years Camosun College has been involved in organizing a tour for some 35 Japanese High School students at the end of July. It is anticipated that this will be a continuing program. Part of the requirement is for approximately five days stay in a Canadian home. Anyone who is interested in hosting one or more of these students, please contact Camosun College, 592-1281, Local 221 at anytime. We will be pleased to record your name for future reference.

PLEASE NOTE: For Spring and Summer Terms, there is a possibility that other courses may be offered if there is sufficient interest.

Camosun College, in endeavoring to satisfy a wide spectrum of community needs, offers two programs in Business Studies. The Division of Community Education Services offers a Certificate Program in Business Management and the Business Division offers a Diploma Program in Business Administration.

A Certificate is the document awarded for the completion of a series of courses which, if offered on a full-time basis, would extend over a period of one year or less.

A transcript shall be issued on successful completion of each Community Education Business Management course.

A College Diploma is awarded to a student who has completed a full two-year program in studies at the post-secondary level.

Some of the subjects within the Certificate Program carry transfer credit to the Diploma Program. Any student who might aspire to a Diploma in Business Administration should check out those courses which carry duplicate credit.

Not Guilty: Watergate 3 Still Say

Times News Services
WASHINGTON — The three most powerful men of Richard Nixon's administration, who stand convicted of conspiring to cover up their involvement in Watergate, today steadfastly maintain they will prove their innocence on appeal.

Unlike some of their former colleagues now in prison, John Mitchell, H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman were far from contrite after the verdict was handed down Wednesday.

They remain free on personal bond and because of appeals it could be a year before any of them start jail terms.

Haldeman and Ehrlichman, the men who ran the Nixon White House, were convicted of conspiracy, obstruction of justice and lying as was Mitchell. Robert Mardian, 51, a former assistant attorney general and campaign aide, was convicted of conspiracy.

Kenneth Parkinson, 46, hired to do Watergate legal work, was acquitted of conspiracy and obstruction of justice—the first Watergate defendant to go free.

Fare Hike In Air Deficit?

MONTREAL (UPI) — Air Canada disclosed today a 1974 deficit of about $9 million and warned that air fares will have to rise again during 1975 to help offset inflation.

The chairman of the government-owned airlines, Yves Pratte, condemned "skyrocketing" fuel prices in the past year and warned: "At stake in this situation is the continued health of the entire air transport industry."

Pratte announced the deficit in a year-end statement and said precise figures would be issued later. The $9 million represented a net approximate figure, he added.

Pratte said doubts in the Canadian and world economies were expected to continue in 1975 and financial results for the year "are at best uncertain."

"The airline expects the year will be one of modest growth on its North American services but with little or no growth on international routes," he said.

"This is certainly a reversal of what the industry has been accustomed to in the past decade."

Pratte said the deficit — only the second for the airline in 11 years — was due to "unprecedented" inflationary pressures during 1974, chiefly higher fuel costs.

The airline's fuel bill for the year soared by more than $70 million, or 83 per cent, over the figure for 1973.

To maintain "economic equilibrium," the airline stepped up sales efforts and launched a major drive to cut costs and improve productivity.

It also imposed a round of fare hikes, the first domestic increases since 1971.

TAX CUT DELAYED BY LATE MAILING

OTTAWA (CP) — Take-home pay for most workers likely will go up next week, at least on paper, but it might take longer for the results of tax changes to show up on paycheques.

The federal budget tabled in November cut income taxes but the revenue department has not mailed out all the new tax tables.

A department spokesman said tables were being mailed out this week with the mailing to be completed Thursday.

The tax deduction at source for a head of family — married with two children — earning the average industrial wage — nearly $200 a week — will drop by close to $5.

3 Pubs Run Low On Beer

Three Victoria-area pubs are expected to close in a week unless the work stoppage at Carling O'Keefe Brewery in Vancouver is resolved before then.

The three are Westwind International Motor Inn at Langford, the Colwood Inn at Colwood and King John Inn at 2668 Sooke Road.

In Vancouver, about 35 beer parlors have already been closed as a result of the shutdown, according to Lloyd Manuel, executive vice president of the B.C. Hotels Association.

About 220 employees at Carling O'Keefe stopped work Dec. 27 to protest a layoff of 60 during the Christmas season.

The employees are engaged in a study session at the company's lunch room and no work is being done.

"This will lead to widespread layoffs for hotels unless it is resolved quickly," Manuel said.

About 33 per cent of British Columbia hotels rely upon Carling O'Keefe draft beer.

A senior official at the brewery said the company has arranged a meeting with the Labor Relations Board for 9 a.m. Friday in an effort to resolve the dispute.

"It is just a preliminary meeting but we hope it will lead to a quick solution," he said.

There are 60 hotels on the lower mainland which rely upon Carling O'Keefe for their draft beer. They were closing their beer parlors as soon as their draft was gone. Of the total, 37 hotels are in Vancouver and another 19 are in Burnaby.

In Victoria, Bill Trimble, pub manager of Westwind, said he ordered an extra large supply of draft during the Christmas season as a favor to his supplier so there would not have to be a delivery this week.

As a result, he has enough draft on hand for about seven more days, depending upon demand.

"We didn't know this was coming. It was just a stroke of luck that we ordered an extra supply. Otherwise we would be out of beer now."

The King John Inn also has an extra large order on hand, enough to last five or six days more, based upon normal demand.

Colwood Inn expects to run out of beer next Thursday unless normal deliveries are restored.

Surprise for Cool-Aid In C'wealth Youth Award

Victoria-Cool-Aid has won the first Commonwealth youth award granted by the Commonwealth secretariat.

The London-based secretariat also gave the award, established under a program started in 1973, to a Malaysian group running a farming operation.

Cool-Aid, the non-profit group, which operates a youth hostel and other community services at 1900 Fernwood, will receive a plaque and medals to mark the award.

Up to five Cool-Aid workers will get travel fellowships "to study similar projects in other Commonwealth countries, and to demonstrate and discuss the work they have undertaken," the secretariat said.

News of the award came as a surprise to Cool-Aid staff.

"We knew nothing about it," said Dave Brand, one of seven full-time workers at the hostel.

The federal secretary of state's department contacted Cool-Aid about 10 months ago seeking information so they could apply for the award on behalf of the group, said worker Laurie Smith.

"Then we heard nothing for a long period of time, until three weeks ago," he said.

Cool-Aid was asked to send more information about their projects.

Smith said they expect to get details of the award and the travel fellowships in a few days.

Cool-Aid started in 1968 as a hostel for transient youth in a rented house on Balmoral.

Today it owns the former Emmanuel Baptist Church at Fernwood and Gladstone, which contains a men's and women's hostel, a dental clinic that offers reduced rates to low-income people, and a full-time medical clinic.

The former church sanctuary, renamed the Springridge Theatre, is available for community groups that want to hold a meeting or put on a play.

Cool-Aid has been open 24 hours a day, seven days a week for the past five years, Smith said.

Cool-Aid also administers a group home for problem teenagers on Port St., and runs a day care centre in a house on Balmoral.

GOLD DOWN DRASTICALLY

Times News Services

LONDON — The price of gold tumbled by almost $11 an ounce on the London market today.

The closing price of $173.50 was the first time the price had fallen below the $180 in three weeks.

Dealers attributed the decline to disappointment over the U.S. public's thin response to the lifting of the 41-year ban on their owning gold and to continuous profit taking.

Gold was fixed at $185 at mid-morning in London. In the afternoon the price was fixed at $175.

Ambulances Centralized

By DON VIVOND
Times Staff

A new dispatch centre to co-ordinate ambulance service throughout the Capital District has been set up along-side Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Dr. Peter Ransford, executive director of the B.C. Emergency Health Services Commission, said today the centre will likely also be used to co-ordinate long-distance ambulance runs throughout the province.

The centre, at 2355 Richmond, has the phone number 388-9911 which can be used to summon an ambulance anywhere in the district.

At present it has a staff of five dispatchers and about 40 ambulance crewmen whose seven vehicles cover Victoria and Esquimalt directly. But it is in contact with other district ambulance services.

The provincial government assumed responsibility for all ambulance service in B.C. six months ago and the new centre in Victoria is one step in a phased co-ordination of services.

Ransford said there are smaller communities in the province served by only one ambulance. A co-ordinating centre is needed to organize continuing ambulance coverage for such places when the lone ambulance has to be used for long-distance runs, for example, to bring a patient to a major Vancouver hospital.

The new Victoria dispatch centre will probably be developed to provide that service, he said.

The centre and its staff now directly control two ambulances based at Victoria General Hospital and one at Langford. The other four vehicles are currently based at the centre, which lies between Jubilee Hospital, the former Veterans' Hospital and the Eric Martin Institute.

Ransford said an ambulance will be based in the Burnside-Tillicum area at a location yet to be settled.

All told there are over 20 ambulances operating from Sidney to Sooke, run by municipalities for the province. Ransford said re-organization of the services on a regional basis should trim this total, producing some economy in operation.

John Carlow, former operator of Victoria Ambulance Service, is the zone co-ordinator for the province's Victoria area ambulance service.

Five new ambulances have been put in service locally, one at Sidney, one at View Royal and three in Victoria.

CAMOSUN PROGRAM

It will be back to school again for thousands of Victoria-area adults soon as the Camosun College community education services program resumes early this month. The full calendar of courses offered is contained in a special supplement in today's Victoria Times.

SKIPPER FINED

The skipper of a South Korean fishing vessel who admitted violating the Coastal Fisheries Protection Act was fined a total of $15,000 in Victoria provincial court today.

Kil Jun Yu, captain of the 620-ton Dong Won 707, pleaded guilty to illegally being in Canadian waters and fishing in those waters off the Queen Charlotte Islands Dec. 22.

Maximum fine under the act is $25,000 for fishing inside the 12-mile boundary, $10,000 for entering Canadian waters, plus forfeit of the cargo, boat and gear. Ostler ordered that the 45 tons of frozen black cod on the vessel be forfeited.

Yu told the court through an interpreter he had not been aware his vessel had crossed the boundary.

Whole New Set of People Standing in L.A. Breadline

By CHARLES FOLEY
LOS ANGELES — By noon, the line outside the Hospitality Kitchen on Sixth Street in downtown Los Angeles is a good two blocks long.

It is one of several soup kitchens in this city of seven million which are doing a roaring trade as the economy sinks into an every-deepening, ever more frightening tailspin.

"There's a whole new set of people coming in," says Katy Morris, a teacher turned social worker. "Not skid-row types at all. I've talked to people today who can discuss everything from Carlos Castaneda to Castro, and they all say: 'We can't find work—there isn't any.'"

For six million American breadwinners, jobless and increasingly hopeless, the recession brought a Black Christmas.

California, the barometer state, already has 8.7 per cent of its work force unemployed, compared with a national average of 6.5 per cent—and its second city, San Diego, is above the 10 per cent level. (These figures are being compared here with the 2.7 per cent in gloomy Britain.)

A long cold winter is on, and with it the worst and longest recession since the Second World War.

Across the country a staggering 37.5 per cent of the black teenage population—the young and black are always the hardest hit by any slump—are idle and ineligible for unemployment benefits.

But this time the fear of a depression as bad as that of the thirties is haunting the white middle classes no less than the poor in the Watts ghetto near here. Many still working full or part-time suspect that their employers are holding back the bad news until the New Year.

Among the industrial giants who have already made big lay-offs are General Motors, Xerox, General Electric, Union Pacific, RCA and Sears Roebuck, which has been hit by the heavy slump in Christmas sales. Some people were "released" at a few hours' notice, shortly before deadlines guaranteeing three days paid holiday over Christmas and New Year.

"This time, lay-offs are in all sections of employment, not just one or two," says a Californian labor official. "Workers are being sent home by the car industry, steel, lumber, computer firms, electronics, textiles, construction, some plants have been indefinitely closed down." A few states have run out of funds to assist the unemployed; others are borrowing.

Many of those being "let go" are white-collar people. A Los Angeles car dealer has reduced his staff to a single person, himself. A real estate developer has cleared out an entire office floor because of staff cuts. Herbert Hezlep III, president of Acme General, makers of hardware, has closed down three plants for three weeks. "Everyone's gonna take a vacation," he says, "including me."

Some firms are laying off workers who have been with their companies for 20 or 30 years. Now they must line up outside the Office of Human Resources (the unemployment office) or join the siege of welfare bureaus, which show signs of crumpling under the enormously increased work load.

More than half of those left idle have no unemployment insurance. — in California alone each week 4,000 exhaust their short-term benefits. Shame-faced "middle class families are lining up for the first time to obtain federal food stamps, which can be exchanged for groceries, to supplement their diets. Often they wait several hours for attention, then return again and

Honored Canadian Endangered Species?

My editor friend, the one who gives me ideas for column subjects, sometimes even usable ones, thinks I should write a few nasty words about what he considers the elevation of a class elite within our shores.

To be precise, the newest naming of companions of the Order of Canada, which happens to include several people I admire, including Grace McInnis, Theresa Casgrain, Kate Reid and Pierre Berton, has aroused his ire. "We should leave that sort of nonsense to the British," he opines in a note to me. "In Canada it is simply undemocratic to single out men or women who have made achievements to be honored by the Queen." Oh, he's beautiful when he's angry.

It interests me (and I wonder if Grace recalls this) that one of the strongest objections to even a token order of privilege came from the late Angus McInnis, MP. That, as I recall it, was fully 20 years ago when George Nowland, MP first proposed a sort of watered-down Canadian knighthood and was rewarded with abuse from coast to coast.

Angus, himself, gave the example of the then prime minister, Louis St. Laurent. He said he'd rather continue thinking of him as Uncle Louis rather than Sir Louis, though, in fact, we now know that St. Laurent was more sir than uncle. Whether Angus would approve to this latest list, giving well-deserved honor to his wife and several others of his political persuasion, we'll never know.

It does, however, reflect a Canadian way of thinking, a determination to be self-effacing and modest to the point where we've made ourselves a mass of mediocre nonentities, that I think is just about ready to be discarded. We're a breed intent on existing without heros. Our symbol is the beaver and his anonymous toil. That's surely one measure of immaturity.

We're a long way from having any real, deserving heros, maybe, but I'm in favor of giving this little bit of recognition to Canadians who have made any lasting contribution to our culture.

Too often, it seems to me, we never really respect men or women until they've made good beyond our own borders. Lorne Green touched on the subject the other night when he was interviewed on Canadian television. For many years Green had been one of the outstanding actors in our country. Then he won himself a supporting role in a Broadway production. "A strange thing happened," he reminisced. "When the play closed and I returned to Toronto people came up to me for the first time in my life and asked for my autograph."

It isn't merely that Canadians are unwilling to find merit in their own back yard. It's more insidious than that. There is a suspicion that if it is Canadian it must be second rate without a certified seal of approval from outside. The creative artist in this country never "arrives." He is perpetually on trial before a jury that sometimes seems almost eager to confirm its ready assumption that his talent can't be much.

The writer, the artist, the musician, the actor confronts critics from coast-to-coast. If he cannot get even passing recognition through this Order of Canada then I'm all for it. He'll certainly get it no other way.

There are dangers, of course, in any system of civilian awards. Even in Great Britain the conferring of knighthood often seems a hit-or-miss procedure and too often a vehicle for rewarding good behaviour in the name of achievement. Its been widely reported, for example, that Richard Burton, who was in line for knighthood, can forget all about it since his magazine article suggesting that Sir Winston Churchill was a rather nasty man. Barons and earls are seldom wave-makers.

But a Canadian "honors list," however abused, would at least have the merit of reminding us that we are more than a nation of beaver-people.

The fact is that we hunger for it. No country in the world, I daresay, has so many intra-mural honor rolls as a substitute for the real McCoy. The papers are full of pictures of insurance men wistfully handling over insurance men scrolls of merit and hog-breeders honoring other hog-breeders and newspapermen conferring certificates on other newspapermen and universities handing out en bloc their doctorates.

All of this is to provide plasma for the ego, which, in this painfully modest land, might otherwise dry up and blow away. So, all honors to the new companions of the order, and jolly good luck to them.

No Illusions Of Temperance

Sidney RCMP hold no illusions that the new year will be one of temperance, despite the lack of drunk driving charges and accidents over the holiday season.

It was the same last year. "We didn't charge a single person with impaired driving over the Christmas-New Year period . . . and then came the first weekend in January. We had six . . . a record number for us," an RCMP spokesman said.

So, they'll be watching closely this weekend.

Other Greater Victoria police had similar reports, describing New Year's Eve as "one of the quietest ever."

Even by today, 30 hours into the new year, police have yet to investigate a serious accident or lay a drinking charge.

In Vancouver, city police reported Wednesday that about 1,000 cars were stopped by roadblocks New Year's Eve compared with 1,520 cars in 1973. A spokesman said five arrests were made and 11 24-hour suspensions handed out compared with 19 arrests and 28 suspensions the previous year.

Duncan Police Hold Man on Jail Pass

Ask The Times

Q. Where can an authority on men missing in action and casualties from the Second World War Royal Air Force units be contacted? G.B.

A. If you can provide full particulars, RAF authorities in England may be able to provide information. Write to: Ministry of Defence (Royal Air Force), Main Building, White Hall, London, Eng., SW12HB.

A man on temporary pass from William Head prison was one of three men Duncan police arrested this morning following a report of a safe-cracking at the Royal Canadian Legion.

Ronald Glen Westad, 31, is to appear in Duncan provincial court later today along with James Norman McPherson, 40, of no fixed address, and Larry Lewis Matthews, 31, of Duncan.

They were arrested outside the Legion at 3 a.m. after RCMP received a tip from a Cowichan Security employee. Westad was serving nine years for a number of breaking and entering charges and was due for release in September. He had been granted a three-day pass to attend the Seven Step program in Vancouver, a group dedicated to helping criminals change their ways.

FINAL FAREWELL to the Pacific Coast's only submarine HMCS Rainbow came Tuesday when remnants of her ship's company paraded for her decommissioning and the final lowering of her ensign, naval jack and commissioning pennant. Most of her crew has already been assigned to other duties and her commanding officer, Lt.-Cmdr. Lloyd Barnes, will fly to Halifax Tuesday to take over command of HMCS Ojibwa, one of the east coast's three submarines. The defence department has no plans for Rainbow's final disposal — or her replacement. (Bill Halkett photo.)

Hood Seeks Region Chair

Regional board chairman Jim Campbell will be challenged Wednesday by Victoria Ald. Alf Hood for the 1975 chairmanship.

Hood said today he has been approached to see if he would run and "I am delighted and honored" to accept.

Asked if he is dissatisfied with the board, he said "very definitely not. The present chairman has worked very diligently."

Hood said "a change at times is a good thing" and "I feel that a little competition now and then stimulates everyone."

Campbell, chairman for the last two years, said today he will seek re-election. "I'd like to have another chance at it. There are a great many things I have been involved in I'd like to carry through," he said.

Much of the possibility of the regional board developing depends on an understanding between electoral area and municipal directors, he said, "and my geographic position allows me to move things along."

'HOOD' . . . 'competition' needed

Campbell is the director from the outer Gulf Islands.

The election will be decided by the 18 members of the regional board, 11 from the municipalities and seven from the non-municipal areas.

Man Found Hanged In Victoria Cells

A 19-year-old youth hanged himself in Victoria city police jail late Wednesday night.

Chief Jack Gregory said today Robert Allan Ellis of 2453 Eastdowne was found at 10:50 p.m. hanging by a T-shirt attached to the top bar of his cell in the third floor lockup at 625 Fisgard.

Ellis was taken to Victoria General Hospital where he was pronounced dead on arrival at 11:30 p.m.

Coroner Edmund St. Jorre has ordered an inquest and said he hopes to open it by 7 p.m. Friday.

Gregory said Ellis had been a patient in Victoria General Hospital for three months, during which time the youth had undergone brain surgery.

He had been released from hospital by his doctor at 6 p.m. Wednesday and had apparently called for a ride to take him home.

However, said Gregory, staff found Ellis a short time later to have broken into the hospital pharmacy.

Police arrived at 7 p.m. and, after questioning him, placed him in a cell at 9:45 p.m.

He was scheduled to appear in provincial court this morning, charged with breaking and entering, theft, and possession of drugs Gregory said.

The chief said the jailer checked Ellis at 10:15 p.m. and "everything appeared normal". On the second check at 10:50 p.m. the jailer found Ellis hanging by a shirt twisted into a rope. His feet were touching the ground.

Sidney Baby Tops New Year's Race

Greater Victoria had to wait almost an hour for the first baby of the New Year to arrive early Wednesday.

The first baby in Canada arrived at the other end of the country on the stroke of midnight.

Locally, Resthaven Hospital in Sidney won the New Year's baby race at 12:59 a.m. with the arrival of a baby girl there, third child of Eleanor and John Freethy, RR 1, Sidney.

It was ladies first at Victoria's two general hospitals as well, in a close finish.

At Royal Jubilee Hospital, a baby girl for Wayne and Linda Plante of Langford arrived at 1:25 a.m. Three minutes later another girl, daughter for Judy and David Bickert of 587 Cedarcrest Dr., arrived at Victoria General Hospital.

Canada's first recorded birth for 1975 was in Newfoundland, a daughter for Mr. and Mrs. Gerbaise Robias of Degras.

Flip-Top Can Ban Official

Flip-top cans are now officially prohibited in British Columbia.

As of Wednesday, sale or use of beer, ale, cider or pop cans with removable flip tops is illegal and carries a fine of up to $500.

Recreation Minister Jack Radford originally announced the ban in 1973 but the date of implementation was put ahead until this year to allow retailers to switch to other cans.

Radford said at that time the pop cans were to be banned because the detachable rings were dangerously sharp and posed a hazard to children and bathers.

Besides the litter problem, said Radford, the flip tops are dangerous to wildlife, especially birds who get them caught in their beaks and slowly starve to death.

Wholesalers and producers were prohibited from selling the cans to retailers last Nov. 1 and many stores in B.C. have been selling off the cans at reduced prices to get rid of them before Wednesday's deadline.

City Hall Unions Disagree

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Staff

A sharp split between the city's inside and outside workers unions developed today in their contract negotiations.

While the inside union is taking a membership vote Monday on a revised pay offer, the outside workers posted 72 hours strike notice.

Jim Walker, president of Local 50 of the Canadian Union of Public Employees, representing 260 outside workers, said his local wanted the inside staff to "know it would be better for them to hold off for a while if they can."

But Doug Casey, president of Local 388 of CUPE, representing 240 inside workers, said the membership vote will go ahead as planned.

Asked if he felt the inside workers were cutting the throats of the outside workers, Walker said "I get that definite impression. It's not helping our cause at all."

Walker said the outside workers will picket City Hall if there is a strike, even if the inside workers agree on a new contract, "so they're cutting their own throats really."

He said the 15.75 per cent wage offer made by the employers co-ordinating committee to CUPE locals in Greater Victoria is unacceptable but "we could talk" in the area of 19.7 per cent settlements on the Lower Mainland.

Casey replied that he is "not in agreement with their rationale at all."

He said the 15.75 per cent applies to higher-paid positions but lower-paid positions would get as much as 34 per cent. In addition, the time taken for a person in a lower-paid classification to reach top pay has been cut to 24 months from 48 months.

"Why not take our highest figure, or average it and apply it to their bargaining," he said. "The total payroll cost to the city is much higher than 15.75 per cent."

Casey said if the outside workers picket City Hall "it's up to our members to observe the pickets. But we are a totally autonomous local."

Casey said the city offer is better than ones received by other CUPE locals because the others didn't get 34 per cent for lower-paid positions or reduction in time taken to reach top pay in these positions.

He said the starting rate for a clerk-typist in Victoria would be $598 a month while the offer to Saanich employees was $562 a month.

"The offer in my opinion is a reasonable one," he said.

Outside workers earlier received the 15.75 per cent wage offer for 1975 and turned it down. Their strike notice was received at City Hall this morning but no action can be taken until both sides have been informed by Labor Minister Bill King that mediation officer Clark Gilmour has filed his report.

$30,000 Mobile Home Burns

Fire in a Malahat mobile home park New Year's Eve destroyed a $30,000 home while the owners holidayed in Oliver.

Firefighting efforts by Spectacle Lake Mobile Home Park owner Charles Boas and other residents were partially successful until it was found blazing furnace oil required chemical extinguishers which were not available.

Boas called Mill Bay volunteer fire department for help, but was told equipment could not be sent outside the Mill Bay Fire Protection District, whose southern boundary ends at Sunburst Drive about four miles beyond Spectacle Lake.

Flames in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Al White were spotted about 4:30 p.m. by a neighbor as a window was blown out with heat and fumes which had been generating for a considerable time.

"We had the fire held off for an hour and a half," Boas said. "But we needed chemicals. I think we could have put it out if we'd had some."

Boas said it appeared there had been a malfunction in the furnace, causing the unit to burst into flame and spread to the mobile home structure. The Whites had been away since just before Christmas and are still not back from the mainland.

The mobile home park has hydrants and hoses to fight fire with water, and the units are spaced widely enough to prevent flames from jumping from one to another, Boas said.

"But it was frustrating to call the fire department and be told the trucks could not go outside their district," he said. It was understandable, he added.

"Now what I want to know is how to get help for acquiring chemical equipment," the park owner said.

He thought there was aid available through fire equipment manufacturers and possibly through government grants, and he said he would make inquiries.

The other alternative, of forming a fire protection district supported by taxes, could be turned down by residents of the immediate area, or take too long to get approval through government red tape, he said.

"I think the people (in the park) would rather pay out of their own pockets and have it right here," Boas said, referring to private firefighting equipment for the park only.

Fees: Dentists Firm, Levi Silent

B.C. dentists and the provincial government are only 3 per cent apart on negotiations for a new fee schedule to cover welfare patients.

But B.C. College of Dental Surgeons president Dr. Robert Hicks said Human Resources Minister Norman Levi refuses to negotiate and has no idea whether the minister will alter his last offer.

"We're still willing to talk about it, and change dates, but we are not willing to change the figure per se," Hicks said in an interview Tuesday.

The college president was referring to a request by dentists to charge the government 86 per cent of the current dental fee schedule for treatment of welfare patients.

The welfare program at present pays dentists 75 per cent of the 1971 fee schedule, Hicks said. The government offer amounts to 83 per cent, he added.

"I've written letters to him (Levi) which have not been answered. I've phoned him but he won't speak to me. What do you do with a minister who'll not talk?" he asked.

"I'm disappointed when a minister of the Crown enters into negotiations, makes a proposal and refuses to move from there," Hicks said.

Dentists agree to continue subsidizing welfare patients, but they want a broader basis from which to work.

Through the college of surgeons, dentists want a welfare dental program "on a par with other government programs."

This would entail an increased range of dental services, such as preventative dentistry, Hicks said.

In early talks, Levi agreed to this principle, but only as far as fluoride applications for children's teeth.

"He seemed more interested in his departmental budget, which I believe was overextended," Hicks said.

Levi also agreed to administrative streamlining, but not to the principle that remuneration should be equal to that for other programs.

Dentists claim recompense from the government for treating welfare patients is not enough to cover expenses, and that they are out of pocket each time they accept a welfare case.

Some dentists — as at Courtenay — have refused treatment to welfare patients unless it is an emergency.

"Yet we're not all that far apart," said Hicks. "Mr. Levi has said he'll only speak, if I sign the government offer."

What the government offered was 80 per cent of the 1974 fee schedule for work done between Dec. 1, 1974 and March 31, 1975, and 90 per cent of the 1974 fee schedule by Oct. 1, 1975. Hicks said this averaged out to 83 per cent of the current schedule.

Levi, who is not expected back in his office this week, said earlier the increase would cost the government $1.8 million over the 15 months, which he considered "more than generous."

Not Guilty: Watergate 3 Still Say

Times News Service

WASHINGTON — The three most powerful men of Richard Nixon's administration, who stand convicted of conspiring to cover up their involvement in Watergate, today steadfastly maintain they will prove their innocence on appeal.

Unlike some of their former colleagues now in prison, John Mitchell, H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman were far from contrite after the verdict was handed down Wednesday.

They remain free on personal bond and because of appeals it could be a year before any of them start jail terms.

Haldeman and Ehrlichman, the men who ran the Nixon White House, were convicted of conspiracy, obstruction of justice and lying as was Mitchell, Robert Mardian, 51, a former assistant attorney-general and campaign aide, was convicted of conspiracy.

Kenneth Parkinson, 46, hired to do Watergate legal work, was acquitted of conspiracy and obstruction of justice—the first Watergate defendant to go free.

Sentencing was expected to be delayed during the appeals process.

Mitchell could get 25 years in prison and a $37,000 fine; Haldeman, 25 years and $21,000, Ehrlichman, 20 years and $35,000, and Mardian, 5 years and $10,000.

The verdict came as no surprise to most of those who have been involved in the 2½-year-old scandal known as Watergate, not even the convicted defendants.

And, it raised again for some the question of why Nixon—an undicted co-conspirator—was never charged or even required to testify.

Ehrlichman said today that ever since he and the other Watergate cover-up defendants were indicted nine months ago he was "pretty well convinced of the impossibility of securing an acquittal."

Because of the pre-trial publicity surrounding the case, the Congressional impeachment investigation and Nixon's resignation and par-

Fare Hike In Air Deficit?

MONTREAL (UPI) — Air Canada disclosed today a 1974 deficit of about $9 million and warned that air fares will have to rise again during 1975 to help offset inflation.

The chairman of the government-owned airlines, Yves Pratte, condemned "skyrocketing" fuel prices in the past year and warned: "At stake in this situation is the continued health of the entire air transport industry."

Pratte announced the deficit in a year-end statement and said precise figures would be issued later. The $9 million represented a net approximate figure, he added.

Pratte said doubts in the Canadian and world economies were expected to continue in 1975 and financial results for the year "are at best uncertain."

"The airline expects the year will be one of modest growth on its North American services but with little or no growth on international routes," he said.

"This is certainly a reversal of what the industry has been accustomed to in the past decade."

Pratte said the deficit — only the second for the airline in 11 years — was due to "unprecedented" inflationary pressures during 1974, chiefly higher fuel costs.

The airline's fuel bill for the year soared by more than $70 million, or 83 per cent, over the figure for 1973.

To maintain "economic equilibrium," the airline stepped up sales efforts and launched a major drive to cut costs and improve productivity.

It also imposed a round of fare hikes, the first domestic increases since 1971.

IBM in U.S. Stalls $2M Canadian Sale

TAX CUT DELAYED BY LATE MAILING

OTTAWA (CP) — Take-home pay for most workers likely will go up next week, at least on paper, but it might take longer for the results of tax changes to show up on paycheques.

The federal budget tabled in November cut income taxes but the revenue department has not mailed out all the new tax tables.

A department spokesman said tables were being mailed out this week with the mailing to be completed Thursday.

The tax deduction at source for a head of family — married with two children — earning the average industrial wage — nearly $200 a week — will drop by close to $5.

For the average worker, there will be an increase of 21 cents in unemployment insurance contributions.

TORONTO (CP) — The sale of more than $2 million worth of typewriter equipment by IBM Canada Ltd., Toronto, to the Cuban government has been stalled by the parent company in the United States, an IBM Canada official said today.

The IBM spokesman said the Cuban government approached the Canadian government about four weeks ago to try to arrange the deal.

But the parent company has discouraged the sale because the U.S. Trading with the Enemy Act makes it illegal for a U.S. company to do business with such countries as Cuba, the spokesman said.

Negotiations between the company and the Canadian government are continuing, he said.

Previously, M.L.W. Worthington Co. of Montreal was delayed temporarily in a $12-million deal with Cuba for locomotives. Litton Industries Ltd., of California, recently turned down a contract with Cuba for $500,000 worth of office equipment with its Canadian subsidiary, Cole Division Litton Business Equipment Ltd., Toronto.

The parent Litton company has since agreed to apply to the U.S. State Department for approval of the deal.

Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie, who described the U.S. action in the Litton case as "unwarranted interference," was not available for comment on the IBM case.

3 Pubs Run Low On Beer

Three Victoria-area pubs are expected to close in a week unless the work stoppage at Carling O'Keefe Brewery in Vancouver is resolved before then.

The three are Westwind International Motor Inn at Langford, the Colwood Inn at Colwood and King John Inn at 2688 Sooke Road.

In Vancouver, about 35 beer parlors have already been closed as a result of the shutdown, according to Lloyd Manuel, executive vice president of the B.C. Hotels Association.

About 220 employees at Carling O'Keefe stopped work Dec. 27 to protest a layoff of 60 during the Christmas season.

The employees are engaged in a study session at the company's lunch room and no work is being done.

"This will lead to widespread layoffs for hotels unless it is resolved quickly," Manuel said.

About 33 per cent of British Columbia hotels rely upon Carling O'Keefe draft beer.

A senior official at the brewery said the company has arranged a meeting with the Labor Relations Board for 9 a.m. Friday in an effort to resolve the dispute.

"It is just a preliminary meeting but we hope it will lead to a quick solution," he said.

There are 60 hotels on the lower mainland which rely upon Carling O'Keefe for their draft beer. They were closing their beer parlors as soon as their draft was gone. Of the total, 37 hotels are in Vancouver and another 19 are in Burnaby.

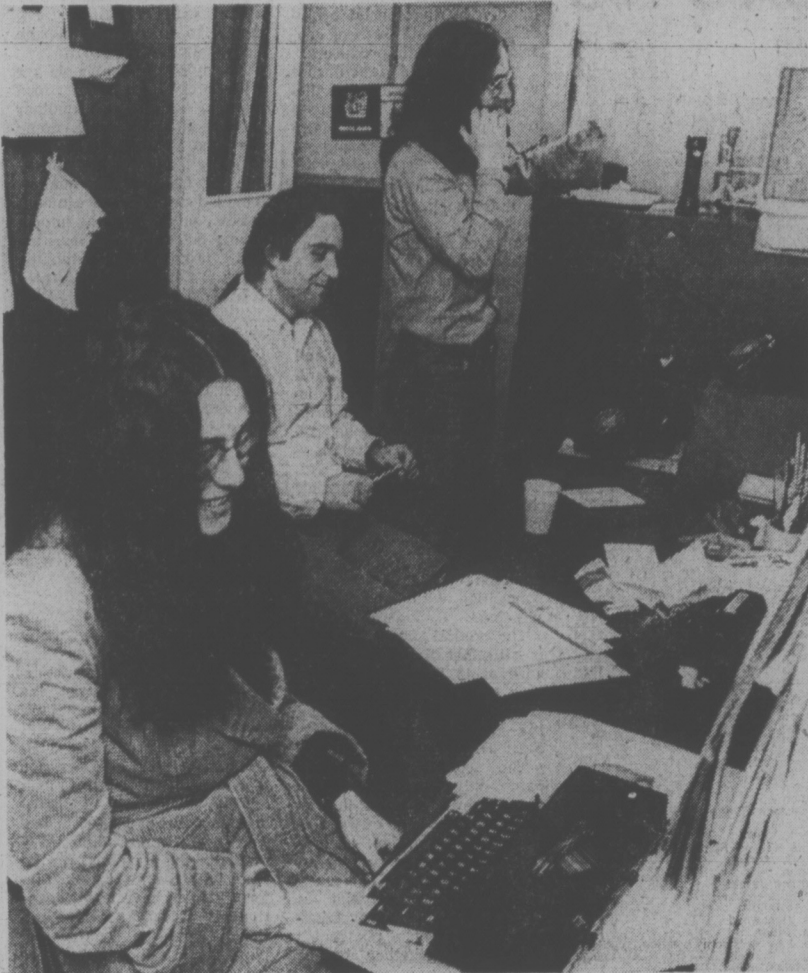

In Victoria, Bill Trimble, pub manager of Westwind, said he ordered an extra large supply of draft during the Christmas season as a favor to his supplier so there would not have to be a delivery this week.

As a result, he has enough draft on hand for about seven more days, depending upon demand.

"We didn't know this was coming. It was just a stroke of luck that we ordered an extra supply. Otherwise we would be out of beer now."

The King John Inn also has an extra-large order on hand, enough to last five or six days more, based upon normal demand.

Colwood Inn expects to run out of beer next Thursday unless normal deliveries are restored.

Surprise for Cool-Aid In C'wealth Youth Award

Victoria Cool-Aid has won the first Commonwealth youth award granted by the Commonwealth secretariat.

The London-based secretariat also gave the award, established under a program started in 1973, to a Malaysian group running a farming operation.

Cool-Aid, the non-profit group which operates a youth hostel and other community services at 1900 Fernwood, will receive a plaque and medals to mark the award.

Up to five Cool-Aid workers will get travel fellowships "to study similar projects in other Commonwealth countries, and to demonstrate and discuss the work they have undertaken," the secretariat said.

News of the award came as a surprise to Cool-Aid staff.

"We knew nothing about it," said Dave Brand, one of seven full-time workers at the hostel.

The federal secretary of state's department contacted Cool-Aid about 10 months ago seeking information so they could apply for the award on behalf of the group, said worker Laurie Smith.

"Then we heard nothing for a long period of time, until three weeks ago," he said.

Cool-Aid was asked to send more information about its projects.

Smith said they expect to get details of the award and the travel fellowships in a few days.

Cool-Aid started in 1968 as a hostel for transient youth in a rented house on Balmoral.

Today it owns the former Emmanuel Baptist Church at Fernwood and Gladstone, which contains a men's and women's hostel, a dental clinic that offers reduced rates to low-income people, and a full-time medical clinic.

The former church sanctuary, renamed the Springridge Theatre, is available for community groups that want to hold a meeting or put on a play.

Cool-Aid has been open 24 hours a day, seven days a week for the past five years, Smith said.

Cool-Aid also administers a group home for problem teenagers on Fort St., and runs a day care centre in a house on Balmoral.

The original hostel grew out of a group called the Victoria Youth Council, whose members included Smith and Charles Barber.

Young travellers were always coming to the council seeking a place to stay, so a roster system was worked out to billet the transients at different places.

Then the Balmoral house was rented as a permanent hostel. The basement of St. John's Church was also used as a men's hostel for a while.

Nearly four years ago, with government financial aid, Cool-Aid bought the Emmanuel Baptist Church.

GOLD DOWN DRASTICALLY

Times News Service

LONDON — The price of gold tumbled by almost $11 an ounce on the London market today.

The closing price of $173.50 was the first time the price had fallen below the $180 in three weeks.

Dealers attributed the decline to disappointment over the U.S. public's thin response to the lifting of the 41-year ban on their owning gold and to continuous profit taking.

Gold was fixed at $185 at mid-morning in London. In the afternoon the price was fixed at $175.

SKIPPER FINED

The skipper of a South Korean fishing vessel who admitted violating the Coastal Fisheries Protection Act was fined a total of $15,000 in Victoria provincial court today.

Kil Jun Yu, captain of the 620-ton Dong Won 707, pleaded guilty to illegally being in Canadian waters and fishing in those waters off the Queen Charlotte Islands-Dec. 22.

Maximum fine under the act is $25,000 for fishing inside the 12-mile boundary, $10,000 for entering Canadian waters, plus forfeit of the cargo, boat and gear. Ostler ordered that the 15 tons of frozen black cod on the vessel be forfeited.

Yu told the court through an interpreter he had not been aware his vessel had crossed the boundary.

Whole New Set of People Standing in L.A. Breadline

By CHARLES FOLEY

LOS ANGELES—By noon, the line outside the Hospitality Kitchen on Sixth Street in downtown Los Angeles is a good two blocks long.

It is one of several soup kitchens in this city of seven million which are doing a roaring trade as the economy sinks into an ever-deepening, ever more frightening tailspin.

"There's a whole new set of people coming in," says Katy Morris, a teacher turned social worker. "Not skid-row types at all. I've talked to people today who can discuss everything from Carlos Castaneda to Castro, and they all say: 'We can't find work—there isn't any!'

For six million American breadwinners, jobless and increasingly hopeless, the recession brought a Black Christmas.

California, the barometer state, already has 8.7 per cent of its work force unemployed, compared with a national average of 6.5 per cent—and its second city, San Diego, is above the 10 per cent level. (These figures are being compared here with the 2.7 per cent in gloomy Britain.) A long cold winter is on, and with it the worst and longest recession since the Second World War.

Across the country a staggering 37.5 per cent of the black teenage population—the young and black are always the hardest hit by any slump—are idle and ineligible for unemployment benefits.

But this time the fear of a depression as bad as that of the thirties is haunting the white middle classes no less than the poor in the Watts ghetto near here. Many still working full or part-time suspect that their employers are holding back the bad news until the New Year.

Among the industrial giants who have already made big lay-offs are General Motors, Xerox, General Electric, Union Pacific, RCA and Sears Roebuck, which has been hit by the heavy slump in Christmas sales. Some people were "released" at a few hours' notice, shortly before deadlines guaranteeing three days paid holiday over Christmas and New Year.

"This time, lay-offs are in all sections of employment, not just one or two," says a Californian labor official. "Workers are being sent home by the car industry, steel, lumber, computer firms, electronics, textiles, construction, some plants have been indefinitely closed down." A few states have run out of funds to assist the unemployed; others are borrowing.

Many of those being "let go" are white-collar people. A Los Angeles car dealer has reduced his staff to a single person, himself. A real estate developer has cleared out an entire office floor because of staff cuts. Herbert Hezlep III, president of Acme General, makers of hardware, has closed down three plants for three weeks. "Everyone's gonna take a vacation," he says, "including me."

Some firms are laying off workers who have been with their companies for 20 or 30 years. Now they must line up outside the Office of Human Resources (the unemployment office) or join the siege of welfare bureaus, which show signs of crumpling under the enormously increased work load.

More than half of those left idle have no unemployment insurance — in California alone each week 4,000 exhaust their short-term benefits. Shame-faced middle class families are lining up for the first time to obtain federal food stamps, which can be exchanged for groceries, to supplement their diets. Often they wait several hours for attention, then return again and
